In 1983, she opened Chez Claudine Restaurant and worked as the chef, maitre' de and head dishwasher for more than 20 years.

Best known as "Chez Claudine," she was born in Nancy, France, to the Tailor Francesco Giordano and Denise Ratzki. Claudine came to America in 1961, speaking only French to pursue the American dream of entrepreneurship. Even back then, working three jobs, she started a dry cleaning business.

In 1973, Claudine moved to

CLARA JANE SCHLEEF RADCLIFFE
AUGUST 13, 1936 - AUGUST 22, 2017

Michigan. She moved to Port Orford with her husband, Thomas Radcliffe, and earned a doctorate in medieval literature from University of New York Buffalo, writing her dissertation on a manual typewriter on the edge of the Siskiyou National Forest. She had three children and was a powerful force in all three of their lives.

For twenty-one years, Clara lived on Elk River and was part of the Port Orford community, serving on the library board, acting in numerous plays, substitute teaching, tutoring, preparing students to take the GED, all while raising her children. In 1980, Clara began working at Southwestern Oregon Community College and started the relocation process to Coos Bay. Teaching was perhaps her greatest passion (although she also loved good conversation, acting, reading books, tragic heroes, going to the movies, her four grandchildren, dark chocolate and romantic love so much that it is hard to say exactly what her greatest passion really was.) She worked incredibly hard and grew her career from being the tutor in the welding program to becoming a tenured, full professor of English. She believed in her students, worked them like coal miners, and especially relished teaching Women's Literature. She loved thousands and thousands of students, but her favorite student was the "non-traditional student": a woman well past the age of joining a sorority, who had children or maybe had worked for years in a low paying, thankless job, who came to Southwestern to build a new life for herself. That was the student Clara looked for in her classroom on the first day of school.

After retirement, Clara served on the Southwestern Community College school board, continued to serve on the Dolphin Players board and was active in the theater with her spiritual sister, Alice Carlson, and built powerful relationships with her grandchildren. In 2008, she had a massive stroke and spent the rest of her life recovering from it. Learning to walk again, teaching herself to read again, moving from being right handed to left, she created a new world for herself at Ocean Ridge Assisted Living. While this world was smaller than any other she had ever experienced, she celebrated every ounce of joy and pleasure in it, and she was happy. Her friends (Alice, Mel, Sally, Leah, Jennifer, Oshi, Josephine, Clara Lou, Joanne, Dorrie and many more) stayed by her side with visits, food, books, stories, trips to her favorite restaurants, going to plays and movies. She had, in twenty years of professional work, amassed a nest egg that made a place like Ocean Ridge possible, but the true wealth was this amazing group of friends.

With a life full of her passion, a laugh that could be heard across Pony Village Mall, every sweater she knitted, every book she read, all those conversations and that piercing, loving intellect that worked in unison with her powerful heart, it is done with her death. But she is survived by her two sons, Nathan Radcliffe and Eli Clare; her daughters, Jessica Colinares and Melissa Smith Radcliffe; her grandchildren, Tristan, Sidda, Lana and Eva; and the woman who was her sister in every possible way other than blood, Alice Carlson. And she is survived by the stories we know you all have of her. Tell those stories to your children.

In lieu of flowers, if you want to celebrate Clara Jane, please consider a donation to the Dolphin Players, PO Box 3264, Coos Bay, Oregon 97420.

Cremation rites were held at Ocean View Memory Gardens Crematory in Coos Bay, and arrangements are under the direction of Myrtle Grove Funeral Service-Bay Area, 541-269-2851.

Friends and family are encouraged to sign the online guestbook at www.coosbayareafunerals.com or leave a loving comment at www.theworldlink.com.

Clara Jane Schleef Radcliffe, born on August 13, 1936, to Martin and Elma Schleef, died peacefully at the age of 81. Just a week before, Clara celebrated her birthday with her family and friends, eating salmon, chocolate cake, and drinking a truly delicious cabernet sauvignon. The day was full of laughter, stories, and gifts that delighted Clara (even though she had specifically asked for none.)

Clara was raised in Detroit, Mich., went to Wayne State University and University of

CAROLE LEE HASTINGS

(Clark) Parks. She passed away Aug. 14 in North Bend.

She grew up in Colorado. After the passing of her parents at a young age, she and her sister, Karen were raised by their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson on their family farm.

In the early 70s, she met Bill Hastings and they were married May 25, 1975 in Mead, Colo. She got her AA in teaching and was a teacher at the Star School for handicapped and disabled children, while Bill worked in the oil fields in Colo. and Wyo. In June 1977, their son, Carl Michael Hastings was born in Fort Morgan, Colo. Then five years later, the family moved to Oregon. They purchased the Wagon Wheel grocery store in 1982, which they still own today.

years and had many "honorary grandchildren" due to her huge capacity to bring joy, comfort and love to them all. The children loved to spend time learning their ABCs and playing games with her. One of her greatest joys was when Mackenzie Mae Hastings was born in January 2009. She and Bill loved to spend as much time as they could with their granddaughter, Mackenzie.

She was also a proud volunteer at the Hauser Fire Association for almost 35 years. She was the one to volunteer for anything and get things organized and done. She always helped out at the spaghetti feed and the shopping for children and families of burned out victims.

She will be dearly missed by all those who had the pleasure of knowing her. She touched so many people's lives in such a positive and uplifting way.

Jean L. Diebold Coffman came into the world Aug. 16, 1924 in Vancouver, Wash. She was the daughter of Carl and Helen Diebold. She died July 27, 2017.

Mom lived in Bridal Veil, Wash., as a very young child, Forest Grove as a pre-teen, and attended Grant High School in Portland as a teen. She went to Eastern Oregon College in La Grande where she met the love of her life. She and Dad started their life together six months later.

Her married life started on the farm in eastern Oregon, just outside Milton. Their first two daughters, Janis Melton and Linda Holland were born in Walla Walla, Wash. Then a short stint in Portland and on to Myrtle Point where Becky Starr, Jodi Bouska, Carl Coffman and Jill Halliburton were born.

It was while Mom was busy getting all six of us kids organized that Dad decided to start the business of making arrow shafts. Mom was in full support of that decision and they worked side by side through the whole process.

Mom loved playing the piano, loved serving as mayor of Myrtle Point, and loved serving her Heavenly Father.

She treasured her family of six children and when the grandchildren started arriving, it just added to her joy. Grandmother to 16 and great-grandmother to 27.

Mom was a strong mother who showed her love by being a good role model, providing lessons of life, being a protector, and by loving our dad for 67 years.

There will be a celebration of life for Jean Coffman at 1 p.m. Sept. 23, in the Oaks Pavilion at the Coos County Fairgrounds, 900 Fourth St. Myrtle Point.

SHERRY KAY (BROWN) KELSAY
NOV. 7, 1940 - JULY 7, 2017

They named their restaurant the Sherry Kay Café after her, but World War II forced its closure and a temporary move to Calif. so her father could help build B-24 Liberator aircrafts. The family returned to the Colorado Rockies to live in Granby, Colo., then McCoy, Colo. where living on their ranch fostered a lifetime love of horses, rodeo, knitting, playing the accordion and reading. They eventually moved to Yampa, Colo., where Sherry graduated from Yampa Union High School in 1958. She knew as a child that she wanted to be a nurse and graduated from nurses training at Denver General Hospital in 1959 and worked at Longs Peak Osteopathic Hospital.

While she was in school, she met Ivan Kelsay at a dance and instantly knew she would dance with him for the rest of her life. They married Jan. 31, 1960 at the First United Methodist Church in Longmont, Colo., and began 57 years together in a house they built together in Yampa.

ing and candy making, was a crafter with her sister and became a certified grapho-analyst along with her mother.

The family business brought moves to Rapid City, S.D. and Gillette, Wyo., but health concerns prompted a move to the milder climate in North Bend, where she enjoyed researching genealogy, watching the ships, whales and sunsets on the ocean and building another house that she filled with her carousel horses and everything Christmas. She resumed nursing for about 20 years at Dr. Nolan's office and at the same time, instructed Lamaze classes at Bay Area Hospital. She retired after being an office manager for Coast Medical Lab.

Sherry was very active in many organizations and made lifelong friendships with others who shared her zeal for helping and caring. During youth, it was 4-H and The International Order of The Rainbow. In motherhood, she helped with Boy Scouts of America, DeMolay International, Girl Scouts of America and Job's Daughters. As an adult, she belonged to Eastern Star, White Shrine and Amaranth.

RUSSELL D. YOUNG
 NOV. 13, 1948 – AUG. 10, 2017

Ram in 1980, to gill net salmon in Bristol Bay.

The Ram was always in the top 10 boats and the number one boat for years, fishing for Kemp Fisheries. Russell always said he had the best crew in the bay with Raymond Chase, Ron Jones, Donnie Kasper, and son, Rex, for most years and brother, Curt and father, Bud early on. One season the Ram caught 182,000 lbs. of salmon in less than 3 weeks.

It was always Russell and Charlotte's dream to build a house on their Davis Slough property they bought together in 1968. After fighting in court for 10 years they were finally able to develop that property and build their house in 1990. Davis Slough was Russell's haven and he taught the grandkids how to hunt, fish, ride four-wheelers, pick blackberries, and feel safe with no one to bother you there. He couldn't wait for one of the kid's visit or grandkids to come stay with them, the family get-togethers, and Christmas together. He always had a big smile on him with family around; sometimes just sitting and listening and watching everyone. He sang them funny little rhyming songs and would tell them stories like being stranded on a boat in the ocean with half a peanut butter and jelly sandwich that they could share, riding the waves, and keeping warm together. Russell had special nicknames for each kid and grandkid that they will never forget.

Russell was an avid deer and elk hunter with many trophies. He was a professional trapper in his early years catching muskrat, mink, raccoons, otter and in just a few weeks one season, he caught 102 beavers; he was over his limit by two. He commercially dug clams in the past, but loved digging with family, friends, and especially the kids. He loved camping with his family, fishing, riding his four-wheeler around his property looking for animals and checking out his fruit trees, watching the mallards and wood ducks in his fish and beaver ponds, talking fishing and scores with his friends at the Basin Café and working on his last big deal with Roger. Whatever dinner was served was his favorite.

Russell was born Nov. 13, 1948 in Coos Bay. He passed away Aug. 10, 2017 in Coos Bay of natural causes.

He grew up in Crab Flats then moved to Englewood and worked at his grandpa's lapping stables, cleaning the horse stalls and feeding the horses every day. During that time, in high school, he met Charlotte Wierichs and they married Jan. 1, 1967 and were together for more than 50 years.

Russell graduated high school in 1966 and went to Oregon State University where he received a certificate in horse shoeing. He went on to be a painter, inventor and real estate salesman with Ed Sherwood, and flat track motorcycle racer, but his love was commercial fishing. Russell got the itch by going on tuna and salmon fishing trips with his Uncle Jack and cousin, Chris out of Brookings. His favorite time of the year was fall for hunting with the family and NFL football. He worked on the F/V Shaun and Bernadette dragging and shrimping before buying his first salmon boat. He was always the highliner for Peterson Seafoods and strived to out-fish everyone.

Russell headed to Alaska in 1978 on the F/V Ocean Leader and later the Northern Leader to fish for Dungeness and king crab where they were always highliners. He was very proud to say, they pioneered the Opilio crab fishery that you see on "The Deadliest Catch" TV series today. While packing salmon in Naknek, Alaska, Bristol Bay, he found his favorite fishing, gill netting sockeye salmon. After a very serious head injury while king crabbing, Russell and Charlotte took a gamble and built their own boat, the Artic

Russell loved his family and grandkids most of all. He always taught them to strive to be the best in his own way. He watched many SWOYA, junior high, and high school games played by his kids and grandkids and their friends.

Russell will be mostly remembered by being a hard worker, working long hours, a tough man that didn't take crap from anyone, a salesman, highliner commercial fisherman, clam digger, awesome hunter and teacher. But most of all, a great husband, father, grandfather and uncle to his family and their friends.

Russell is survived his wife, Charlotte "Bubbles"; son, Rex Young and wife, Tammy of Coos Bay; daughters, Holly Young of Coos Bay, and Nancy Anthony and husband, Bob of Washington; son, Scott Mickelson and wife, Caryn of North Bend; 11 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and another on the way; sister, Mary Jean Christensen of Wasilla, Alaska; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Bud and Jeanne Young; and his brother, Curtis Young.

Memorial contributions in Russell's remembrance can be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 1650 NW Naito Parkway, Suite 190, Portland, OR 97209, or the Marshfield Booster's Club, 10th & Ingersoll, Coos Bay, OR 97420 for the student athletes.

Arrangements are under the care of Coos Bay Chapel, 541-267-3131.
