Did you know?

Did you know that just plain water can help to prevent cavities and gum disease?

It's true! A tiny high pressure stream of water directed between teeth and gums can disrupt bacteria and dislodge food particles that are not reached by brushing and flossing. When used daily, it can even control periodontal disease! What a good idea for a gift!

We've come a long way! With excellent dental care from Dr. Strong, you will protect your teeth, look great, and feel even better. Ask us about implants!

World Oceans Day set for June 8

BANDON - Friday, June 8, is World Oceans Day. Everyone who is concerned about the state of the ocean is invited to a special gathering and beachwalk celebrating the occasion, co-sponsored by the CoastWatch program of the Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition, and Shoreline Education for Awareness.

The free event commences at noon at the Bandon Public Library, 1204 11th St., S.W.

CoastWatch Volunteer Coordinator Fawn Custer will talk about some of the more interesting finds that CoastWatchers make on the beach, with specimens on hand.

She will also describe the program's various citizen science projects, with an emphasis on the marine debris survey, since the theme of this year's World Oceans Day is plastics and how they are affecting the ocean (and how to combat this environmental abuse). Representatives of SEA will also discuss their work to protect shoreline habitats through public education. Refreshments will be served.

At 1:30 p.m. the group will venture down to Coquille Point to participate in a citizen science clinic, guided by Fawn Custer (including a demonstration of OSCC's marine debris survey), together with an exploration of shoreline natural history led by South Coast naturalist Marty Giles. Those interested in the beachwalk only can meet the group there.

The field trip will also include a beach cleanup, a must on this plastics-oriented World Oceans Day.

The celebration will wind up with a visit to the Bandon headquarters of Washed Ashore, through which volunteers help to turn marine debris into art, a fitting end to a day dedicated to recognizing the marine debris problem.

It would be helpful in planning for the event if potential attendees would RSVP as to whether they will be present at the library, participate in the beachwalk, or both.

But participants are also welcome to join in on the spur of the moment that day without having RSVPed.

To RSVP or for more information about the event, contact Fawn Custer at 541-270-0027, fawn@oregon-shores.org.

Journey through the watershed at free talk

BANDON - The Coquille Watershed Association Presents "Past and Present: A Journey Through Our Watershed" at 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 27, at the Bandon Public Library's Sprague Room, 1204 11th St. SW in City Park.

Join the Coquille Watershed Association as they present the history of the Coquille watershed and the role of the organization in promoting sustainable agriculture and forestry practices while maintaining the land and water for future generations. Meet the people of the watershed and learn what they are doing today to preserve the future. "Supporting the conservation of our natural resources is important to us all and to those who will follow us," said Sara Michael, assistant librarian at the Bandon Public Library.

"This presentation is part of Bandon Public Library's The Big Fish Vision series, which continues to promote the conservation of the beauty and inhabitants of this place we call home," Michael said. "Please join us to learn more about the role of the Coquille Watershed Association."

History comes to life at Hughes House

SIXES - Visitors to the Historic Hughes House are invited to listen in on conversations between pioneer Jane Hughes and family members, neighbors and travelers. This year's Living History began Wednesday, June 6, and continues each Wednesday, except July 4, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., with the final presentation Aug. 29.

The six short scenes, written by local historian Shirley Nelson, depict Jane's life at the Hughes House near Cape Blanco in the early 1900's. Inge Licon, in her 10th year as Jane Hughes, appears in all the scenes.

Greg Ryder portrays Jane's son Edward just back from a trip to bustling San Francisco; Caara Williams is Georgina McKenzie from an adjoining dairy farm; Erica Godbey is daughter-in-law Annie on laundry day. Tim Self portrays Father Keveny, a traveling priest serving the South Coast; Emily Gwynn is Irish immigrant Catherine Kelly en route to a new life in Astoria. Jada Ryder and Lily Albiston are audience favorites as Jane's young grandchildren Annie and Agnes from across the Sixes River.

These scenes come to life under the auspices of Oregon State Parks and the Cape Blanco Heritage Society. The Living History coordinator is Susan Russell.

Admission to Hughes House is free. Donations are welcomed.

Fabric artist at Second Street Gallery on June 10

BANDON - From noon-4 p.m. on Sunday, June 10, Second Street Gallery will host fabric artist and silk painter Debra Street for an early Meet and Greet the Artist event.

Many have seen the beautiful colorful scarves, ponchos, ruanas and more created by Street at Second Street Gallery and on some patrons. Street will be bringing a new batch of silk and silk blend items including some extra styles that can't always be in stock.

Street is from Colorado and learned the painting process from her father, Danny, who developed a dynamic, fashion forward style. Sixteen years ago, Danny wanted Debra to learn how to paint so that she could carry the family art into the future.

She dedicated herself to learning everything she could about the process. She became so excited about it that she went home and decided to start her own business as well. In addition, Street earned her Master's in Business Administration from Keller Graduate School of International Management.

Having learned the art and skills in coloring and keeping the soft lustrous hand of silk fabrics, Street became even more passionate about developing her fine craft so that she could also continue to stay home with her children and help support the family. The public is welcome to stop in and meet Street and note that every piece is hand-painted and therefore unique from another piece, even if within the same color range.

The gallery is located at 230 Second St. SE in Old Town, Bandon. For more information, call 541-347-4133 or visit <http://secondstreetgallery.net/>.
