Behind Thrifty Sisters' Success North Bend's Business of the Year

By NATE SCHWARTZ
Editor

Every small business starts somewhere. Some from within on a dream, a passion, or a calling. For Mindy Madsen, now multi-award-winning owner of Thrifty Sisters in North Bend, it came from family and one very important question: "My sister called me and said 'You hate your job, you're in pain all the time, what do you want to be when you grow up?'" explained Madsen standing behind the counter at her Pony Village Mall location. "I don't know, I have to grow

Tsunami warning cancelled but provides reminder to prepare for emergency

STAFF REPORT

In the evening on Tuesday July 29, an 8.8 magnitude earthquake struck off of Russia's Kamchatka Peninsula leading to widespread tsunami warnings along the entire Pacific Coast of the United States. Despite the large swath of ocean between the Russian coast and Coos County, the earthquake tied for the 6th most intense in the history of recorded magnitudes. This is the strongest since the 9.1 magnitude quake in Tohoku, Japan back in 2011 which led to a devastating tsunami that struck the Fukushima Nuclear Plant.

Despite small tsunami waves 1-3 feet over the tide being expected to hit the coast later in the evening, no damage was reported along the Oregon coast. Coos County officials still warned against going out to the coast as tides and currents could still be dangerous in the expected conditions. The warnings were subsequently called off in the late morning of following day, July 30. Warnings like this, whether they lead to substantial damage or not, are always opportunities to review your emergency routines. There are loads of resources available for anyone who needs help developing a plan. The local Coos County Emergency Management program is a great local option for those resources, and following their social media can be a great way to keep in the know about any potential emergencies. ## BOEM rescinds designated Wind Energy Areas

By JEREMY C. RUARK
Country Media, Inc.

The Bureau of Ocean Energy Management (BOEM) announced it is rescinding all designated Wind Energy Areas (WEAs) on the U.S. Outer Continental Shelf (OCS), including proposed projects off the Oregon Coast. "This action is being taken in accordance with Secretary's Order (SO) 3437 - Ending Preferential Treatment for Unreliable, Foreign Controlled Energy Sources in Department Decision-Making - and the Presidential Memorandum of January 20, 2025 - Temporary Withdrawal of All Areas on the OCS from Offshore Wind Leasing and Review of the Federal Government's Leasing and Permitting Practices for Wind Projects," the BOEM states in a release issued July 30. The proposed locations off the Oregon Coast included two lease areas totaling 194,995 acres — one in the Coos Bay Wind Energy Area and the other in the Brookings Wind Energy Area — which have the potential to power more than one million homes with clean, renewable energy. WEAs were originally established to identify offshore locations deemed most suitable for wind energy development. By rescinding WEAs, BOEM is ending the federal practice of designating large areas of the OCS for speculative wind development and is de-designating over 3.5 million acres of unleased federal waters previously targeted for offshore wind development across the Gulf of America, Gulf of Maine, the New York Bight, California, Oregon, and the Central Atlantic, the release states. The proposed wind development along the Oregon Coast has sparked opposition from state and local officials since the projects were first discussed in 2013. "I stand with my tribal friends, the bipartisan coastal caucus members of the legislature and especially my neighbors who live on the coast when we urged caution until there is further understanding of the impacts of to the entire environment," Oregon State Sen. Dick Anderson

Offshore wind turbines had been proposed for two areas off the southern Oregon Coast. The Bureau of Ocean Energy Management announced July 30 it has rescinded the proposals.

said when auctions for the two Oregon sites were announced in 2024 by the U.S. Department of Energy. "Sadly, this is a normal course of action for the federal government, who just provides lip service to all of us versus actually listening to us. My office is engaged in doing whatever we can to slow the process down before there is no turning back." State Rep. David Gomberg

HOLY COW! HISTORY: The Return of Room 8, the School Cat

By J. MARK POWELL
InsideSources.com

A collective funk is descending upon America’s children these days. Moms are outfitting kids with new clothes. That means only one thing: the back-to-school blues are here again.

That sad song has been sung every late summer for ages. Would you believe that a few generations ago, one group of kids not only didn’t mind the start of the new school year, but they eagerly looked forward to it.

There was nothing to suggest a momentous event was at hand that day in September 1952. Students were settling into their annual routine as the new school term began at Elysian Heights Elementary School in Los Angeles’ Echo Park neighborhood. And then a visitor dropped by.

In that long-ago time when schools didn’t have air conditioning (except for the principal’s office), doors and windows were flung open in hopes of catching a breeze. The visitor took advantage of that and casually sauntered into the schoolhouse as if he owned the place.

He was a gray-striped tabby cat with a chubby face and a white patch running from his mouth, down his chest, and to his belly. He was underfed, with a few ribs showing. His hair was dusty and unkempt. A slight notch in one ear suggested he’d survived a fight. He was friendly, yet also unsure how his presence would be taken.

The cat went first to Room 8 and entered without fanfare. He took inventory of the place, sniffing bags, books and desks, even allowing children to pet him. He was friendly, but not overly affectionate. He seemed wary, wanting to make sure he was in a safe space before letting his guard down.

When he’d finished inspecting Room 8, he worked his way through the rest of the building, dropping in on classrooms, bathrooms, closets and the front office.

As you’d expect, the kids went wild. It wasn’t every day a feline slinked into a place of learning, after all, and he was an instant hit. The cat decided not only that the school was acceptable, but that it was now his new digs. The strange stray had found a home. Sort of.

Although he decreed the entire school his personal domain, Room 8 was his favorite hangout. So, students extended the name to him. From then on, he was Room 8 the Cat.

Teachers seized on the unexpected development and turned Room 8 into a learning opportunity. Special “Room 8 monitors” were selected to look after the cat. Caring for him became a group project. Students and teachers alike brought food from home. His hair was brushed, and he was kept tidy.

He was the inspiration for art projects, poems, essay assignments, Christmas cards, and even a school play. In return, Room 8 was an old soul who seemed to relish mentoring kids.

His daily routine was as structured as that of his classmates. He arrived every morning precisely at 8 a.m. and followed the students inside. He spent the next two hours making the rounds, strolling through the different classrooms, making sure the school day was running smoothly. Naptime came at 10, usually on a window-sill, radiator, or even in some lucky student’s lap.

At lunchtime, he accompanied kids outside and politely nibbled whatever morsels they shared, though he wasn’t a pig and never overate. An afternoon inspection of the premises followed. He seemed to particularly enjoy hanging out with younger students during their storytime.

When the final bell rang at 3 p.m., Room 8 departed with the rest of the student body. Nobody knew where he went. But he was always back again at 8 sharp the next morning.

As the school year wound down, teachers and students thought that would be the end of that. There was a tearful farewell on the final day.

To everyone’s surprise, Room 8 showed up again on the first day of school that September. A ritual was born. He spent the academic term hanging out at Elysian Heights Elementary, did his own thing all summer, and was back for more the following first day of school.

Word of the cat’s mysterious comings and goings — and the school’s affection for him — spread. Soon, news crews were on hand on the first day of every school year. Like the swallows returning to San Juan Capistrano in March, Room 8’s return was reported each September.

Celebrity followed. Life magazine did a photo spread on him. A children’s book was written about him. Radio stations interviewed him (though kids and teachers provided the answers). Johnny Carson featured him in the early years of “The Tonight Show.” He even rode in a limousine to one guest appearance.

As the 1960s wound down, time caught up with him. Room 8’s classroom visits grew shorter, with him even skipping some days entirely. A local family near the school took him in. When he died peacefully on Aug. 13, 1968, The Los Angeles Times ran a full obituary. A mural was dedicated in his memory inside the school.

A collection was raised, and a large marker was placed on his grave in a local pet cemetery. It reads, “Room 8 1947 – 1968. He chose us.”

The unspoken epidemic in Coos County - and what it’s costing us all

By DESIREÉ GLENN
GAOIRAN
Opinion Column

I want to say something out loud that most people are too afraid to confront: Child molestation is destroying our community. Not metaphorically. Not quietly. In ways that go deeper, cut harder, and last longer than even child poverty.

That’s not just theory - it’s what the data says.

And it’s what I’ve witnessed firsthand growing up, working with families, and trying to help kids in this county build better futures. The root cause of so much of our pain - our addiction, our broken homes, our mental health crisis, our homelessness - is early sexual trauma. And we are not treating it like the public emergency it is.

Because sexual abuse isn’t just something that happens in childhood. It embeds itself in a person’s nervous system, their trust in others, their ability to feel safe or worthy. It rewires brains. It changes what people believe about love, connection, and the world. And when it’s unhealed, it explodes in every direction - addiction, incarceration, early death.

The Cost Is Staggering

- Survivors of childhood sexual abuse are 3 to 5 times more likely to develop PTSD, depression, and substance use disorders.
- Their lifetime cost to society averages $283,000 per victim, when factoring in health care, lost productivity, crime, and suicide risk.

- Nationwide, we lose an estimated $9 billion per year to the aftermath of child sexual abuse. That’s just the economic number. The human cost? Immeasurable.

And yet in Coos County, we barely talk about it. We focus on symptoms - homelessness, addiction, foster care overload - but not the wound underneath.

I’m Calling It What It Is: A Community-Level Emergency

If we really want to heal this region - if we care about long-term solutions - we cannot ignore this. Prevention has to become a priority. Because if we don’t stop the abuse before it starts, we’ll keep spending millions trying to fix what we never prevented.

Break the Silence.

Stop treating this topic like it’s too taboo to name. Protecting children is more important than protecting comfort.

Final Word:

I live here. I work here. I raise my kids here. And I believe our community is capable of radical healing - but only if we’re brave enough to name the real issues.

It’s time to put the full weight of our concern, funding, and action behind stopping child sexual abuse - before it steals another generation’s future.

Because nothing else we fix will matter if we don’t fix this.

The Lakeside Community Garden

The Lakeside Community Garden, “Harmony Garden” would like to thank the Cow Creek Foundation for their generous Grant for $2,100.00. The garden is utilized by individuals to plant vegetables and flowers for not only their own use, but surplus produce is distributed through our local food bank. The garden also serves as an educational experience for children in the community. The wooden garden beds are deteriorating rapidly and the gate into the garden needs to be replaced.

Thanks to the financial support of the Cow Creek Foundation, the garden beds will be reinforced with corrugated metal and gate replaced, thus making the community garden usable for years to come.

Ethical Governance

On July 22nd, North Bend City Council established a citizen committee to consider potential amendments to the City Charter. At the July 7th work session, City Administrator David Milliron maintained that the ‘biggest question’ for a possible charter change was crafting a mechanism to remove a city councilor!

Milliron said, “We learned a hard lesson under the prior cycle of four years. It’s hard to protect your city administrator if you have no mechanism to discipline or remove a city councilor. This city spent in excess of $75,000 and they couldn’t do anything. You were left in a situation where you had your chief executive still having his civil rights violated.”

I would like to respond. Mr. Milliron is a knowledgeable, talented individual and a hard worker, but I pushed back when I thought he went beyond his authority. Here are some recollections from my four years on Council.

- A May 27, 2024 agenda item had no business being on the agenda. Councilor Garboden’s request for a vote to scrap meeting minutes had not been brought to a work session first. “A proposed ordinance requires the express support of a majority of councilors to move from a work session to the formal meeting for a vote. I called for a ‘point of order’. After some initial parrying, the Parliamentarian (City attorney) said, “Well, Mr. Milliron makes the agenda.” I said, “Do you mean to tell me that Mr. Milliron can overrule a Council Rule?” The proposal to scrap meeting minutes was moved to the next work session agenda for the required discussion. Ref. Section 2.04.060 (a) and (b) of the Council Rules (Ordinance 2052).
- The League of Oregon Cities has compiled Model Rules for City Councils. One rule considers councilor interactions with staff, and recommends councilors limit their use of staff time to no more than two hours. North Bend’s Council Rules require that all interactions with City staff go through Mr. Milliron. On Feb. 11th 2023, after an OBAB work part in Ferry Road Park, I was visiting with Public Works Director Ralph Dunham by the picnic shelter. We knew each other from working together at a local firm in the past. Mr. Milliron barreled between us to break up the conversation, unseen until he was moving fast right in front of my face. He almost knocked me over.
- At the March 3rd 2023 work session, Mr. Milliron berated me in front of the Council when I said that I’d received a map of City-owned property from the Public Works Department, saying it was a violation of Council Rules. We were in search of places to allow homeless people to camp. I looked for a map of City owned property. Mr. Milliron emailed me to check with Public Works after I emailed him to ask where to find a map of city owned property!

- At the July 10, 2023 work session, a City resident came to the meeting, gave public comment, then left. Mr. Milliron panned the person’s comment in his remarks to Council.
- The July 10, 2023 work session had an agenda item, ‘Tiny Home Discussion’. It was Mr. Milliron’s topic; he handed out four architectural drawings of two-story cottages, living quarters above a single car garage, available for rent to nurses, teachers etc. He said these could be built at the old Visitors’ Information Center which had been declared ‘surplus property’. When I emailed him afterwards to ask when Council had voted to declare the Visitors’ Center as surplus property, he did not respond. He emailed Council two days later that Visitors’ Center had not been declared surplus property; that would be inadvisable.
- My 2023 work session agenda request for a sign prohibiting electric bikes on the Simpson Bluff Trail resulted in Mr. Milliron panning my request in an email to Council. When I objected, he directed staff to install the sign. After I left Council in December 2024, the sign was removed.
- On July 23, 2024, Mr. Milliron told Council that he was considering asking commercial businesses regarding their interest in the old Visitors’ Information Center property because after it is torn down, it will be commercial property! When I emailed an inquiry as to its zoning, he responded by email to the entire Council that Simpson Park is a single tax lot, zoned R-7, with commercial uses limited to a neighborhood grocery or parking.

- Council awarded a consultant’s contract for the Parks Master Plan on February 13, 2024.

The staff report text mentioned a master plan steering committee and that Council could make appointments at the first meeting in March. The Council Rules require a Council vote to establish a Board, Commission or Committee, require written applications in advance, and a Council vote on all appointments.

None of that happened for the 20-year update to the Parks Master Plan, part of the City’s Comprehensive Plan that received two public hearings and adoption by ordinance! The ‘steering group’ was formed behind the scenes, the meetings were never public, and all of it was a willful violation of the Council Rules.

From Section 22 of the City Charter: The City Administrator may not control: a) the Council.

The ethical removal of an elected official would be through a recall election.

The Chamber Minute

From the desk of Rosey Thomas

By ROSEY THOMAS
Executive Director, Bay Area Chamber of Commerce

Earlier this month, Governor Tina Kotek directed the Oregon Department of Land Conservation and Development (DLCD) to pause its proposed farm stand and agritourism rulemaking following strong pushback from rural communities and small farms!

The Bay Area Chamber was fully prepared to respond. We had begun organizing a coalition of local farms and agritourism businesses to submit unified opposition, recognizing that the proposed rules could have placed unnecessary burdens on rural entrepreneurs and family farms.

Our plan included:

- Convening affected businesses for a coordinated response.
- Hosting a local information session with county planners.
- Drafting joint letters and public comment templates.

- Connecting with state legislators who shared our concerns.

While the rulemaking is on hold for now, we will continue monitoring developments and stand ready to re-engage if needed. This pause shows the power of early, organized advocacy—and underscores the Chamber’s role as a voice for business.

Business of the Year

up?” she laughed. “But it turns out that my hobby, and what I did on the weekends, what I did for fun, and what I did on vacation, well they were all the same: its thrifting!”

With that realization, Madsen left her job as a retail manager at a chain store in Medford and, with her sister, began making preparations for what would become their first storefront. What started over 13 years ago as a small thrift shop in Charleston is now the most recent recipient of North Bend’s Business of the Year award. But as with most small businesses, that preparation was no easy feat.

“I spent two years collecting clothes and whatever I could get my hands on,” said Madsen. “I filled the dining room, but a dining room’s worth of clothes and things are like two racks and three tables worth of stuff... I kind of think I was meant to be out there, Charleston needed me.”

When the opportunity to expand into a bigger space came along three years ago, Madsen jumped, and the rest is history. People were already travelling from North Bend and Coos Bay to Charleston for Thrifty Sister’s affordable and extensive collection, especially where baby and toddler clothes were concerned. Now, Madsen’s favorite customers are the ones that have been populating malls for decades: teenagers.

“Now there’s a much higher volume of people in general. There are so many teenagers at the mall though,” said Madsen. “That’s my favorite demographic, teenagers and young adults. They need life skills; they look at me like I’m super cool even though I’m clearly old enough to be their mother.

“I just get to be perma-auntie. They grew up with me, they came in as baby bumps and now they’re teenagers... Now they come and hang out and chat, or ask for style advice. I’m like ‘Yes! I get to style teenagers? They think I’m cool?’ That’s like the ultimate compliment, when a teenagers think you’re cool.”

That all makes sense when you meet Madsen in person. She has an endless enthusiasm and a penchant for making anyone that walks into her store feel not only welcome, but special. That’s not just a ‘vibe’ at Thrifty Sisters either, it’s a policy, one that started all the way back in Charleston.

Part of the reason for Thrifty Sisters’ recognition from the City of North Bend was due to their commitment to discounts for foster parents, and members of other community organizations. It goes well beyond the table of $1 kid’s clothes.

“It started just because I love foster parents... It was basically outreach so it felt right, and I had the cheapest kid’s clothes and the most available kid’s clothes. People were driving to Charleston to buy them, so it was a win-win,” explained Madsen. “And it turned into this,” she gestured to a white-board listing all of the offered discounts. In addition to foster families, it includes teachers, students, military members, seniors, and a whole host of local organizations.

Madsen says that her business has two catchlines, the first being “We are here for you”, which may be simple but rings true through their community partnerships.

The second is “Every body is welcome here,” which is reflected through the store’s commitment to inclusivity.

“The goal is to make everyone who enters feel safe,” said Madsen, who went on to speak about how being asked to help with styling for things like gender affirmation is an honor.

That extends to employees too. Thrifty Sisters had made an effort to hire through Alternative Youth Activities’ workforce development program. Another in that long list of community partners.

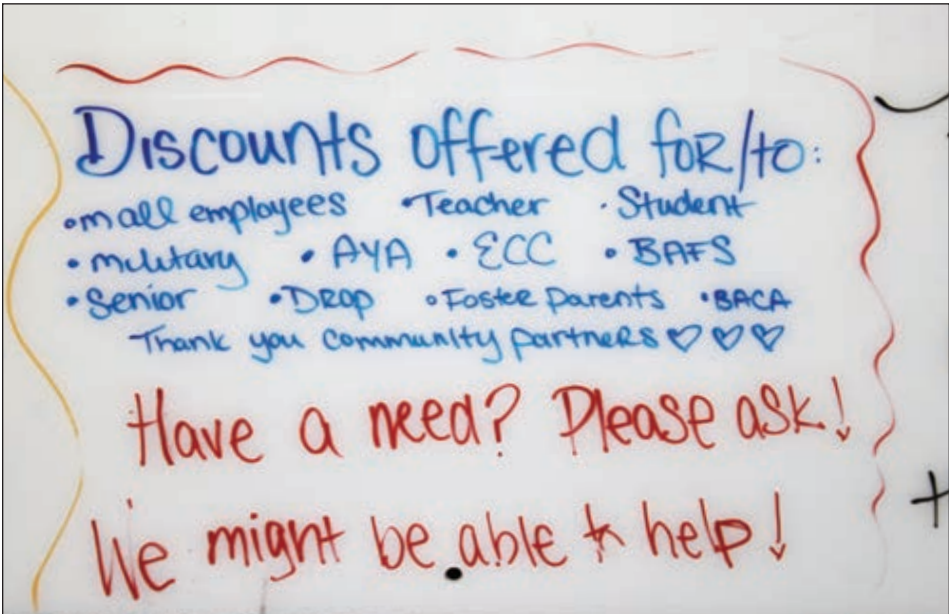

Madsen has high hopes for the future, or what she calls the ‘maybe someday’s’.

“In a grand world, I would add a door or throw the whole wall out and expand. Add furniture and housewares. Hire maybe two more employees,” dreams Madsen.

With deep connections to community, award-winning recognition, and a load of loyal customers, hopefully those ‘maybe someday’s’ will come sooner than she thinks.

Commitment to affordable kid's clothes has been a big driver of the store's success.

Thrifty Sisters' commitment long list of discounts helped embed them in the community.

Tsunamis

What to do to be prepared

Know your evacuation routes: Whether you’re at home, work, or visiting the coast, familiarize yourself with local tsunami evacuation routes. Maps are often posted in coastal areas or can be found online using the DOGAMI/ NANOOS Tsunami Evacuation Zones

Sign up for emergency alerts: Stay informed by subscribing to alerts at ORalert.gov for emergency notifications tied to your zip code—including earthquake and tsunami alerts. And turn on the Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) on your phone, so you will receive alerts based on where your phone is located (important if you are visiting the coast).

Create a go kit: Prepare a portable emergency kit with essentials such as food, water, medications, and personal documents.

Review your emergency plan: Ensure everyone in your household knows what to do during an earthquake or tsunami, including where to meet and how to communicate if separated. You can learn more about emergency planning with the free Be2WeeksReady Toolkit.

For travelers

Check Travel Conditions:

If traveling, visit www.tripcheck.com for real-time road conditions in Oregon.

Neighboring States: If your travel extends to California or Washington, check their Department of Transportation websites for updates: Travel | Caltrans, Travel Center Map | WSDOT.

DOGAMI encourages coastal residents and visitors to use this event as a reminder to stay informed about tsunami hazards and to practice evacuation drills regularly. DOGAMI provides additional information about tsunami preparedness at the Oregon Tsunami Clearinghouse. OPRD recommends exploring Oregon’s beautiful coast safely by always being prepared for emergencies.

Pre Track Club athletes are All-Americans

JOHN GUNTHER
For the World

Two members of the Pre-fontaine Track Club became All-Americans in multiple seasons by placing in the high jump at the recent Junior Olympics National Meet in Georgia.

Both Paige Johnson and Logan Vinyard placed in the high jump in the 11-12 age group.

Johnson is now a three-time All-American, having also placed in both the high jump and triathlon two years ago.

Vinyard placed in the high jump for the second straight year.

Competing on the final day of the event, Johnson placed sixth among the girls, clearing 4 feet, 5 1/2 inches, which was a new personal best. She cleared the first four heights on her first attempt before missing three tries at 4-7 1/2.

Penn Vergil was one of three girls to clear 4-11 1/2 and won based on fewer misses.

Johnson also competed in the 80-meter hurdles at the national event, but did not make it out of the preliminary rounds. She placed 41st with a time of 16.16 seconds.

Johnson, who lives in Bandon, noted that she was proud of her accomplishments and the effort it took.

“Success doesn’t come easy,”

she said. “It takes lots of sacrifices.”

For Johnson, that has meant skipping hometown events for the Fourth of July, her favorite holiday, to compete in state or regional meets, and not being able to show her horse at the Coos County Fair with her 4H club because of the national meet.

Vinyard placed fifth in the high jump for the boys, with a clearance of 4-8 1/4. Jared Fry cleared 5-2 1/4 to win the event.

Vinyard cleared his first three heights on his first try, needed two attempts to get over 4-6 1/4 and got over 4-8 1/4 on his first attempt. He went out when the bar was at 4-10 1/4.

“After I didn’t make the opening height two years ago at Hayward Field, it was heart-breaking, but seeing my twin brother Cooper get a medal was awesome and made me proud,” he said. “I have learned a lot since then and put in a lot of time and dedication to get better. I’m glad that I have made the podium two years in a row and would love to secure a national title next year.”

He also finished 27th in the shot put, his best mark of 28-9 coming on his first attempt.

Cooper Vinyard also competed in the high jump at the national meet again, placing 14th by clearing 4-4 1/4.

Prefontaine Track Club members, Paige Johnson and Logan Vinyard placed in the high jump in the 11-12 age group recently at a Junior Olympics National Meet in Gorgia.

The athletes competed in temperatures around 100 degrees and several of the events had their start times changed because of the heat.

Johnson and the Vinyard twins are all 11 years old, in the lower half of their age group.

Kennon qualifies for PGA event

JOHN GUNTHER
For the World

Former Bandon golfer Scotty Kennon competed in his first PGA Tour event last weekend in North Carolina.

Kennon was a Monday qualifier for the Wyndham Championship and nearly made the cut in the tournament.

Kennon finished the two rounds at even par. He shot a 2-under 68 in the first round, which included three birdies and an eagle at Sedgewild Country Club in Greensboro, N.C.

He was 1-under in his second round Friday when action was suspended for the day due to thunderstorms. He added another birdie on Saturday morning and was under the cut line before he had two double bogeys in a five-hole stretch that cost him a chance to play the final two rounds.

In the Monday qualifier, played at the Bermuda Run Country Club’s East Course, Kennon shot a 6-under 65 to join three others in qualifying for the main tournament.

Kennon helped Bandon win its first state title when he was a freshman, but then transferred to an academy in Florida for the rest of his high school career.

He played his college career at Wake Forest University, two times earning all-ACC honors, including this year. This spring, he was No. 27 in the PGA Tour University rankings and had five top-10 finishes.

Kennon also won two college tournaments, the 2024 Calusa Cup and the Furman Invitational last fall.

Bandon golfers play in national invite

JOHN GUNTHER
For the World

Bandon High School’s golf team competed in the recent PGA High School National invitational at Pinehurst Resort in North Carolina.

Bandon, playing without Sevren Quinn, one of its top players, finished 50th out of 55 squads. Quinn was in Texas playing in the U.S. Junior Amateur.

The tournament was played over three different courses at Pinehurst, the No. 5, 6 and 8 courses.

The Tigers shot 319 on No. 5, 320 on No. 8 and 332 on No. 6 for a total of 107-over par.

Peyton Simonds led Bandon with a three-day total of 14-over. His scores for the rounds were 72, 78 and 80. He tied for 135th.

Braedon Millhouser tied for 182nd at 20-over after a strong final round moved him up 21 spots. His rounds were 81, 80 and 75.

Jackson Simonds was one spot behind Millhouser at 21-over with rounds of 78, 77 and 82.

Bandon’s fourth player, Trask Wehner finished 286th at 52-over. His rounds were 88, 85 and 95.

The Tigers were invited to participate in the tournament after winning their second straight Class 3A-2A-1A state title, with the best score of any of the classifications.

Davis Hartwell of Crosspoint Christian in Klamath Falls, who won the Class

3A-2A-1A state title this spring, tied for 10th at 6-under. He finished second in the same event last year.

A team from Virginia won the event with a total of minus-13 over three rounds.

Teams from North Carolina and Utah finished at 4-under.

Rory Aselta of New Jersey was the individual champion, shooting 16-under over the three days. He was one shot better than Jake Albert of New Jersey.

Quinn competes in U.S. Junior Amateur

JOHN GUNTHER
For the World

Bandon High School student Sevren Quinn missed the cut at the U.S. Junior Amateur last week in Dallas, Texas.

It was the junior-to-be’s first time in the tournament that brings together many of the top junior golfers from the United States and around the world.

Quinn qualified for the event by beating North Bend’s Owen Bascom in the championship match of the recent Oregon Amateur.

Quinn, who helped Bandon to its second straight high school state title in May, finished at 13-over in his two qualifying rounds, shooting a 5-over 76 on the Trinity Forest Golf Club course and an 8-over 78 on the Brook Hollow Golf Club course.

The top 64 players out of 264 from the two rounds of qualifying advanced to the match play portion of the bracket, and needed a total of 3-over or better to advance.

The eventual winner of the tournament was Hamilton Coleman of Augusta, Ga., who won six matches to take the title, beating Minh Nguyen of Vietnam 2 and 1 in the 36-hole final at Trinity Forest.

Amazingly, Coleman’s opening match, his closest, lasted 25 holes. Coleman and Isaiah Igo of Texas were tied after a birdie by Igo on the 14th hole and then halved 10 holes in a row until Coleman won the match with a par on the seventh extra hole. Igo had won the same hole with a par much earlier in the match.

Coleman never played the 18th hole again, except in the first round of the 36-hole final.

Coleman went on to win his next four matches 4 and 3, 2 and 1, 2 and 1 and 5 and 4 before the final match.

The 2022 U.S. Junior Amateur was held at Bandon Dunes Golf Resort and the tournament returns to Bandon Dunes in 2045. It next will be in Oregon in 2036 when it will be held at Crosswater in Sunriver. Next year’s event will be at Saucon Valley Country Club in Bethlehem, Pa.

Circle the Bay is on Saturday

JOHN GUNTHER
For the World

The annual Circle the Bay road race is Saturday, Aug. 9.

Runners and walkers will be traveling 30 kilometers (18.6 miles) around the waters of Coos Bay, starting and ending at Ferry Road Park in North Bend.

Walkers begin at 6:30 a.m. and runners start at 8 a.m. People can compete either as individuals or part of a three-person relay team.

The route takes participants from Ferry Road Park through North Bend and Coos Bay along U.S. Highway 101 and then through Eastside and out the Coos River Highway to Chandler Bridge, where they turn onto East Bay Drive. The race finishes with the historic McCullough Bridge and the return to Ferry Road Park.

Drivers should be wary of runners and walkers along the Coos River Highway and East Bay Drive.

There is still time for participants to sign up, though the deadline to get a T-shirt with registration has passed.

The entry fee is $75 for individuals or $225 for relay teams and includes a post-race barbecue lunch for all participants and volunteers. People can be individuals for the entire race and run the first leg for a relay team.

For more information or to register, visit www.south-coastrunningclub.org.

Chance to comment on fishing regulations

ODFW
Newsroom

ODFW will be proposing several changes to next year’s Sport Fishing Regulations. The Commission will adopt 2026 regulations at their Sept. 12 meeting in Ontario.

Major staff proposals for changes include:

Allowing spearfishing for bass and walleye in more rivers and streams: Spearfishing is a popular alternative fishing method and the public has been requesting expanded opportunity. The change could also potentially help reduce impacts of bass and walleye on native fish.

Clarifying bag limits for kokanee: Currently, kokanee are considered trout and counted as part of the trout bag limit which can be confusing. The new bag limit would be a standard 10 kokanee per day (in addition to trout limits), no size limit, open all year, unless noted under Exceptions.

Making the coho seasons in the upper Willamette Basin permanent: There have been large coho runs above Willamette Falls the last few years, allowing for fishing seasons to be adopted under temporary rule. Moving forward, coho fishing would be open in the mainstem and some tributaries under permanent regulations with season dates (Oct. 1-Dec. 31) to protect spring Chinook and winter steelhead.

Anglers and others interested have several options to provide comments or feedback:

Send an email to odfw.

sportfishingregulations@odfw.oregon.gov These comments will be shared with the Fish and Wildlife Commission in advance of their decision.

Comment via this form on the Rulemaking page at odfw.com

Sign up to testify in person or remotely at the Sept. 12 Commission meeting. A sign up link will be available approximately two weeks prior to the meeting on the Commission web page, and you must register no later than 48 hours in advance of the meeting (by Sept. 10 at 8 a.m.)

Under a new policy meant to streamline regulations, ODFW solicits input for changes to fishing regulations every other year. The 2027 Sport Fishing Regulations should be similar to whatever is adopted for 2026. However, ODFW takes suggestions throughout the year. Anglers and others should contact their local district fish biologist to discuss or propose regulation changes.

Coquille Tibe and ODFW Announce Proposal for First Coquille River Chinook Fishery in Four Years

By NATE SCHWARTZ
Editor

On July 31, representatives from the Coquille Tribe and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW) came together to announce that their co-management of salmon populations in the Coquille River has been a major success. In front of a who’s-who of local politics at the mouth of the Coquille in Bandon, they announced that a proposal for Chinook fishing would be submitted to the wildlife commission. Thanks to restoration efforts led by the two organizations, hatchery performance is finally up to a level suitable for harvesting for the first time since 2021. After worries that extinction was on the horizon, the tribe and ODFW came together in a co-management agreement that saw huge resources dedicated to preserving Coho and Chinook salmon, which have been a cultural cornerstone of tribal life for millennia. “Hearing those numbers and talking about the possibility of extinction of our salmon on the Coquille River, we started thinking about our salmon ceremonies that would never happen again,” Tribal Chair Brenda Meade told the World. “That we would never be able to teach our young people about that ceremony, and about how important those fish are. They’re our relatives and we’ve relied on them for tens of thousands of years.” “If you ever come to a tribal gathering of Coquille People you will see salmon filets on those sticks. It is everything we are for the health and wellbeing of our people, and the thoughts that our elders would never have those salmon again was significant. Its not just salmon, it’s all the work that goes into it too.” The threat really was that dire, due to changing environmental factors and a large influx in invasive smallmouth bass which feed on juvenile salmon populations of adult salmon returning to the hatcheries was down to the triple digits after previously averaging in the tens of thousands. This existential threat called for the collaboration celebrated that morning in front of

Hoyle, Wyden, Merkley: Federal disaster relief coming to Southern Oregon Flooding Recovery

From the Oregon Delegation

EUGENE, OR – Oregon’s U.S. Representative Val Hoyle (OR-04) and U.S. Senators Ron Wyden and Jeff Merkley welcome the approval of Oregon Governor Tina Kotek’s request for a Major Disaster Declaration from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in response to devastating flooding and other damaging weather-related events that severely impacted Coos, Curry, and Douglas counties in March. The wide-ranging weather between March 13 and March 20, 2025 triggered several incidents from the South Coast to Eastern Oregon, as warm rains led to rapid snowmelt that contributed to severe runoff and erosion. Three rivers reached major flood levels, and wind gusts of over 45 miles per hour caused power outages and blocked roads. To help impacted communities recover from this disaster, the Oregon lawmakers wrote a letter to the White House in support of the Governor’s request for a Major Disaster Declaration. President Trump granted her request for Public Assistance (PA) for Coos, Curry, and Douglas counties. “The impacts the severe flooding had on both the physical and social infrastructure in Southern Oregon have been devastating,” said the Oregon lawmakers. “We are grateful the President saw the urgency and immense need of the Governor’s request for federal aid for Coos, Curry, and Douglas counties. This assistance we supported is critical to ensure state, local, and Tribal governments have federal resources needed to help Oregonians recover from this destructive natural disaster.” The Major Disaster Declaration in PA approved for Coos, Curry, and Douglas counties now unlocks federal funding from FEMA for state, Tribal, and eligible local governments and certain private nonprofit organizations on a cost-sharing basis to address damages sustained from flooding, landslides, mudslides, and other impacts during the storms. The Oregon lawmakers’ request for FEMA to provide support to eligible individuals and households in Coos, Curry, and Douglas counties through the Individual Assistance (IA) program remains under review. Additionally, the White House is still weighing the Oregon lawmakers’ request to make the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program (HMGP) available to help communities in the three countries rebuild in a way that mitigates future disaster losses.

The police blotter is a public record of incidents as reported by law-enforcement agencies. All individuals arrested or charged with a crime are innocent until proven guilty. The information printed is preliminary and subject to change.

Dale Quincy Snyder

October 31, 1948 – June 28, 2025

Dale Q. Snyder, 76, of North Bend, passed away peacefully at his home in North Bend on June 28, 2025. A private family gathering was held to celebrate his life.

Dale Quincy Snyder was born on October 31, 1948 in Billings, Montana, to Arnold and Gladys Snyder. His lifelong passion for music began at the age of eight, when his mother introduced him to the school band program. From that moment on, drumming became the rhythm of his life. With encouragement and instruction from Detroit-based professional, Len Droste, and relentless practice, Dale quickly rose to become the best drummer in his school. At the age of twelve he received his first drum set, and by thirteen he was playing occasional gigs at the local country club. By the age of fourteen he was earning money performing at the Eagles Club, and by fifteen he was self sufficient, with his musical talent paving his way. In his junior year of high school, Dale spent a summer in Sheridan, Wyoming, performing at the historic Sheridan Inn. He returned home to finish school while juggling up to eight professional gigs a week. After high school, his musical journey took him to Springfield, Oregon, where he played in a trio, and then to Portland, where he joined Bob Blum’s four-piece band. With Blum’s group, Dale toured extensively, including a notable stint at the Golden Nugget in Las Vegas, where he performed alongside country artist Freddie Hart, best known for the hit song, Easy Loving. The band later toured Alaska for seven months before heading to a warmer destination of Goldendale, Washington. While there, Dale enrolled in junior college and began working for Johnny Foster, who had recently acquired a recording studio. Dale’s band became the house band, touring across several states before eventually returning to Portland. He then joined a new trio with Doug Atwel and Ira Allen, touring for nearly a year before settling back in Portland and joining the Billie Raye Group.

It was during the formative period that Dale met his future wife, Judy Jensen. After two years, they married and remodeled a home together in Portland, welcoming their son Will. Will’s first birthday was celebrated in North Bend, Oregon, as the young couple wanted to leave the city for a smaller town and be close to Judy’s extensive family. Judy became a teacher and school administrator, while Dale explored several career paths before ultimately finding fulfillment as a building contractor. One of his proudest achievements was the beautiful home he and Judy designed and built together in North Bend.

Though Dale found success in a variety of fields, music always remained his true passion. He continued to perform throughout his life, on stage at the Little Theater on the Bay, with the Bay Area Concert Band, and with numerous local musicians, some well-known. His dedication to the craft extended to helping young musicians attain their goals. Reflecting on his journey, Dale often said he had lived a wonderful life. For him, the heart of that life was simple and profound: family and music. These two passions defined him, brought him joy, and left a lasting legacy.

Dale is survived by his wife, Judy; son, Will and his wife May; sister, Jan Celar; nephew, Jason Houser and his wife Brandi; and many cousins, nieces and nephews as well as a number of Jensen relatives.

Friends and family are encouraged to sign the online guestbook at www.coosbayareafunerals.com and www.theworldlink.com. Arrangements are under the care of North Bend Chapel, 541-756-0440.

Doris Forcia

December 23, 1937 – July 22, 2025

Doris June was the Christmas gift that came early to Kenneth and Minola Horn in Eugene, OR. She had an active coastal childhood and earned her diploma from Siuslaw HS in 1955. She, from a long line of prolific letter writers and with her tiny, neat script, maintained life-long bonds with her classmates and will be missed at their upcoming 70th class reunion.

After graduating from the inaugural class of Lane CC she had a long and fulfilling career as a home health care nurse, primarily in the west Lane County area, building meaningful relationships with generations of co-workers and those for whom she provided care.

Her marriage to John Knutson in 1956 blessed her with two children who provided her with a lifetime of entertainment, challenges, and love.

She was spirited, cheeky and sporty. Specifically playing tennis and volleyball well enough to continue to be competitive against opponents far her junior well into her mature years. She was a lover of the water, working at the Veneta pool, snorkeling, combing miles of sand for treasures, and a tan-skinned sun worshiper.

During her 40-year marriage to James (Jim) Forcia he indulged her call to the beach, locally as well as yearly trips to Hawai’i. They shared a love of athletics, traveling for events and holding season tickets to multiple venues, and were a staple at Autzen from the start - Go DUCKS! She also came to share his interest in mining and lived part-time at the off-grid mining cabin he built on a claim near Wolf Creek and the ghost town of Golden, until the end.

Nothing ever kept her down or held her back for long. She sought out and enjoyed the fellowship of the church congregations she became a part of in whatever community she found herself. She overcame any health challenges and lived independently: passing the time watching sports, playing cards and working puzzles, and keeping up with her grandchildren, Mindy Fairchild and Travis Elam, their spouses and the great-grandchildren, of whom she was so proud. She especially appreciated and relied on her friends from her bowling league in North Bend for companionship and social engagement.

Her last of countless beach walks before a final battle with Pancreatic cancer were spent near her home in beautiful Bandon by the Sea.

She was preceeded in death by her son, Kenneth Knutson, both of her loving husbands, as well as her parents, and sister Diane Blair. She is survived by her devoted daughter Karmen Rayevich and her younger sister Donna Parsons. She also had many, many step, ex partner’s, 1/2 siblings, etc. “Relatives” that a modern family brings into one’s life. She was able to disregard awkwardness and cared deeply for them all and treated them the same as her blood family.

There will be a graveside service at Sailor Cemetery in Noti OR, Friday, August 15th at 6PM.

As I See It

in Bandon. He has been fishing for 80 years (since he was four years old). This memoir is emotionally honest, very detailed about fishing, and informative about so many kinds of fish. Fishermen will relate, and people who don’t actually fish but enjoy human-interest stories and nature will enjoy this book. What makes this book come alive is that it includes over 100 photos, most of which are in color. Jim shared a copy with me, and it’s a fun read.

I read a very sad story on Facebook Sunday, but it was even more of a learning experience as I did not know that deer were dangerous. It appears that a deer jumped a fence in Myrtle Point and ultimately killed two darling little dogs. I say ultimately because one was badly injured and the owners spent several hours trying to find a veterinarian to care for it, and ended up driving to the Roseburg area where they were welcomed by Bailey Veterinary Clinic. Sadly, it was too late, but they were thankful for the care that was shown to them and their fur baby.

Major Joan Jean Craddock

January 25, 1936 - July 18, 2025

Major Joan Jean Craddock, a retired and deeply devoted Salvation Army officer, was peacefully promoted to Glory on July 18, 2025, in Coos Bay, Oregon, at the age of 89.

Born on January 25, 1936, in Impact, Washington, to Clarence and Marguerite Kilgore, Joan was the sixth of eight children. From an early age, she embraced a life of faith and service, dedicating her heart and ministry to The Salvation Army.

Major Joan Craddock entered officership in 1956 and faithfully served the Lord and others through numerous appointments across the Western United States. While serving in one of her earliest postings in Billings, Montana, she met and later married fellow Salvation Army officer, Major Rodger Craddock. Together, they formed a remarkable ministry team, known for their compassion, commitment, and unwavering dedication to serving others until Major Rodger's passing in 1989.

Throughout her life, Major Joan remained a steadfast servant leader, touching countless lives with her wisdom, strength, and gentle spirit. Her ministry was marked by deep empathy and enduring love—always centered on glorifying God and lifting up those in need.

She was preceded in death by her parents, all of her siblings, her beloved husband Rodger, and her daughter Donna Farfan.

She is survived by her children, Rodger Craddock (Dena), Robert Craddock (Sondra), and Darlene Stapleford (John); eight grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren—all of whom were blessed by her love, guidance, and legacy of faith.

A Celebration of Life service will be held at The Salvation Army church in Coos Bay, located at 1155 Flanagan Avenue, on Saturday, August 16 at 1:00 p.m. A graveside service will follow on Saturday, September 6, 2025, at Sunset Memorial Park in Eureka, California, beginning at 1:00 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to The Salvation Army in honor of Major Joan's lifelong commitment to serving God and others.

“Well done, good and faithful servant...”

Donald Morris

December 21, 1934 - July 15, 2025

Mr. Donald “Don” Keith Morris, aged 90, of Beaverton, Oregon, passed away on Tuesday, July 15, 2025. Don was born on December 21, 1934, at home, in Bandon, Oregon to parents Arthur Willard Morris and Geneta Emily (Alsup) Morris.

Don worked for Weyerhaeuser Timber Company for 45 years, starting his first job there when he turned 17. He spent 38 of those years working as a saw filer just like his father and grandfather. During his life Don was a bit of an entrepreneur: as a boy he ran a paper route and picked berries to sell to local restaurants. As he got older, he worked with his father and brothers on a rototilling business. As an adult he started a drapery/upholstery business and ran a fumigation business. He was an avid car and motorcycle fan and regularly fixed and traded cars. By his own account, he owned more than 100 cars in his lifetime!

During the 50's Don was President of the sport car club called the BRATS (Bay Rally and Touring Society). In the 60's Don was a member of Little Theatre on the Bay. During the 70s he joined Parents without Partners where he met his third wife Karel and several lifelong friends. During the 80s Don and Karel took up square dancing with Skyloft Squares in North Bend. They danced in every corner of the state and held state offices in the OSSDA (Oregon State Square Dance Association). Don served five terms as the state historian for OSSDA. In the 90s Don took up golf and Don and Karel started taking their RV to Arizona during the winter months. Don retired in 1997 and would be the first to tell you that he didn't know how he ever had time to work.

When asked, Don would say that he was most proud of his kids and his blended family. Don married Ardis Joan Wilch in 1957. Together they had son Howard and daughters Tracey LeeAnn and Lori. Don married Jo Ann Britton in 1969. They had daughters Kathryn, Heidi, and Samantha. Don married Karel Collins in 1977. They had two sons Jeff and Brian. Don and Karel remained married until Karel passed in 2021. Even though he moved to Beaverton, Oregon to be closer to family in 2021 he still called North Bend ‘home’. Don passed away with his children at his side. He will be missed by his large family who hope he is now doing a bit better than “fair to middling.”

Don is survived by: brother Steve (Coralee) Morris and sister-in-law Lois Morris; sons Howard (Mary) Morris, Jeff Collins, and Brian (Amalia) Collins, daughters Lori (Jim) Esget, Samantha (Herman) Scales, Kathryn Marshall and Heidi Marshall; grandsons Benjamin Esget, Cody Morris, Logan Morris, Eric Acocella, Charles Scales and granddaughter Victoria Scales; great-granddaughter Audrey Acocella; great-grandsons Ethan Esget, Mitchell Esget and Eli Acocella.

Don is preceded by his parents Arthur and Geneta Morris, wife Karel Ann Morris, brother Marvin Morris, and daughter Tracey LeeAnn Morris.

A private interment will be held at Civil Bend Cemetery in Winston, Oregon this fall.

If you wish to make a donation in memory of Don, please consider a contribution to First Christian Church of North Bend where Don was a member for many years. (First Christian Church, 2420 Sherman Ave, North Bend, OR 97459).

Chinook Fishery

the Coquille.

“We needed to act after the Coquille River reached a tipping point a few years ago with the drastic decline of wild Chinook from an average of about 10,000 returning adults to just 300 in 2019 due to low flows, warming river temperatures and invasive predators,” said ODFW Director Debbie Colbert. “The situation called for an all-out effort to pull Coquille River’s salmon and fishing opportunities back from the brink.”

• In addition to a broader effort toward brood collection to help spawn more hatchery fish, ODFW and the tribe took to the river on a near-daily basis to make efforts in multiple areas for restoration and removal of invasive species. ODFW released this list of efforts conducted over the last four years in addition to the increased load handled by the Ferry Creek hatchery. Habitat restoration and protection: Collaborative projects between the Tribe, ODFW, SWCD in Coos County and other partners using federal and other grant funds to improve fish passage and restore habitat.

• Electrofishing to remove small-mouth bass: Nearly 40,000 smallmouth bass have been removed from the Coquille River.

• Conservation hatchery program: An additional hatchery program to supplement the wild population is underway, rearing some fish at Elk River Hatchery and releasing them in the upper basin at a size and time when they are less vulnerable to smallmouth bass.

• Experimental hatchboxes: Unfed fry are being released from hatchboxes (aka streamside incubators) at several locations with genetic sampling of adult returns planned to help determine the experimental program’s effectiveness.

Thanks to those efforts, Chinook and Coho levels were able to hit milestones that were necessary before opening up harvesting again. In 2022, hatchery number improved significantly and now those three-year-old, harvestable fish are expected to be returning in the thousands, ready for local fisherman and tribal members to take advantage of.

“This will be for hatchery fish, that’ll be the harvest opportunity for Chinook.

In 2022, our hatchery releases hit our production level goals and they hadn’t been for several years prior to that, mostly because we couldn’t get brood due to the low wild returns,” explained Umpqua District Biologist Greg Huchko. “Now we feel confident that we’ve got the numbers coming back, which will afford that opportunity for everyone.”

“Really, the partnership with the tribe, getting more volunteers and more concerted effort, we were able to get a lot more brood stock at Ferry Creek, which is below [Highway] 101.”

Should the proposal be accepted by the state fish and wildlife commission during hearings on Aug. 15 and Sept. 12, it would create a “Hot Zone” or Harvest Opportunity Zone and anglers would be able to take home the first Chinook in years based on the following regulations:

• Open for salmon fishing Sept. 13-Oct. 15 from the Hwy 101 bridge upstream to the Hwy 42S Sturdivant Park Bridge near the town of Coquille

• Daily bag limit of two adult salmon (hatchery Chinook and wild coho only, but only one may be a wild coho) and a season limit of 3 wild coho

The World will announce the results of those proposals following those hearings so stay tuned for more information in the coming months.

“I’m thrilled we can celebrate this positive step in the right direction,” Colbert concluded. “I hope the collective efforts of the Tribe, ODFW and volunteers bring more results for salmon in the future, including for wild runs which remain very low.”

Wind Energy

future wind development steps off the Oregon coast by BOEM until Oregon develops its Offshore Wind Road Map.

“The federal government owes the people of the Oregon coast the due diligence required to ensure that these turbines won’t disrupt both our coastal economy and its ecology,” Gomberg told KOIN. “The Coastal Caucus stands in firm opposition to lease auctions at this time.”

The Confederated Tribes of Coos Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians said the acreage in the proposal is within the tribe’s ancestral territory and are important areas for tribal fishing.

“The tribe has consistently urged that BOEM delay moving forward with wind energy development until a better understanding is made of the impacts to fish, wildlife, the marine environment, and cultural resources important to the tribe,” Tribal Council Chair Brad Kneaper said in a release. “No one, including BOEM, has an understanding on how wind development will impact the fragile marine environment.”

Amid mounting opposition to offshore wind development off the coast of Oregon, the federal government announced Friday, Sept. 27, 2024, it was delaying the planned auction for the development of two wind energy sites as Gov. Tina Kotek urged the federal agency to halt all leasing plans and stop the auction, according to an Oregon Capital Chronicle report.

“The developments call into question the potential for future development of offshore wind energy off the Oregon coast. The state’s coastal communities, seafood industry and tribes fiercely opposed the federal agency’s plans, which concerned the governor,” the Oregon Capital Chronicle report stated.
