Strengthening a Tradition: Christmas on Main in North Bend

BY NATE SCHWARTZ

Traditions start somewhere, and North Bend's Christmas on Main celebration seems to be here to stay after another successful iteration of the event saw hundreds of residents out to soak up some holiday cheer. The town's famous July Jubilee, which has been a staple of the community's summer time has gained a seasonal sister come December in the last four years.

"This is really just the beginning of these Hallmark-style movie events. We've always been known for our July Jubilee, and now I feel like this has become one of the other most anticipated events. This is our Winter Jubilee, so to speak," said North Bend Mayor Jessica Engelke. "I love it, and I can't thank the staff enough. There are hours of work that go into it."

The day started with a visit from Santa to the North Bend Fire Department for a waffle breakfast that included free books for kids from the North Bend Library. That same library held a story time with Mrs. Claus shortly after followed by an afternoon of free ice skating at the North Bend Ice Rink. The Cocoa Crawl was a family friendly adaptation of North Bend Main Street's ever-so-popular wine walks, with local businesses dishing out festive treats to visitors.

This all culminated in a block party at Grant Circle which ended with Mayor Engelke and Santa himself lighting the Christmas tree with the help of the July Jubilee Court.

"North Bend is becoming known for these signature events over the last few years," said Engelke. "Its all part of the council's vision to really make this a community hub here, and it's really been evolving. It all ties into our visitor's center, and soon we'll be opening the stage here thanks to the grant from T-Mobile," said Engelke.

The anchor and impetus for the whole celebration remains the Lighted Christmas Parade, which was the first of the traditions to pop up back in 2017 through the Fields family. Penni and Allen "Gator" Fields organized the first parade as a memorial following the tragic loss of their grandson, Magnus, who loved trucks. Gator, who was a truck driver for over 35 years, gathered every fellow trucker he could to try and bring some joy back to the community.

Since then, the city has taken the reigns of the event which has now evolved year-on-year into the full day celebration we celebrate annually, with Grant Circle being the hub for it all.

"It's really become like a town square," said Engelke. "And that's really what Grant Circle should be. What we hope it can

The evening was capped off with a Christmas Opry show at the Liberty Theatre. Between that and their A Charlie Brown Christmas and The Best Christmas Pageant Ever shows the Little Theatre on the Bay have been huge purveyors of holiday joy this year. With the whole of Main Street getting in on the act, it's been hard not to catch the Christmas Spirit in North Bend.

North Bend honors Fire Lt. John Lucero

for 25 years of service

FROM THE CITY OF NORTH BEND

North Bend Fire & Rescue Lt. John Lucero was honored Tuesday night for 25 years of service to the city and its residents during a recognition ceremony at the North Bend City Council meeting.

Fire Chief Jim Brown introduced Lucero and praised his longtime leadership and reliability, recalling a recent rope rescue standby call where Lucero arrived with his young granddaughter, Avery. As firefighters prepared for the incident, Brown said Avery summed up what every fire family understands when duty calls.

"She kept saying, 'Papa's gotta go,' and that's something all of our families know as firefighters," Brown said. "For 25 years, when something happens, he says, 'gotta go,' and everybody understands. We appreciate the dedication he has shown to the city. That's one of the ways he's a great leader."

Brown presented a plaque to Lucero recognizing "25 years of excellence," noting that Lucero's commitment and courage have made "a lasting difference in the lives of his fellow firefighters and the citizens he serves," and that his service reflects the dedication and excellence that define the North Bend Fire Department. Lucero, speaking to the council, his colleagues and family members, said the people around him have made his career meaningful.

"It's been a wonderful career, and what makes it wonderful is, first of all, this family, which is everything to me, and then this family," Lucero said, gesturing to both his relatives and fellow firefighters. "I'm super blessed. I've got the best wife in the world who supports me in everything, and you guys have just been wonderful."

Lucero said one of his favorite parts of the job has been mentoring newer firefighters and watching them advance.

My most favorite thing in the fire service is to work with the younger guys and gals and then watch them move on and start their own careers," he said. "It is wonderful to see. I'm just very blessed to have friends and family that have supported me through everything. So thank you all — and there's more to come."

The council and audience responded with applause in appreciation of Lucero's 25 years of service to North Bend Fire & Rescue and the community it serves.

OHA urges vaccinations

as flu activity rises, holidays approach

OREGON HEALTH AUTHORITY

As influenza activity increases over the next two months before its expected peak in early spring, health officials urge everyone to get their flu vaccine, particularly as people gather indoors to celebrate the holidays.

So far, hospitalizations remain low. But the percentage of positive flu tests is on the rise.

'The flu season generally continues into the spring, which means flu activity will continue to increase for many months," said, at Oregon Health Authority's Public Health Division Medical Director for Communicable Diseases and Immunizations Howard Chiou, M.D., Ph.D., said. "That's why it's never too late to get the flu

Chiou added that getting vaccinated now is especially important.

'People will leave Thanksgiving, not only with leftovers, but also with the flu. It's not too late to get your flu shot, especially before the upcoming holidays," he said. "The flu shot is the best way to help make sure you don't miss out on holiday festivities or get other people sick."

Last year's flu season in Oregon was the worst in the state's recent history. OHA releases the latest information on the flu season in its weekly FluBites report. Information on flu activity can also be found on Oregon's Respiratory Virus Data dashboard.

Flu is a contagious, respiratory tract infection caused by the influenza virus.

Symptoms can include fever, cough, sore throat, stuffy and runny nose, muscle aches, headache and fatigue. It can result in mild to severe illness, including hospitaliza-

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) and the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP) recommend seasonal flu vaccination for everyone ages 6 months or older.

Nearly 1 million people in Oregon have been vaccinated so far this year, which is about 5% lower than at the same time last year. The flu vaccination rate has been in decline for several years.

Certain groups, including older adults, young children, pregnant people and people with certain health conditions, are at higher risk for serious complications from

The hospitalization rate is highest for people ages 65 and older, but flu seasons are unpredictable and even young and healthy people can develop severe disease.

The best way people can protect themselves and others is by getting a flu vaccine every year.

People can get the COVID-19, influenza and RSV vaccines by contacting their health plan, health care provider, county public health clinic or federally qualified health center. Parents and caregivers of children can also search for a clinic by calling 211 or visiting 211info.org.

This video reminds people not to let influenza take us out of the picture this year.

Rescue helicopter will return, remain in Newport, Oregon's US senators say

SHAANTH NANGUNERI Oregon Capital Chronicle

The U.S Coast Guard has promised to indefinitely return a life-saving rescue helicopter to its facility at Newport's Municipal Airport, Oregon's two U.S. senators said Thursday, Dec. 4, capping weeks of angst in the town ahead of a dangerous crab fishing season.

The U.S. Coast Guard removed the helicopter in late October with no public explanation from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security for why it was relocated to a North Bend Coast Guard facility nearly 70 miles away.

U.S. Sen. Ron Wyden, Rep. Val Hoyle and local officials have all previously said they were trying to find out why the helicopter was removed amid speculation that the Trump administration could be repurposing the site for Oregon's first long-term immigration detention facility

Wyden told reporters on Nov. 23 that a Coast Guard representative had given him unsatisfactory answers attributing the change in facility operations to a lack of adequate staffing. On Thursday, he shared on X that the Coast Guard had reversed course.

"This is a big win to keep fishermen as well as Oregonians and tourists visiting the Newport area safe when they are enjoying the Pacific Ocean," Wyden said in a statement Thursday. "I'll keep watchdogging this Coast Guard commitment and battling against any move by the Trump administration to site an ICE detention facility in Newport or anywhere else on the Oregon Coast."

The homeland security department and U.S. Coast Guard did not immediately respond to a request for comment Thursday.

The helicopter's removal quickly sparked opposition from residents. The coastal city of Newport is home to Oregon's largest commercial fishing industry, with cold and rough waters occupying the Yaquina Bay. Both the state of Oregon and the local nonprofit Newport Fishermen's Wives alongside Lincoln County sued for the return of the federal helicopter, arguing that the federal government failed to comply with federal law requiring transparency on such decisions.

U.S. District Judge Ann Aiken handed the nonprofit and Lincoln County a victory on Nov. 24 with a temporary 14-day restraining order that mandated the helicopter's return. The next day, John Fuller, a city spokesperson, confirmed that a rescue helicopter had landed for refueling, but he was unable to say whether it was remaining at the Newport airport on a more long-term basis

U.S. Sen. Jeff Merkley also confirmed the helicopter's return, adding that he had arranged a meeting with a representative of the U.S. Coast Guard and Wyden. He said a member of the homeland security department in attendance gave "full backup" to the Coast Guard's statement.

"The acting commandant assured me that they had returned the helicopter because of the court action, but they had intended to return it by the start of crab season anyway, and it was back in Newport to stay," he said in a video statement posted on X.

The announcement from Wyden and Merkley comes as lawyers for the state of Oregon, Lincoln County and Newport Fishermen's Wives have filed for a preliminary injunction seeking for a rescue helicopter to stay at Newport's facility with full operational and staffing support necessary. The two cases have been consolidated, with discovery yielding a June 2025 memorandum and October 2025 extension authorizing removal of the helicopter from Newport by U.S. Coast Guard Rear Admiral Charles E. Fosse.

"There is no question that the Coast Guard's removal of the Newport helicopter, undertaken in secrecy without any public or congressional vetting whatsoever, is exactly what Congress intended to prevent," wrote attorneys for the Newport Fishermen's Wives and Lincoln County in a Thursday court filing.

It's not the first time Newport residents kicked into action when their helicopter faced removal. When the Obama administration proposed closing the city's Coast Guard facility in 2014, the Fishermen's Wives nonprofit sued in federal court. Congress ended up passing a law that requires notice and explanation from the homeland security department should a reduction in Coast Guard facility activity take place.

"The ocean can turn on a person in half a minute," Newport Mayor Jan Kaplan said in a court declaration. "It is not a matter of if the helicopter will be needed, but when, and whether or not it will arrive in time to save a life."

The Chamber Minute

BY ROSEY THOMAS

First Week of December already, and that brings up a few topics, such as Last Chance to be in our Next Community Profile & Directory. Get your ads current and the information for your Chamber Members listing corrected before we go to print. Each February we receive 5000 copies to distribute, so this is your last reminder to get information to Jolene by the end of the week. And, if you're on the fence about joining the Chamber, now is the time so you can be listed in next year's directory!

Don't forget to NOMINATE someone today for Business & Citizen of the Year. December 31 is the DEADLINE! You can find the forms on Oregonsbayarea.org, please take the time to nominate those that are deserving.

Wednesday Business Connection Luncheon on December 17 will be Shon Schooler about the South Lough Estuary and information about the Green Crab invasion! You won't want to miss that program at Ko-Kwel Resort 11:30am.

Wednesday Business Connection is cancelled on December 24th & 31st for the Holidays, so Enjoy your families and friends and have a wonderful Holiday from Team ROJO and Bay Area Chamber of Commerce! We are so thankful for our members and look forward to serving you in the New Year!

Oregon State Parks will host Winter Whale Watch Week along the Oregon Coast

Trained Oregon State Park volunteers will be stationed at 14 sites along the Oregon Coast from 10 AM to 1 PM, Saturday, Dec. 27 through Wednesday, Dec. 31, to help visitors spot gray whales on their southward migration to the calving lagoons in Mexico. The sites are some of the best places to watch for whales on the Oregon Coast. A map of volunteer-staffed sites is available online at the official event webpage.

Coos County sites include Shore Acres State Park in Charleston, the Face Rock Scenic Overlook in Bandon, and the Umpqua Lighthouse.

This is a great time to see one of the world's longest migrations, as the gray whales are traveling by our coastline," said Park Ranger Peter McBride.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) announced an end to an Unusual Mortality Event impacting gray whales in 2023 when it looked like the population was rebounding. But since then, the population has declined to its lowest level since the 1970s.

NOAA now estimates about 13,000 gray whales along the West Coast.

Winter Whale Watch Week provides an opportunity to see not only the gray whales but other coastal wildlife including birds and other marine mammals with help from trained volunteers and park

All Whale Watch Week visitors are encouraged to dress for the weather, to bring binoculars and to follow beach safety guidelines such as remaining out of fenced areas, knowing the tide schedule and always keeping an eye on the surf.
For a list of safety tips go to: https:// visittheoregongoast.com/beach.safety/

visittheoregoncoast.com/beach-safety/ For more information about coast parks and campgrounds, visit: https://stateparks. oregon.gov/

Visitors are encouraged to share their photos and videos from Winter Whale Watch on social media using #ORWhaleWatch.

As I See It

By Mary Schamehorn

This week I am going to share a bit of history about the old Coast Guard building, which is today the property of the Port of Bandon.

In an article from November of 1951, the headline reported on the disposal of the building.

"Ultimate disposal of the fine big U.S. Coast Guard building in Bandon appears to be indefinite at this time, but from all reports 'disestablishment' of the station, recently announced from the district headquarters in Seattle, seems certain. The decision was reached on a basis of 'economy' following a survey hearing held in Bandon sometime last year. The survey team was sent out by the U.S Treasury department.

"Ownership of the building and property, which has been suggested for a hospital, is in doubt, according to reliable information, and acquisition of it, in the event of permanent abandonment, may be difficult. "The deed to a portion of the land on which the station is built was given by the Dyer estate and was used as a boathouse site (first photo) by the U.S. Lifesaving Service, which later became the coast guard. The deed provides that whenever the government ceases to use the property for life-saving purposes, the land, together with improvements, reverts to the original owners. About one-half of the building is on this land; the other half is on land acquired by the government from the Gallier estate (second photo), but without a reversion

"Responsibility for disestablishment of the local station is apparently being dodged by official Washington, according to Congressman Ellsworth, who says the Coast Guard referred him to the Treasury Department and the Treasury Department in turn referred him to the Coast Guard.

A November 1963 article reports that the Coast Guard Station is commissioned.

"The Coquille River Lifeboat Station, (third

Worship - Sat. 11am/Tues. 7pm

photo), which had not been manned for 13 years, was commissioned Tuesday afternoon. Officer in charge will be Wayne Gage, Boatswain's Mate First Class, who has moved with his family into the station's living quarters. He will have charge of the men who will number 13 at full complement, including five petty officers, three of whom are married.

"The local personnel have moved from Port Orford lifeboat station which has been abandoned, with the exception of a boat which has been retained in Port Orford by the Coast Guard." It was pointed out that most of the activity at Port Orford "had included rescue calls for vessels stranded in the ocean, and not for emergency calls from stricken fishing boats, as is most often the case at the local bar. He further said that even when most other bars along the coast, including the Coquille River bar, are impassable, a boat can still be launched at Port Orford, this being the reason for keeping a boat there. If a boat capsizes there, they must have help immediately, while rescue calls from out at sea can usually wait until help arrives."

The Bandon City Council, on a 4-2 vote, established a 120-day moratorium on new vacation rental dwelling permits at the December council meeting. Voting in favor of the motion were Council President Josh Adamson, Madeline Seymour, Bear Slothower, Geri Procetto, with Chris Powell and Archie Garrett voting against the motion. As of November, the City has 63 licensed VRDs. There is currently one application on hold by the Planning Department awaiting ownership transfer. Within the past three months, the Planning Commission approved two conditional use permits for VRDs that existed under previous ownership. VRDs contribute to the City's TOT (Transient Occupancy Tax) revenues, which are allocated to the General and Tourism funds.

In the last fiscal year, TOT revenue from VRDs was $351,585, which was 20.24 percent of the total TOT revenue attributable to VRDs.

In coastal communities like Bandon, VRDs play a role in the availability of housing, as do second homes, which often remain vacant for much of the year. Several years ago, city staff estimated that there may be 400 to 500 second homes in the community.

Two women were taken to the hospital Dec. 1 following a 3 p.m. wreck at Highway 101 and Harlem Avenue. Vehicles involved were a Kia SUV driven by Nancy Harry (no address given) and Laurie Kreutzer of Bandon. Kreutzer was transported to the hospital by ambulance, and the other driver, was taken by private vehicle.

The accident was covered by Sgt. Matt Whitmer. No arrests or citations were issued.

I mentioned last week that a driver had rolled a vehicle in city park recently. Police confirmed that William Fitch, 77, Bandon, rolled his blue Dodge caravan for reasons unknown. It was necessary for Sergeant Noel to break out the window to remove Fitch from the vehicle.

People are reminded that the Lighted Vehicle Parade was held Saturday, Dec. 13, with a nog walk from 3 to 5, and the parade at 5:30, winding its way through Old Town.

Longtime VFW Member and Air Force Veteran Stephen G. Brechfeldt passed away Nov. 23. A Celebration of Life was held at Bandon's First Baptist Church on Dec. 13 at 2 p.m. The Bandon Veterans Honor Guard performed a military gun salute at the service. Attendees were encouraged to wear blue to recognize his time in the Air Force. Survivors include his wife, Donna.

People are reminded that Day Use fees for Oregon parks will double effective Jan. 1. The cost of the 12-month parking permit, good for all state parks, will increase from $30 to $60 for Oregon residents, and to $75 for out-of-state residents. Anyone that buys one before the end of the year will get a year at the old price. The 24-month permit will not be sold in 2026.

Two meetings involving the school district were on tap last week, including Monday night's school board meeting, which was held at the Ocean Crest gym starting at 5:30 p.m. The meeting was to be live streamed on the district's YouTube page and can be accessed at www.bandon. k12.or.us/school-board. The group known as Bandon Schools Deserve Better held a community town hall meeting Wednesday from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Barn/ Community Center in City Park.

They have a website with what is described as a wealth of new letters, documents and updates. The website is www.bsdbetter. org.

I saw a Facebook post from a Coos Bay woman commending County Commissioner John Sweet for stepping up and taking care of a problem for her. She said, "just curious how many people sent their property taxes in the envelope the county provided, then got a late fee when they didn't receive them in time?" What she is referring to is something I wrote about a couple of weeks ago when I discovered that several of the return envelopes had the cellophane window on the wrong side, so when you inserted your payment slip and check, your own address showed up as the address. Many, like me, caught it before we sent in our checks, but not everyone did, which is understandable. I wondered how they would handle it? And why the elections department did not immediately warn people via Facebook or press release when it was discovered.

There is no Meet and Greet this week, and the only one scheduled until February is set for Dec. 16 when the Bandon History Museum will host the event, with local attorney Robin Miller sharing the story of local photographer Susan Dimock and her new book, "Taking Refuge on the Oregon Coast." The program starts at noon at Bandon Fisheries Warehouse.

Coming Events: Concert "Sing We Now of Christmas" presented by Ripple Effect Chorus and Summer Wind Ensemble, Sunday, Dec. 14, 2 p.m. First Presbyterian Church, 592 Edison Avenue SW, free admission, cash donations accepted for Good Neighbors and Food and Faith. I occasionally have people tell me that they have emailed city officials, but have not received a response. After hearing this several times about one staff member, I asked him about it. He assured me he had never received a message from the person, and he immediately called her. If others have used the email contact on the city's website for the planning department or the city manager's office, and did not get a response, I would suggest you use the address jmitchem@bandon-or. gov for our new planning director Jeff Mitchem and tcontreras@bandon-or.us for the city manager. On the other hand, I do not use a city email address, but I can always be reached at marys@coosnet.com for city and personal business, and MSchamehorn@southerncoos.org for hospital business (although I don't monitor that one regularly).

Thomas L. Diefenbaugh

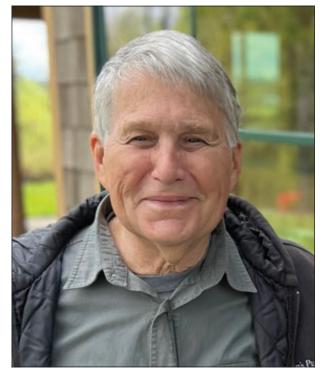

July 27, 1946 - November 20, 2025

Tom Diefenbaugh passed away into the loving arms of Jesus on November 20th, 2025. Anyone who knew him will most likely remember him for his quiet life of service to others. He will be greatly missed by his family, friends, and community. He truly embraced the simplicity of faith in Jesus and would hope that anyone reading would take the same step in their own

Thomas Lynn Diefenbaugh was born on July 27th, 1946, in Ventura, California. He was the oldest of five children and described himself as a pretty shy kid. Growing up, he enjoyed playing football, surfing in Southern California (while listening to the Beach Boys, of course), spending his allowance on RC Cola and M&Ms, and going to his grandparents' house for patio BBQs. After high school, he went to Loyola University for a short time where he studied Civil Engineering. When he was 20, he met Kathleen Burnett while she was driving around the university scouting out cute boys and she spotted Tom. They were wed on July 30th, 1966, and were married for 57 years before her passing in 2023. In 1971, Tom and Kathy had the gospel shared with them at their door by a couple with a local church outreach in Southern California. Kathy accepted Jesus as her savior through that encounter, but Tom described needing a little more time to think about it. He recalled a hunting trip where he tried so hard to do all the right things to get the shot but couldn't even keep his feet quiet in the woods. He said he realized that this correlated to his own life and how he tried so hard to do all the right things but ultimately found he could never do everything perfectly and needed the grace of Jesus. That simple act of faith impacted him and Kathy for the rest of their lives.

They eventually moved their family to North Bend, Oregon where Tom retired from a career as a delivery driver to become a general contractor. He and Kathy had four children. He loved being their dad and was always a wonderful provider for their family. He loved fishing and boating, coaching his kids' soccer teams, hunting, and his volunteer work. Between 1993 and 2025, he went on many, many ministry trips, including taking teens to build and serve at orphanages in Mexico, service trips to Honduras and Cambodia, revitalizing a hospital in Nigeria, flood relief and church construction projects multiple times in Alaska, and hurricane relief construction on an island in the Caribbean called Barbuda. Six of these trips were with Samaritan's Purse International Relief, and others were through his church at Skyline Baptist. He also served with Medical Equipment Supplies and Aid (MESA) for 18 years helping to get medical supplies into 15 African countries, impacting over 4 million people. Locally, he was a beloved AWANA game director for 45 years, he built homes in Coos Bay through Habitat for Humanity, and he volunteered at the Coos County S.T.E.P. fish hatcheries. He was known by so many as an extremely hard worker who just never ran out of energy and enjoyed a little competition! He was beloved for his service, but also beloved by his grandkids and great grandkids who called him Papa Duck (or Ducky) for his impressions of Donald Duck. He loved taking them on "park tours" at different local parks all day and baking them his famous raisin bread. He was a selfless volunteer, a devoted husband of 57 years, a beloved dad, grandpa, great- grandpa, and friend. He is now reunited in Heaven with his dear wife Kathy, and they are rejoicing with Jesus. Tom was preceded in death by his wife, Kathleen Diefenbaugh, grandson, Alec Diefenbaugh, great-grandchildren, Israel and Ember Ward, and his parents, Ardith and Don Diefenbaugh. He is dearly missed by his children, Kristen DeAndrea and husband David, Paul Diefenbaugh and wife Samantha, Scott Diefenbaugh and wife Megan, and Aimee MacHugh and husband Bill, along with his 11 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren. He is survived by his brothers, David Diefenbaugh and Tim Diefenbaugh, and his sisters, Debbie Watts and Michelle Webb.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, January 24th, at 2pm at Skyline Baptist Church (3451 Liberty Street, North Bend, OR 97459) for anyone who would like to attend.

Friends and family are encouraged to sign the online guestbook at www. coosbayareafunerals.com. Arrangements are under the care of North Bend Chapel, 541-756-0440.

Mogan Foundation grant

powers Diesel Technology training at Southwestern

The Judith Ann Mogan Foundation awarded an $80,000 grant to Southwestern Oregon Community College Foundation to support construction of a new Diesel Mechanic Technology building. This investment will help the College expand workforce training for students pursuing careers in diesel mechanics and heavy equipment maintenance.

"For more than a decade, local industry partners have told us they need trained diesel mechanics," said Foundation Chairman Arnie Roblan. "With the right people, at a critical time and with strong business support, we are going to make a local training program a reality.'

That's why the SWOCC Foundation and the College are partnering to raise $1 million to construct the new Diesel Technology building, aiming for completion in fall 2026 on the Coos Bay campus.

Diesel mechanics are in high demand across Oregon. The state projects nearly 430 annual job openings over the next eight years, but training programs graduate only enough newly trained diesel mechanics to fill a third of those jobs. This facility will help close that gap by preparing more students to move into diesel mechanic jobs locally.

The new diesel shop will provide expanded lab and classroom space equipped with industry-standard diagnostic and repair tools. Students will gain practical training in the technologies used by employers in transportation, manufacturing, global trade and natural resource industries across Oregon and the Pacific Northwest.

"The new diesel mechanic program aligns with the Judith Ann Mogan Foundation priority of supporting business and economic development here in the South Coast. The program provides new opportunities for our high school graduates and individuals looking to change careers by training the next generation of mechanics, ensuring longterm availability of these types of services locally," said Executive Director Marjorie Crook.

In September, 30-year diesel industry expert and business owner Terry Cheyne stepped in to lead the program in a temporary shop with 9 students currently enrolled. To support the program and get ready for the new shop, regional businesses have donated more than $200,000 in equipment.

"A lot of people think teaching diesel technology is just about engines. It is much more that - it's about building confidence, skills and a future for every student who walks into my classroom," Cheyne said. "I believe in being straightforward because in this industry, clarity and precision matter.'

The Diesel Mechanic Technology building is part of SWOCC's larger commitment to invest in career-technical education programs that meet local workforce needs and open doors for students into high-demand, stable careers.

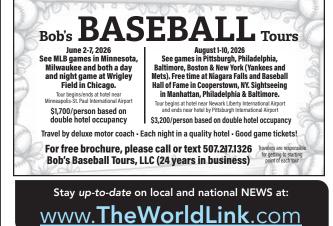

"Our region depends on skilled trades professionals," said Dr. Patty Scott, Southwestern President. "In a rural, isolated area like ours, industries that rely on diesel technology are vital to our economy. By expanding this program, we're helping local employers remain competitive while preparing students for high-skilled, well-paying careers." To learn more about the Diesel Technology at SWOCC, visit: www.socc. edu/dieselmechanic.
