Shots fired at officers precede high-speed chase through Tillamook

WILL CHAPPELL

A traffic stop near Fred Meyer in Tillamook took an unexpected turn when the vehicle’s driver allegedly opened fire on Tillamook County Sheriff’s Office Deputies and Tillamook City Police Officers before absconding.

Joey de la Rosa Rodriguez of Damascus was spotted around 6:30 p.m. on June 26, by Tillamook Sheriff’s Deputies and Oregon State Troopers driving a white Toyota Tacoma. The officers had identified de la Rosa Rodriguez as having arrest warrants in Clackamas and Yamhill Counties for eluding law enforcement officers in recent days and pulled him over.

During the stop, de la Rosa Rodriguez allegedly opened fire on the officers with a pistol, hitting multiple law enforcement vehicles. Officers from both the sheriff’s office and Tillamook City Police returned fire, before de la Rosa Rodriguez sped off to the south.

After traveling nearly five miles on Highway 101, de la Rosa Rodriguez’s vehicle was partially disabled by a spike strip deployed by sheriff’s deputies, forcing him to pull into a residential driveway, where he was taken into custody.

Upon apprehending de la Rosa Rodriguez, officers discovered that he had sustained an apparent gunshot wound to the arm and provided medical care until an ambulance arrived and transported him to Adventist Health Tillamook. There, he was treated for his injury before being released and taken to the Tillamook County Jail, where he was booked on multiple felony warrants from Clackamas and Yamhill Counties.

As the case is an officer involved shooting by the Tillamook County Sheriff’s Office and Tillamook City Police, the Oregon State Police will be lead investigators. Involved law enforcement members have been placed on paid administrative leave.

Tillamook County District Attorney Aubrey Olson told the Herald that she planned to seek charges for 17 different counts relating to the incident, including for four counts of attempted assault in the first degree with a firearm.

Tillamook veterans’ memorial installed

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

A new veterans’ memorial was installed in downtown Tillamook on June 26, honoring veterans from World War I to the present day across the county.

The project was the brainchild of late Tillamook City Councilor Doug Henson, who raised more than $200,000 in donations and in-kind contributions before Tillamook City Councilor Nick Torres took over for the final stages of the project when Henson became ill.

Henson told the Herald last fall that he was inspired to tackle the project when friends of a high school classmate who died in Vietnam asked him why Tillamook did not have a veterans’ memorial like other communities they had visited.

When Henson found that the only commemorations for veterans in the county were two plaques at the county courthouse and post office, he sprang into action to bolster those offerings. Henson Quickly landed on the triangle property between First Street and Pacific and Main Avenues that was previously home to a Shell as a site for a memorial and commissioned a preliminary design.

That design allowed Henson to come up with an estimated budget of $200,000 for the project, at which point he began approaching local contractors to further dial in the cost estimate.

The contractors Henson spoke with surprised him by offering to donate materials and services to the project, allowing him to quickly complete the fundraising push after several cash donations came in to cover the $83,000 purchase of the memorial itself.

At that point, Henson identified OM Stone in Hillsboro as the company that should engrave the memorial’s plinth and affix the bald eagle statue to its top and oversaw the installation of a rebar-reinforced concrete base for the memorial in November.

Unfortunately, soon after completing those preparatory steps, Henson fell seriously ill and was forced to withdraw from public life, handing the project off to Torres, who saw it through.

The newly installed monument features engraving on all four sides of the seven-foot-tall granite plinth, in addition to the bald eagle statue on top. The side facing First Street features a POW-MIA logo and the reverse a rifle and a helmet in honor of soldiers who died in combat.

The side facing Pacific Avenue features a thank you to the memorial’s sponsors Jerry Dove, the Loren E. Parks Trust, Werner Beef Jerky, the Pastega Family Founda-Election results certified;

Skaar, Fournier elected commissioners

Tillamook County Clerk Christy Nyseth certified and submitted results from the May 21 primary election to the Oregon Secretary of State’s office on June 13.

The finalized results hewed to earlier releases, with Erin Skaar and Paul Fournier securing election as Tillamook County Commissioners, KaSandra Larson winning the position of Tillamook County Assessor and Cyrus Javadi holding off a primary challenge for his state house seat.

8,612 votes were tabulated and certified, representing a 40.5% turnout of the county’s 21,241 registered voters. Party-affiliated voters were significantly more likely to vote, with 55.5% of registered Democrats and 56.7% of registered Republicans returning ballots, while just 20.5% of nonpartisan voters participated in the election.

Incumbent Tillamook County Commissioner Skaar won reelection to position one against a double challenge from Jeff Spink and Bruce Lovelin, receiving 53.7% of the vote, while Spink garnered 28.1% and Lovelin 17.8%.

Fournier, a longtime Tillamook County Sheriff’s Deputy, beat Darcy Jones in the race for position two on the board of county commissioners, taking 70.4% of the vote to Jones’s 28.7%.

Larson beat out Kari Fleisher in the race to replace Denise Vandoevering as Tillamook County Assessor, garnering 65.0% of the votes cast.

Javadi had received 76.7% of the votes cast in Tillamook County, compared to 22.9% for his opponent Glenn Gaither. Although the Oregon Secretary

CFTLC briefed on HCP revenue replacement schemes

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

Following ten months of negotiations with the governor’s office, members of the Council of Forest Trust Land Counties were briefed on three proposed solutions for revenue reductions projected to be caused by the habitat conservation plan for western Oregon state forests on June 28.

A group of five county representatives worked with three representatives from the governor’s office to hammer out the options, landing on reducing contributions to either the counties and special districts or Oregon Department of Forestry, or moving school districts in the counties from timber funding to the state’s special equalization fund.

The process began last August, when Governor Tina Kotek’s office reached out to staff from the Council of Forest Trust Land Counties (CFTLC) to initiate discussions about the economic impact of the proposed habitat conservation plan (HCP) on member counties.

The CFTLC selected one commissioner from each of its five regions, David Yamamoto from Tillamook County, Courtney Bangs from Clatsop County, Jerry Willey from Washington County, William Tucker of Linn County, and John Sweet of Coos County, to participate in small table meetings. Tillamook County Commissioner Erin Skaar replaced Yamamoto when he retired at the end of last year.

To begin the process, CFTLC commissioners discussed what they wanted to accomplish, agreeing that they hoped to see statutes changed to ensure that county governments’ revenues remained steady.

CFTLC staff then worked to develop forecasts of the revenue impacts to the counties using historical harvest and stumpage price data, showing a projected drop of a little over $22 million in revenue county and special district revenues across the 14 impacted counties.

The small group then solicited ideas from the CFTLC’s full membership, fielding 15 proposals for revenue replacement.

Those ideas were then pared down in conjunction with the representatives from Kotek’s office to the three that were presented to the full membership at the June meeting.

The first two options involved reapportioning state forest revenues from the current split that sees 63.75% of revenues go to counties, and special and school districts, and the remaining 36.25% directed to the Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF).

The first option would see the share dedicated to counties and districts grow to 82% or $62.4 million, allowing their revenues to remain steady at the cost of reducing ODF’s percentage to 18% or $13.7 million, less than half of their current budget.

The second option would see ODF’s share bumped to 47% of state forest revenues, allowing the department to fully support its $36.5 million budget, but would cut county and district forest revenues to just $41.2 million.

The final option was to allow counties, special districts and the department to maintain current revenues by removing school districts from state forest funding.

Currently, school districts in each of the counties receive around half of state forest revenues allocated to their county, with the remainder of their funding coming from property taxes and the state school equalization fund.

Under the third proposal, school districts in the counties would move to complete reliance on property taxes and the state school equalization fund. This would allow ODF to receive $35.6 million in state forest revenues annually, while counties and special districts would receive $40.5 million.

Commissioners discussed the proposals, with all saying that of the options presented they would prefer the third. Sweet said that while commissioners might prefer other options they had previously suggested, the three put forward were the ones for which Kotek’s office felt they could gain legislative approval.

Sweet said that he thought the third option was the best as either of the first two would require the state legislature to allocate general fund dollars to either the counties and special districts or ODF to sustain them. By contrast, the school equalization fund is an existing funding source that provides ongoing funding to schools already and the increased burden would only represent .6% of the fund’s budget.

Other commissioners who had not participated in the small table group said that they would like to see further data on the proposals before voting on a recommendation.

A major question arose surrounding the four districts that currently don’t receive any funding from the stabilization fund, including Neah-Kah-Nie and Nestucca School Districts in Tillamook County. A CFTLC staffer said that department of education officials had preliminarily indicated that it would be possible to account for those districts and maintain their revenues through an in-lieu payment scheme.

Skaar said that her support of any proposal would be contingent on such a mechanism being in place to maintain the current educational and extracurricular opportunities for students in those districts.

The commissioners agreed that they would ask consulting firm Mason, Bruce & Girard to develop economic projections for the three proposals. They also agreed to convene a meeting of the full CFTLC in July to make a decision on which option they would endorse to allow the governor’s office to work on a draft bill that will need to be submitted by mid-September.

New apartments open in Garibaldi

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

Residents are set to begin moving into the new Garibaldi Bayview Apartments at the east end of the city and seven lots prepared for home construction above the complex are on the market. The 3-acre project was shepherded by the development team of Paul Daniels and Ron Halter and marks the third complex they have partnered on in the city in the last decade. Friends since high school, the men became involved in development in Garibaldi in 2014, constructing and operating the Garibaldi Village and Garibaldi Creekside apartments. Daniels has lived in Garibaldi for 33 years after starting a career in excavation in California, and Halter has been a developer in the Willamette Valley for 18 years after working in aerospace. Daniels said that the partnership began over a conversation at his kitchen table a decade ago and joked that "this whole thing took about 30 seconds to start." After deciding to team up, the pair found a property within days and hit the ground running. Progress on the Bayview project began in 2019, when Daniels and Halter purchased the property near the east end of the city on Highway 101. The coronavirus pandemic delayed the planning and permitting stages of the project significantly, preventing work from starting until last year. After starting work, the pair's experience helped to bring the project to fruition expeditiously and 12 of the complex's 18 units had been inspected by the last week of June, with the rest due for inspection in the coming days. Each of the units will be one bedroom and 710 square feet, with larger apartments not possible due to the property's topography. Rent will cost $1,450 and pets are welcome. Originally, Daniels and Halter had hoped to build more apartments at higher elevations on the three-acre property, but neighbors' hesitance ended up leading to the decision to subdivide the rest of the property for single-family homes. The subdivision created seven properties on the hillside above the apartments, with six around a quarter of an acre in size and the seventh larger. Daniels and Halter added two new streets to access the properties, as well as underground utility lines to make the properties construction ready. The pair have worked with the local contractors who worked on the apartments to develop home designs that will comply with the covenants, conditions and restrictions they have attached to the properties. There will not be a homeowners' association in the subdivision and the building restrictions are aimed primarily at maintaining neighbors' views, according to Daniels. Halter's daughter, Sheri Baker, is representing the properties and encouraged prospective buyers to reach out to discuss financing and construction possibilities. The apartments will be managed by the same person who oversees Daniels and Halter's two other Garibaldi complexes as well as a full-time maintenance person. Halter said that he thought this was probably the duo's last project in Garibaldi but allowed that another opportunity might draw them into another. "Is this the last project," Halter wondered. "I don't know. If I get bored and scratch my belly and look around and Paul feels like doing it again, we could find a spot." Oregon Coastal Tribal Leaders call for action to return sea otters to Oregon

Leaders of two federally recognized Oregon coastal Indian tribes, The Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians ("CTCLUSI") and the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians ("CTSI") have called upon US Secretary of the Interior Deb Haaland to "take all appropriate actions to direct the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service ("USFWS") to return sea otters – known to our ancestors as Xulh-t'ush, Giye'we, or Ela-ke' – to the Oregon coast within the next five years."

In separate letters to Secretary Haaland, Bradley Kneaper, Chairman of the CTCLUSI Tribal Council, and Delores Pigsley, Chairman of the CTSI Tribal Council, cited the cultural ties between coastal Indian people and sea otters extending back thousands of years. "Our ancestors knew Xulh-t'ush as a relative who brought prosperity and plenty to our people" each said.

Both noted the critical importance of sea otters to the ecological health of the ocean. "Science teaches us what our ancestors knew, that these creatures are indeed a keystone species that creates and maintains kelp forest habitat conditions in near-shore ecosystems. Sea otters were thus central to the way of life our ancestors enjoyed for thousands of years - until both sea otters and the way of life they supported were destroyed in the 1800s."

Once found across the North Pacific Ocean from Japan to Mexico, sea otters were hunted nearly to extinction for their valuable fur more than a century ago. They have recovered on the central California coast and, thanks to reintroduction in the late 1960s and early 1970s, on the coasts of Washington's Olympic Peninsula, Vancouver Island, and Southeast Alaska.

But as the leaders point out, sea otters "remain absent from the entire Oregon and northern California coastline" and as a result "our nearshore ecosystem has experienced dramatic changes. Without sea otters, instead of productive kelp forests, our rocky seafloor is covered in

'urchin barrens,' biological deserts of purple sea urchins that have devoured these kelp forests and all that they provide to the ecosystem."

Chairs Kneaper and Pigsley declared "we feel strongly that the time has come to bring Xvlh-t'vsh back to Oregon" and called on Secretary Haaland to "direct the USFWS to prioritize returning sea otters to the Oregon coast, set a timeline, prepare a plan, and take other steps necessary to pursue this act of environmental and cultural reconciliation." They pledged to assist the Secretary and the USFWS toward "bold action that will strengthen our environment, our economy, and our homelands."

The leaders noted that members of both tribes were instrumental in founding the Elakha Alliance, an Oregon nonprofit organization that has a mission to restore sea otters to the ocean of Oregon, and pointed out that tribal members continue to serve as board members. They cited the work of the Elakha Alliance in building public support, laying "a solid foundation of scientific information" for the return of sea otters, and working with local fishermen to reduce or avoid impacts when sea otters return.

Headquartered in Coos Bay, Oregon with a five-county service area including Coos, Curry, Lincoln, Douglas and Lane Counties, The Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians are one of the 9 Federally Recognized Tribes of Oregon. CTCLUSI is comprised of 3 Tribes (4 Bands): 2 bands of Coos Tribes: Hanis Coos, Miluk Coos; Lower Umpqua Tribe (Quuiich); and Siuslaw Tribe.

The Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians is a confederation of many bands and tribes, each with their own language, territory and customs, whose ancestral homelands combined include all of Western Oregon from what is now Northern California north to the Columbia River and from the summit of the Cascades to the Pacific Ocean. Its headquarters is in Siletz, Oregon, and the tribe also has offices in Portland, Salem and Eugene. It maintains an 11-county service area.

HB 406 update

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

The Tillamook County Planning Commission held a workshop on June 27, for a presentation on Oregon House Bill 406, which requires Tillamook County and its cities to greatly expand code allowances for multifamily dwelling units.

Elizabeth Decker from JET Planning gave a detailed presentation about the bill’s specifics and the process that her firm and others will use to help the county update its ordinance.

Passed in 2023 and sponsored by State Senator Suzanne Weber, HB 406 was designed as a test case for possible solutions to the state’s housing crisis, using Tillamook County to test the impacts multifamily housing zoning changes in rural areas. The bill requires that the county and cities therein update their zoning ordinances to allow duplexes wherever single-family houses are permitted and requires expansion in the allowance of triplexes, fourplexes, and cottage clusters.

Decker said that the impetus behind the bill was to remove hurdles facing developers who want to bring those types of units, often referred to as missing middle housing, to the market. With Oregon’s stringent land use laws and procedures, developers currently have to go through a complex process including public hearings to get a project approved. The bill applies to the seven incorporated cities in the county as well as the unincorporated communities governed by the county government that are serviced by water utilities.

In addition to the ordinance updates required by 2025, the bill also mandated that the county and cities participate in an Oregon Housing Needs Analysis that will be released in 2027 and develop countywide housing production strategies to meet the needs identified in that analysis by 2028.

JET Planning is working alongside 3J Consulting to assist the county in the ordinance update and has also been retained by several cities. Though Nehalem, Rockaway Beach and Manzanita have selected other planning firms, Decker said that representatives from all involved firms were meeting monthly.

The bill provides the county and cities two options for updating their ordinances, including a model ordinance as well as minimum standards that proposed ordinances could be reviewed against. In either case, the updates will have largely the same substance, with only a few choices left to the local governments.

The most important of those will be the decision of whether to have minimum lot size requirements for triplex, fourplex and cottage cluster developments or to allow them on any lot zoned for a single-family home. Governments will also decide the maximum size of cottage clusters that will be allowed, within a range of four to 12 units.

Governments will also need to decide whether they will allow duplexes, triplexes and fourplexes to be built as detached units, and set forth parking requirements and design standards, though standards must also apply to single-family homes in the zone.

Decker said that governments were also provided with an opportunity to create a new process to allow lots with multifamily dwelling units to be subdivided for sale or they could elect to leave the code as is and have the developments function as condominiums.

With under a year until the bill’s June 31, 2025, deadline for ordinance updates, the project is now kicking into high gear.

Decker is currently auditing the county’s current code to identify all sections that will need to be changed as part of the update. She said that in the coming weeks, her firm and the others will also begin holding stakeholder interviews with groups including developers and the planning commission and that a focus group with residents impacted by housing shortages is being planned.

Following those interviews, the consultants will conduct community engagement in the fall before proposing a first draft for the code updates. The public will be given an opportunity to comment on the proposed changes late this year or early next, before a final draft is developed and delivered to the board of county commissioners for approval.

Tillamook County Community Development Director Sarah Absher said that her department is planning to have at least two meetings with each impacted community before commissioners vote on the update.

2024 Fire Season starts

Fire Season will officially begin on Monday, July 1, 2024, at 1 a.m. This will affect all lands protected by the Oregon Department of Forestry in the Northwest Oregon Forest Protection District. This area includes all State, private and BLM forest land in the Tillamook, Astoria, and Forest Grove Districts, which consists of Tillamook, Washington, Yamhill, Clatsop, Columbia, and Multnomah Counties, as well as portions of Lincoln County.

For up-to-date information on public and industrial restrictions go to the following website: <http://www.oregon.gov/odf/pages/FIRE/precautionlevel.aspx>.

With fire season in effect, forest operators must have required fire equipment at the site of their operation and are reminded to inspect their fire equipment to ensure it is ready and can pass inspection. Forest operators must also provide a fire watch for each operation after equipment is shut down at the end of each day. Fire season rules also prohibit smoking while in or traveling through any “operation area” and prohibit the use of fuse and caps for blasting on forest land. Fire Weather Zones NW-1, NW-2, NW-3 will start out at Industrial Fire Precaution Level 1, effective July 1, 2024. For the general public the fire level will be at Low (Green). IFPL changes and fire season information may be obtained by contacting your nearest ODF office or by visiting the website above.

For the general public, burning permits are required for open pile burning and burn barrels. Residents that live within a city fire department district or rural fire protection district, will need to contact their local fire department for burn permit requirements.

In Tillamook County, the Oregon Department of Forestry issues burning permits for open pile burning and burn barrels. Effective July 15, there is a countywide ban on all burning and no permits will be issued. Burn permits may be obtained until July 14. There is no fee for the burn permit, but an on-site inspection with the landowner is performed prior to issuing a permit. Information about burning permits and how to obtain a permit is available by calling the Oregon Department of Forestry at 503-815-7056 (24 hour line), or you may contact your local fire department.

It is also a good reminder that fire can be a hazard at any time of year if steps are not taken to use fire safely. Whenever you use fire, whether for debris burning or enjoying a campfire, use these steps to prevent your fire from turning into the next wildfire.

- Never leave your fire unattended.

- When burning debris, always have a hose and shovel at the fire to prevent the fire from spreading.
- Check with your local fire protection agency prior to burning. (Most rural fire protection districts require a burn permit year-round.)
- If camping, ensure your campfire is in a designated area.
- Always make sure your campfire is out cold before leaving.
- On the beach, keep your campfire far from beach grass and driftwood piles.

Forest users may obtain information about state forest lands, industrial fire restrictions and public fire restrictions by contacting your local ODF office or through our website, blogs and social media:

Stimson Lumber invests $50 Million into new, high-speed sawline

Andrew Miller, the Chief Executive Officer of Stimson Lumber Company, has announced that the wood products company will be investing $50 million into a new, high-speed sawmill line at its facility in Forest Grove, Oregon.

The investment at the 95-year-old sawmill marks a significant upgrade and commitment to future operations at the facility and increased potential for private timber owners seeking new market opportunities for smaller-dimension timber, Miller says.

Starting later this year, Stimson will begin preparing the Forest Grove mill for a 350-foot-long HewSaw line made by Veisto-Oy based in Finland. Miller said he expects the new sawline will be operational in early 2026 and that the existing line will continue operating with no lapse in production.

“We are excited about the investment in this new technology for multiple reasons,” Miller said. “On one hand, we are making a commitment to long-term operations at Stimson’s oldest mill site and the economic and workforce impacts the mill brings to the community.”

“This technology also represents an opportunity for Stimson and other timberland owners to efficiently process smaller diameter timber that previously would have been sold for pulp rather than be cut into dimensional lumber, or timber that would have to grow for another eight years before becoming marketable. We think this will be a real win for landowners,” Miller said.

When operational, the new sawline will process logs between 4-inch and 16-inches in diameter at a rate of 70, eight-foot blocks per minute, making it the highest speed sawline in North America, Miller said. The mill, with its current sawline and 300 million board-feet of kiln capacity, produces about 100 million feet of two-by-four and two-by-six studs annually, but Miller anticipates production will triple when the new mill is fully operational. The current mill employs 90 people, but Miller anticipates the new technology will ultimately require fewer employees once operational.

“The new mill will be one of the most efficient and productive sawmills in North America, which is Stimson’s goal with the investment,” Miller says.

The investment in the HewSaw technology also leverages Stimson’s 175,000 acres of adjacent timberlands, which will account for more than half of the mill’s timber supply.

About Stimson Lumber Company

Since building its first mill in Big Rapids, Michigan in 1871, Stimson has grown into a large integrated timberland and sawmilling company. Today, Stimson owns and operates six mills in Oregon and Idaho, and the company owns and sustainably manages nearly 600,000 acres of forest land in Oregon, Idaho, Montana, and Eastern Washington, 175,000 acres of which are in Oregon. The objective of our milling operations is to add value to the logs harvested from the company timberlands. All products produced by Stimson mills are certified by the Sustainable Forestry Initiative® (SFI) program.

Happy birthday this week to: Jana Lee Black, George Bodyfelt, Jamison Doohor, Janet Hansen, Leo Frodl, Christina Oulman, Jamie Sigman, Hank Slavens, Houston Slavens, and Wes Spidell.

We start this post with the saddest of news.

From the City of Garibaldi press release: “It is with a heavy heart that we inform the public of the passing of City of Garibaldi Public Works Lead, Everton Oliveira. Everton Oliveira, hired in 2022, has been instrumental to our public works department as a Water System Operator. Citizens and coworkers described Everton as having a positive attitude and a contagious personality filled with humor.”

His supervisor and friend, Nick Theoharis, wrote the touching obituary (while on vacation) that emotionally hit me between the eyes.

If it wasn’t in this week’s obituaries, it should be published next week.

Here’s a snippet. “For those who had the privilege of knowing Everton, he was a cherished friend. The time spent with him was truly a gift, filled with memorable moments and shared laughter. His loss is deeply felt by his family both in America and Brazil, as well as by the entire City of Garibaldi.”

Please be on the lookout for it, if you haven’t already read it.

I only had a couple of interactions with Everton. There’s a line between the executive branch and legislative branch, even at the local level, that needs to be respected. And, I’m a toddler dad now. I’m no longer cool.

That said, the first time I met him, Everton and Nick showed up to see if our sewer line was blocked at the street. The other time was at Barview Jetty Store. Brief interactions, but there was always a light in his eye that made me believe he was on the lookout for the next good joke or moment of joy. Game recognizes game.

Katie knew him more, especially from her time as city manager pro tem. It was a heartbreaking way to see her wake up to the week with such news, and know-a longer-legged hound who is itching to run. Stop by the Tillamook Animal Shelter table to register, or to support their good works.

But the unquestionable star of the day will be our fireworks show at the Wayside. The lights go out at 9:30 p.m., with 10 p.m. the official start to the display.

other awesome librarian who covers for June when she’s away.

She knows it likely doesn’t need reminding, but the library will be closed on July 4th.

Lastly,city news. A lot of news in progress, but nothing definitive to report on June 28th.

A reminder, City Manager Pro Tem Liane Welch will be in the office till July 3rd, then on vacation, and back in time for the July city council meeting on the 15th. It will essentially be her last day.

But to give an indication to the no-nonsense breath of fresh aire she’s been: last Thursday I was walking the toddlers downhill on 7th street. I looked over to City Hall on 6th and Acacia and saw four women de-weeding the corner.

I was hoping one was retired Planning Vice Chair Judith Parker, who often volunteers her time to keep the front of city hall vegetation looking incredible. Parker is still splitting time between here and La Pine, and I was hoping to see her and see she escaped the brush fires that were happening around there.

Instead, I saw three members of our office staff, including Welch, de-weeding. Also, Division Chief Paulsen was powerwashing the building.

I asked what was up. They noted the tragedy regarding Everton, and that Cory and Martin from Twin Rocks were covering some public works, and with Garibaldi Days on the horizon, Liane decided to have a team building exercise to help out.

The fourth woman was a story in and of itself. Two Fridays back, Commission Secretary Sheldon noted a location in town was removing trees and dirt. We talked with the planner, and no one could find a permit for anything on file.

Which brings me back to the fourth person. It was her land where the trees and dirt were being removed. She was called in to city hall to sort it out.

Come to find out, the permit was turned in months ago before Liane was hired. Liane approved it on like her second day – as she was learning the way Garibaldi does things – and somewhere along the way it didn’t get properly filed. Long to short, things appear to be sorted out, and the fourth woman stuck around to help with the de-weeding.

Even with the kids, I felt like a sloth letting them do that work themselves. While I didn’t do nearly what they did, I picked out a few weeds (when the toddlers let me). Katie pulled in from Astoria, where she was representing Garibaldi at a Coast Guard event, and she pulled a few. And within a couple hours, the weeds were all pulled off the 6th St. side of City Hall.

The sight of Martin and Cory back in the City, helping out. Folks with permit “issues” sticking around to pull weeds. Fire and other staff lending a hand to public works.

Residents should probably take this as a good sign.

Consistently rated among the top fireworks displays on the coast, this hour-long show is not to be missed.

If the crowds at the Wayside are too much, those of us who live here full time know that it’s hard to find a bad spot to watch the explosions. We’ve seen folks set up chairs in the Neah-Kah-Nie district office playground and athletic field—one benefit of having the district office located in a former school. And I’ll never forget the year our grandkids were visiting and we sat on one of the benches in front of Schwieter’s on 101.

The Oregon Coast Scenic Railroad’s annual Firework Spectacular returns for 2024.

This three-hour excursion sells out every year, but if you’re interested there may be space available. The train departs Garibaldi at 8:30 and arrives at the Wayside in time to catch all the fireworks. To learn more, call (503) 842-7972.

One unfortunate conflict with the Fourth falling on a Thursday: this month’s Artisan Farmers Market will be displaced by the Independence Day activities. In its place, the Wayside will be filled with live music throughout the day, and you’ll have the chance to bid on auction items, as I mentioned in last week’s column.

Events continue throughout the weekend. On Saturday, July 6, Meals for Seniors is holding one of its popular French Toast breakfasts from 8 a.m.—noon at St. Mary’s by the Sea, 275 S Pacific. These events are a fun and delicious way to visit with friends and neighbors. Donations go to support this important program.

The annual Friends of the Library Fourth of July Book Sale takes place on Saturday, July 6 from 10 a.m.—3 p.m., at the library, 120 N Coral Street. Hardbacks are $2 (6 for $10), and paperbacks are $1 (8 for $10). The book sale is the Friends of the Library’s largest fundraiser, and you can donate and become a member there. All proceeds go towards the upkeep of the library building.

Democrats, homeless advocates disappointed in U.S. Supreme Court ruling on homelessness

The top court sided with Grants Pass in a case brought by homeless people against that southern city's restrictions on camping in public places

LYNNE TERRY
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Democratic lawmakers, homeless advocates and legal experts in Oregon expressed disappointment Friday with the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in the Grants Pass homeless case, while conservatives welcomed the decision.

In a 6-3 decision split along partisan lines, the court sided with the southern Oregon city in its prohibitions against homeless people using blankets, pillows or cardboard to protect themselves in severe weather while sleeping in public places. The court said that the city's ordinances against homeless camping did not violate the Constitution's Eighth Amendment prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment.

"The Constitution's Eighth Amendment serves many important functions, but it does not authorize federal judges to wrest those rights and responsibilities from the American people and in their place dictate this nation's homelessness policy," the decision states.

Sybil Hebb, a homeless expert with the Oregon Law Center, which provides free legal advice and helped initiate the case against Grants Pass, told the Capital Chronicle the center's staff was disappointed with the ruling.

"The decision is certainly not what we had hoped for," Hebb said in an email. "We wholeheartedly disagree with the decision and find it morally wrong as well as counter-productive."

The court's ruling marks a reversal of a 2022 decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in the case, Gloria Johnson, et. al. v. Grants Pass. Three homeless people filed the suit in 2018, accusing the city of violating the Eighth Amendment for arresting and ticketing people for sleeping outside. The Ninth Circuit blocked the law, saying it criminalized the status of homelessness and therefore violated the Eighth Amendment.

The Oregon House Republican leader, Rep. Jeff Helfrich of Hood River, welcomed the Supreme Court's reversal of the Ninth Circuit.

"Our parks were never meant to be campgrounds, and now our cities can finally begin restoring our communities' public spaces," Helfrich said in a statement. "The Supreme Court's ruling is a victory for common sense and highlights what conservative leadership looks like."

But according to Hebb, the Supreme Court ruling does not give cities an unlimited right to enact homeless camping bans or rule out any further legal recourse homeless advocates might have against restrictions.

"It's important to note that the court left several specific legal avenues open – they specifically reference the availability of a necessity defense for people who do not have access to shelter or public places to live," Hebb said. "Nothing in the court's ruling prohibits state or local governments from enacting laws that address this issue, or provide protections for people experiencing homelessness."

In 2021, the Oregon Legislature passed House Bill 3115 against unreasonable restrictions against homeless camping. The bill, which took effect in July 2023, states: "Any city or county law that regulates the acts of sitting, lying, sleeping or keeping warm and dry outdoors on public property that is open to the public must be objectively reasonable as to time, place and manner with regards to persons experiencing homelessness."

Senate Republican Leader Daniel Bonham of The Dalles said that law hamper's the ability of local community to address homelessness.

"The Legislature should immediately provide clarity to our local governments as they work to reduce homelessness in their communities by taking action on HB 3115. This time, cities and counties that are most affected should be at the table, leading the discussions on what is best for their local jurisdictions. We stand ready to pass legislation that balances the interests of all residents – whether they are in a home or seeking shelter, utilizing both compassion and pragmatism to ensure our public spaces are safe, clean, and accessible for everyone," Bonham said in a statement.

Gov. Tina Kotek has made fighting homelessness a top priority, and in this year's legislative session, lawmakers approved $376 million to build more housing, help people with rent and get them in shelters and temporary housing. The Democratic chairs of the Legislature's housing committees, Sen. Kayse Jama of Portland and Rep. Pam Marsh of Ashland, said the Supreme Court ruling will not affect their goal of ending homelessness.

"Our goal remains making sure every Oregonian has access to safe, affordable housing so no one has to resort to sleeping on the streets. Homelessness will be solved by building more housing, supporting shelters and programs to get people on the path out of homelessness," they said in a statement.

They said cities and other jurisdictions also are responsible for ensuring the livability of their communities and that there needs to be a balance between those concerns and the plight faced by the thousands in the state without stable housing.

"The Legislature remains focused on addressing the root causes of homelessness, increasing the housing supply, and funding programs that help get people on a path out of houselessness," they said.

A Reading of the Declaration of Independence
July 4 in Maxwell Library Park

RUTH LAFRANCE
For the Headlight Herald

Hear ye! Hear ye! A declaration from the Second Continental Congress! Thus will begin, on July 4 at 11:00 a.m., the reading of the Declaration of Independence from the stage in Maxwell Library Park, 1708 Third ST, adjacent to the Main Tillamook County Library.

A group of 20 women and men will take turns reading the document that set the colonies on the road to freedom – a document that was approved unanimously on July 4, 1776, by the 56 men who made up the Second Continental Congress, signed by John Hancock, president of the Congress, and certified by the congressional secretary. These men represented the thirteen colonies under British rule. By the time the Declaration of Independence was ratified, the colonies had been in armed rebellion against the British Crown for over a year. The Declaration decisively broke the bond between the colonies and the British Empire. The war would last another seven years.

The Declaration of Independence laid the foundation for the Constitution that began its governing life in 1789. Abraham Lincoln named the Declaration "an immortal emblem of humanity." The Declaration asserts that "all men are created equal," and that they have the right to "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." It lays out the grievances of the colonists, some of which may be recognized in the Bill of Rights. It emphasizes the tolerance the colonists showed as they sought redress for their grievances. It points out that their petitions have not been addressed, and that the king, "whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be ruler of a free people." Then, the "good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare, that these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States ..."

The Declaration of Independence has been an inspiration over the past 248 years to well over 100 nations as they fought for their freedom from colonial governments. It is the document at the heart of American Independence Day celebrations.

This reading is sponsored by the Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts (TAPA) and the Tillamook County Library. It is free and the public is encouraged to attend.

Latest Oregon economic forecast shows steady growth, uncertain future

JULIA SHUMWAY
Oregon Capital Chronicle

Oregon’s economy continues to grow steadily, if at a slower pace than it has in recent years, state economists told lawmakers this month.

That includes April personal income tax collections coming in higher than expected, leaving a “fifty-fifty proposition” that Oregonians will receive a $582 million kicker tax credit in 2026, two years after the state paid out the largest kicker in state history. The credit kicks in whenever income tax payments are 2 percent higher than lawmakers planned for when crafting their two-year budget.

But state economists warned that the additional tax collections — and refunds — might not happen because of uncertainty with the national economy.

“Should high interest rates, federal policy woes or economic weakness among our trading partners derail the U.S. economy, the expected growth in Oregon’s tax collections will not come to pass,” they wrote in their economic forecast.

State economist Mark McMullen told lawmakers on the House and Senate revenue committees that continued high inflation, and the Federal Reserve indicating it won’t cut interest rates until December, increase the likelihood of a recession instead of the soft landing economists saw as more likely earlier this year.

Economists are also uncertain because of the upcoming federal election, he said. In the 2021 tax year, for instance, revenues rose in part because people cashed in on investments anticipating that the Biden administration and a new Democratic majority in Congress would undo some of the tax cuts passed under the Trump administration.

Oregonians received record kicker payments this year, with about $1,000 going back to the median taxpayer who earns between $35,000 and $40,000 annually. But economists say it doesn’t appear people are spending that money. Oregon doesn’t have a sales tax, though the corporate activity tax on gross business receipts acts as a hidden sales tax, and the state taxes vehicles, hotels, gas and marijuana.

“One of the things that we expected to see with this $5.6 billion kicker was a big positive impact on these consumption taxes, particularly with our traditional experience with the lottery sales and what we see during the tax refund season,” McMullen said. “And to date, we haven’t really seen that.”

There are still four more forecasts before lawmakers receive the final March 2025 numbers they’ll use to craft the next two-year budget, and a lot could change in the coming months. But for now, forecasters estimate the state will have about $34 billion in its general fund, up slightly from the 2021-23 biennium, and lawmakers will have more money available to dip into in case of emergencies in the current two-year budget cycle.

“We do see an increase in net available resources in the current biennium,” McMullen said. “A lot of that goes away in the next biennium again, because we’re right at this kicker cusp.”

Leaders react

Democrats, including Gov. Tina Kotek, used the forecast to call for more spending on housing, schools and behavioral health.

“Oregon’s economy continues to be stable and productive,” Kotek said. “We have made meaningful progress on issues of top concern for Oregonians and worked to move our economy in the right direction. I look forward to continuing to partner with the legislature to focus on meeting people’s needs in every part of the state, from housing to safe schools to behavioral health services.”

Speaker Julie Fahey, D-Eugene, said the state will have the resources it needs, and that lawmakers need to focus on maintaining recent investments in housing, child care, early learning, mental health care and job creation.

“The revenue forecast indicates that, statewide, Oregon’s economy is stable and growing,” she said. “Our state will have the funding we need to continue paying for the critical ongoing programs that Oregonians rely on, thanks to prudent budgeting and strong leadership. It’s also encouraging to see steady productivity and solid labor market gains, as well as job growth in the semiconductor industry, both in the near- and long-term, due to jobs-boosting bills like the CHIPS Act.”

But Senate President Rob Wagner, D-Lake Oswego, struck a more cautious tone.

“The economy continues to remain strong — bolstered by Oregon’s advantageous business climate — and the legislature has made prudent fiscal decisions that have put us in a good position as we begin to craft the next biennium’s budget,” he said. “Even so, the legislature will face challenges to continue to fund and maintain the essential services and strategic investments made over the last two years.”

And Senate Republican Leader Daniel Bonham, R-The Dalles, called for reining in state spending.

“Across the state, Oregon families are having to tighten their budgets and make difficult choices as rising costs due to high inflation outpace their earnings,” he said. “It’s time the state does the same. The latest revenue forecast indicates that the state has continued to take more than enough of our hard-earned tax dollars. The legislature, like many of our friends and neighbors, must learn to live within its means.”

("Trustee"), by document recorded April 12, 2024 as document 2024-01470, for the benefit of Daniel G. Tooze, as original beneficiary ("Beneficiary"). Beneficiary, and Trustee, hereby give Notice of Default and the Trustee's Election to Sell, under a trust deed executed August 4, 2023, and recorded August 4, 2033, as instrument no. 2023-03444. The trust deed covers the following real property legally described as: The Southern 20.76 feet of Lot 3, and all of Lots 4 through 6, Block 18, TOHL'S ADDITION TO NEHALEM, in the County of Tillamook, State of Oregon, together with lands fronting and abutting said Lots, and also together with that Portion of vacated Front Street and vacated M Street as described in Ordinance recorded February 22, 2001 in Book 423, page 582, Tillamook County Records; excepting any portion thereof lying within the boundaries of Hwy 101 (the "Property"). The undersigned hereby certify that no assignments of the trust deed by the trustee or by the beneficiary and no other appointments of successor trustee have been made, except as identified above, or recorded in the Records of Tillamook County, Oregon. Further, no action has been instituted to recover the debt, or any part thereof, now remaining payable and secured by the trust deed identified above, or if such action has been instituted to recover such debts, the action has been, or will be, dismissed before sale, except as permitted by ORS 86.752. The Trustee's mailing address is 181 N. Grant St. STE 212, Canby Oregon 97013. Grantor has defaulted on the Promissory Note executed August 10, 2023 between Grantor and Beneficiary by failing to pay the amounts due on August 10, 2023 and on the 10th of every month thereafter to the date of this Notice. Therefore, the Note is now due and payable in full with interest, late fees and collection costs described hereunder. The sum owing on the obligation the trust deed secures is the unpaid balance as of April 1, 2024 of $175,952.91 in current principal plus interest at an interest at the rate of 7% per year, from August 10, 2023 forward continuing until paid, PLUS any and all remaining title expenses, future costs, taxes, ongoing trustee's fee and attorney fees, which have been incurred by reason of this default and any and all future sums advanced by the Beneficiary(s) for the protection of the above described real property including insurance, tax payments and repairs. The beneficiary has complied with all applicable provisions of ORS 86.752, ORS 86.748. WHEREFORE, notice is hereby given that the Beneficiary and Trustee, by reason of the default, have elected and do hereby elect to foreclose the trust deed by advertisement at sale pursuant to ORS 86.705 to 86.815, and further notice is given that the undersigned trustee will on August 19, 2024 at the hour of 10:00 a.m., in accord with the standard of time established by ORS 187.110, at the Tillamook County Courthouse, 201 Laurel Ave. Tillamook, OR 97141, on the front steps, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the interest in the real property described above which the grantor had power to convey at the time of execution by the grantor of the trust deed together with any interest which the grantor or grantor's successors in interest acquired after the execution of the trust deed and the trust deed amendment, to satisfy the foregoing obligations thereby secured and the costs and expenses of the sale, including a reasonable charge by the trustee. The property will be sold to satisfy some or all of the obligation as provided by law. Other than the interests shown of record, neither the beneficiary nor the trustee has any actual knowledge of any person having or claiming to have any lien upon or interest in the real property herein above described that has priority over this interest. Notice is further given to any person named in ORS 86.764, that rights exist under ORS 86.778, at any time prior to five days before the date last set for the sale, to have this foreclosure proceeding dismissed and the trust deed reinstated by payment to the beneficiary of the entire amount then due (other than such portion of the principal as would not be then due had no default occurred) and by curing any other default complained of herein that is capable of being cured by tendering the performance required under the obligation, trust deed and in addition to paying those sums or tendering the performance necessary to cure the default, by paying all costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligation, trust deed, together with trustee and attorney fees not exceeding the amounts provided by ORS 86.778. Grantor may inquire with Trustee for a cure amount or method. In construing this notice, the singular includes the plural, the word "grantor" includes any successor in interest to the grantor as well as any other person owing an obligation, the performance of which is secured by the trust deed, and the words "trustee" and "beneficiary" include their respective successors in interest, if any. Without limiting the trustee's disclaimer of representations or warranties, Oregon law requires the trustee to state in this notice that some residential property sold at a trustee's sale may have been used in manufacturing methamphetamines, the chemical components of which are known to be toxic. Prospective purchasers of residential property should be aware of this potential danger before deciding to place a bid for this property at the trustee's sale. This Notice of Default and Election to Sell has been recorded in the records of Tillamook County, when stamped with the document number stated above, and has been served on those individuals entitled to services of this document pursuant to ORS 86.764 and 86.774 by first class U.S. Mail, and by Certified Mail, return receipt request-

Sunshine (Sunny)

Sammy

Sunshine & Sammy
United Paws has many kittens ready, or almost ready, to be adopted!
This week's beautiful kittens are Sunshine (or Sunny), and Sammy.

They were born in a local encampment, from two different litters, and surrendered to UP at about 3 weeks old. Sunny is a tabby male with white socks, about 11 weeks old, and Sammy is a shiny black female about 13 weeks old. They are both cuddly sweethearts and love to sleep in their fosters' bed for the night. Sunny likes to snuggle under the covers or between pillows with the humans. Sammy will nest in the pillows or tunnel under the covers by your feet.

During the day, they are playful, curious, hungry, and always ready for a cat nap, followed by more kitten play. When Sammy wants her humans to hold her, she will put a paw out to you and let you know it's cuddle time. They are both well socialized, friendly and basically good kitties. They like wet food and are cat box trained. They don't like the vacuum cleaner! Sammy and Sunny are comfortable with all felines, just as long as they are friendly. Sammy & Sunny are ready for their forever homes with some lucky humans!

If interested in one of these kittens, fill out the application below, or email / call us for more info. Email: unitedpawshelp@gmail.com or 503-842-5663.
You must be at least 21 years old to adopt through United Paws.
