Man settles wrongful arrest claims against Manzanita police officer, state trooper

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

A man who accused a Manzanita police officer and Oregon state trooper of falsely arresting and assaulting him during a 2023 encounter has reached two settlements in a lawsuit filed against the officers, receiving a total of $80,000.

The man, Noah Schaeffer, was pulled out of his home and arrested after a tense standoff where officers held his arm through a partially opened door, while he declined to answer their questions. Schaeffer’s attorney, Lake Perriguey, said that his client was still suffering psychologically following the confrontation and hoped that the incident would be a learning experience for the officers and prevent others from going through a similar scenario.

“Primarily, he was hoping that the officers would be educated about people’s rights in their own homes so that this doesn’t happen again and so that the financial compensation that he’s received might stimulate the government to train the officers or give them a refresher course about this,” Perriguey said.

The incident began late on the evening of January 31, 2023, when officers received a call from dispatch about a woman claiming to have been elbowed in the face in front of her Manzanita home. The woman told dispatchers that a couple had been speaking loudly in the street and when she exited her home, approached the couple and asked them to quiet down, the man had elbowed her in the face.

Manzanita Police Officer Sean Mumey began investigating the accusation, calling the owner of a dog that had been seen with the couple, who pointed him in the direction of the couple’s accommodation.

Joined by Oregon State Trooper Joseph Zepeda, Mumey made his way to the building where Schaeffer and his partner were staying in an apartment above a vacation rental business. In their reports, the officers said that they observed Schaeffer watching them from a window in the apartment before ducking out of view.

Mumey and Zepeda knocked on the door right around midnight. Schaeffer answered but quickly told the officers that he did not wish to speak with them and attempted to close the door.

Body camera footage of the initial confrontation is partially obscured, but in a lawsuit filed last November, Schaeffer said that Mumey put his foot in the doorjamb, blocking the door from closing, before grabbing him by the arm.

It is clear in the body camera footage that after the scuffle, Mumey and Zepeda had a firm hold of Schaeffer’s arm, which was wedged between the door and doorjamb.

A standoff ensued, with Schaeffer repeatedly telling the officers to let go of him, saying, “you do not get to pull me out of my house.”

The officers repeatedly told Schaeffer that they just wanted to talk to him and that they had only grabbed his arm because he tried to close the door on him. At times both officers held onto Schaeffer’s arm, at others Mumey let go to speak on the phone, at no point was Schaeffer’s arm released.

After several minutes, Mumey told Schaeffer that he “matches the description of a suspect in a crime,” at which point Schaeffer immediately asked for a lawyer and said he did not wish to speak without one present.

Staff from across the Tillamook school district gathered at Tillamook High School on May 24, for an assembly celebrating the end of the year and recognizing individual achievements by teachers and other employees.

Superintendent Matthew Ellis hosted the assembly and gave out the third set of North Star Awards, named two educators rookies of the year and handed out three Crystal Apple Awards.

The ceremony was part of an ongoing effort by Ellis to recognize the contributions and accomplishments of district staff throughout the school year.

At two previous assemblies in October and January, Ellis recognized teachers who displayed exceptional effort and passion for education with North Star Awards.

Those recipients were joined by a group of new teachers at the May assembly, with Sara Ayers, Johnny Begin, Emily Brown, Tiffany Fletcher, Debi Hartford, Suzi Kehr, Sue Petty, Patrice Rouska, Kyle Sickon, Mariana Travis, Dee Upton and Whitney Valdez being honored.

Ellis also introduced the new Crystal Apple Award, which will

Historic Coast Guard boathouse
reinvigorated as educational asset

The historic United States Coast Guard boathouse in Garibaldi has been given new life as an education destination for students from across the Pacific Northwest since the Garibaldi Cultural Heritage Initiative took over in 2017.

Work by dedicated volunteers has helped to restore and maintain the 1936 boathouse and updates have made it better suited to welcome students for outdoor school and serve as a museum.

“There’s a lot of people from Garibaldi and the surrounding area their fathers, grandfathers, great grandfathers, (are) heroes and we want to put that out there,” said Steve Denning, the Garibaldi Cultural Heritage Initiative’s (GCHI) volunteer director.

The boat house was originally constructed between 1935 and 1936 to house two new 36-foot lifesaving boats, as well as a 26-foot, manually propelled surfboat that had previously been the only vessel stationed in Tillamook Bay. Located at the end of a 650-plus-foot pier, the boathouse previously contained three sets of rails, down which carriages holding the boats would be lowered into the water.

At the time, it was standard practice for the coast guard to construct boat houses in this manner, according to Denning, although the Tillamook Bay boathouse was the last built using this design.

Operations began at the boat house in 1937, after a delay in procuring the carriages to move the boats prevented a 1936 opening. For the first six years of the boathouse’s existence, guardsmen still lived in the old station in Barview, until new housing opened across Highway 101 from the boathouse in 1943.

Budget committee recommends balanced county budget, shortfalls loom

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

The Tillamook County budget committee recommended a budget for county commissioner approval at their meeting on May 22 that will continue current service levels.

However, the budget relies on the withdrawal of around $4.6 million in future reserve funding and Tillamook County Treasurer Shawn Blanchard and committee members said that finding ways to equalize revenues and expenses would be critical in future budget cycles.

The total budget for the county will increase from $143 million this year to $152 million next year, according to Blanchard. Of that total figure, a vast majority is funded through special operating funds with their own funding sources and the budget committee’s main purview is the general fund, which will constitute $26.8 million of the budget.

Revenue to the general fund is not projected to fully meet those obligations though, with just $23.4 million projected to flow into county coffers.

To bridge the funding gap, Blanchard recommended and the committee approved a $1.2 million transfer from the county’s revenue stabilization fund and allowing a $3.4 million drop in the county’s beginning fund balance. The excess funds were generated by bumper years for timber harvest in fiscal years 2018 and 2019, which generated around $6 million in excess funds for the county.

Blanchard said that covering the gap in next year’s budget will drain most of the remainder of that windfall and that the board of forestry’s March approval of a habitat conservation plan for western Oregon state forests meant that it was unlikely to recur.

“Looking forward, the window is rapidly closing on the ability for state timber to provide such excess one-time funding,” Blanchard said.

Given this reality, Blanchard urged the commissioners to evaluate ways to increase future revenues, reign in future costs or both. Blanchard shared projections that showed the county’s budget continuing to grow over the next five years, with the gap between revenues and expenses increasing from a projected $2.2 million next year to over $5 million by fiscal year 2028.

County commissioners, who make up three of the committee’s six members, said that they were seriously concerned about the situation and were committed to addressing it.

The commissioners have already begun discussions about asking voters to approve an increase to the county’s transient lodging tax, with a tentative plan to seek approval in May 2025. Commissioners have discussed seeking a 5% increase in the rate of the tax from 10% to 15%, which would result in a million-dollar annual increase in county revenues.

Commissioner Doug Olson suggested that the budget committee meet monthly over the course of the next year to discuss possible means of growing county revenues or trimming expenses.

Both Olson and Commissioner Erin Skaar mentioned the pos-

Neah-Kah-Nie takes third in state band competition

The Neah-Kah-Nie High School band finished in third place in last month's OSAA state band competition in Corvallis. Russell Zaugg conducted the band in the competition on May 9, and said "this is a tremendous achievement for our students. I am so proud of them."

A close look at the 2024 wildfire season

JEREMY C. RUARK
Country Media Inc.

Dylan Johnson, Weyerhaeuser forester and firefighter crew leader, said he has one fear heading into Oregon's 2024 summer and fall wildfire season.

"The ice storm that we had this past winter has created a lot of heavy concentrated fuel loading across the landscape, so there is a lot of new fresh dead and down materials," he said. "That increases the danger of spreading hot and intense fires and it will be difficult to get to the fires for suppression."

Johnson also worries about the rugged terrain along the Oregon Coast range.

"Yes, it is steep and deep," he said. "That definitely doesn't help with the fire behavior. The terrain plays a factor in fire growth. It starts at the bottom of the slope and is forced up as the heat rises. It can run up the slope pretty quick."

Joining local, state, and federal forestry officials, Johnson is urging property owners to prepare now for the wildfire season ahead.

"The biggest message that rural land owners need to know is to make sure that you have a defensible space around your home," he said. "The Oregon Department of Forestry and most fire districts can come to your property and access your property and make suggestions of how you can increase your defensible space, so that way it is less of a fire risk."

According to the reports, wildfires burned across 190,507 acres in Oregon in 2023. A comparably low fire season. Fire officials said the Flat Fire in Curry County and the Bedrock Fire in Lane County burned more than 65,000 combined acres in 2023. Those fires were controlled after easterly winds eased and firefighters deployed rapid suppression efforts.

Mental health impact

According to Johnson, battling wildfires is physically exhausting and can adversely impact a firefighter's mental health.

"It is exhausting both physically and mentally," he said. "It's work in the summer time, so there is the heat of the season. You are working constantly. Long days. Just a few days off here and there. It is definitely a challenge."

So how does Johnson and the other firefighters deal with such a challenge?

"Take rest and relaxation when you have the opportunity," he said. "Your rely on your crew mates. They are like your family. You spend five six months of the year with these folks developing really good relationships. Everybody is going through the same thing. So you can talk with the people that are going through the same thing that you are. It is just your support system. So, staying positive is the biggest thing. Do your job safely, effectively and efficiently."

Currently, as a Weyerhaeuser forester, Johnson is helping reforest the fire-damaged Holiday Farms property.

"We lost about a third of our tree from from that wildfire," he said. "We are basically having to start over and plant new trees."

Weyerhaeuser partnership

For the third year, Weyerhaeuser has partnered with Firefighter Behavioral Health Alliance to help provide specialized support and mental health resources for wildland firefighters.

Addressing mental health challenges without stigma is critical to keeping firefighters safe, and the Fighting Fires Together campaign is designed to provide an important platform to amplify education and resources available for wildland firefighters and their families in the Pacific Northwest.

"After launching the Fighting Fires Together campaign with FBHA three years ago, we're proud to continue this effort to support wildland firefighters and their mental health as they work in challenging conditions to protect our communities," Weyerhaeuser Western Timberlands Vice President Bill Frings said. "Weyerhaeuser's approach to wildfire preparedness, prevention and mitigation is a year-round strategy, and part of this includes ensuring wildland firefighters have access to the resources they need to carry out this work."

Weyerhaeuser's annual campaign provides online resources in partnership with the Firefighter Behavioral Health Alliance designed to support wildland firefighters and their families, including videos on mental health topics, educational articles and contacts for wildland firefighter-specific support groups and experienced counselors.

The mission of Firefighter Behavioral Health Alliance is to collaborate, develop and implement behavioral health awareness, prevention, intervention, and post crisis strategies to provide firefighters with an easily accessible and confidential source of information.

First Student and Neah-Kah-Nie School District to deploy five new electric school buses

First Student, the leader in school bus electrification, will be delivering a cleaner and quieter ride to school for hundreds of students in the Neah-Kah-Nie School District. The company has secured a $1.7 million award from the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to purchase five new electric school buses, a first for the district.

“The Neah-Kah-Nie School District is proud to be a part of the transition to electric school buses and look forward to introducing our families to the future of student transportation,” said Neah-Kah-Nie School District Superintendent Dr. Tyler Reed. “Our top priority is ensuring our students have the safest and best environment for learning. We look forward to working with First Student to create healthier and more sustainable futures for our students.”

The funding for the electric school buses comes from the EPA’s Clean School Bus Program, which is designed to accelerate the deployment of electric school buses across the U.S. In its third round of funding, the EPA awarded First Student the funding to deploy up to an additional 670 new electric school buses in school districts across the country, bringing zero-emission student transportation to more communities, including Rockaway Beach.

“This award is a big win for the community and the movement toward cleaner transportation solutions,” said First Student Head of Electrification Kevin Matthews. “Delivering an exceptional transportation experience to families is paramount in our mission. By creating no emissions, reducing the noise level of the bus and providing a comfortable ride, students will arrive to school ready to learn and achieve their full potential. We thank the EPA and Neah-Kah-Nie School District for supporting our shared goal of a greener tomorrow.”

Replacing just one diesel school bus with an electric school bus can reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 54,000 pounds each year. First Student is committed to transitioning 30,000 of its diesel-powered school buses to electric by 2035.

First Student will partner with the Neah-Kah-Nie School

District to deploy the five new electric buses over the next 18 to 24 months. The company provides innovative and safe transportation every school day to the district’s students and families.

About First Student

As a leading school transportation solutions provider in North America, First Student strives to provide the best start and finish to every school day. What’s Up Doc? Making a smooth transition to a new healthcare provider

LEANNA COY
FNP-C, Family Nurse Practitioner
and Health Content Writer

When your primary care provider (PCP) retires, you move, or your insurance changes, finding a new healthcare provider can be challenging and anxiety-inducing. You want someone you can trust with, well, you. You want someone knowledgeable and empathetic to your personal needs. After all, this is someone you will see during times of vulnerability. Finding the right fit and fostering a good relationship is a vital part of managing your health. There are steps you can take to find someone you are comfortable with who provides the care you are looking for.

Choosing your doctor

Many different things go into why you choose a specific healthcare provider. Determine what is most important to you when selecting someone to see.

Qualifications:

A PCP is a healthcare provider who sees people for common medical problems. Traditionally, this was a doctor. In the State of Oregon, medical doctors (MDs), osteopathic doctors (DOs), nurse practitioners (NPs), physician assistants (PAs), and naturopaths (NDs) can all work as primary care providers. Each type of provider has medical training, but the training varies based on their education, which affects how they provide care.

Get to know them:

Look up their profile on the clinic’s website. This usually includes a photo and a bit of information about the person. Reading online patient reviews may give you a sense of their communication or practice style.

Office hours and availability:

Finding someone who works when you don’t will make getting your routine care easier. Make sure you know their clinic’s hours, including any weekend or evening availability. Also, when you call to schedule, ask about the specific provider’s availability. Are they booked out months in advance? That is a warning about potential difficulty seeing them when an issue arises.

Insurance coverage:

Some clinics may take your insurance, but your insurance may not cover the one provider you want to see. An example of this is with naturopaths who are not covered by Medicare. It is also important to remember this when your insurance changes. A new insurance may not cover the provider who has managed your care for the last 10 years. Contact your insurance company for a list of covered providers.

Before your first appointment

Preparing your first appointment will make the appointment go more smoothly for both you and the new PCP. There are basics any new healthcare provider will need:

Collect information on your medical history:

- Past surgeries, illnesses, chronic health conditions
- Current medications, supplements, and allergy list
- Vaccination record
- Family medical history

Make a list of concerns to talk about with the provider:

- What is most concerning to you that day?
- Keep the list short with at most three items. Appointments are typically only 20-40 minutes. Respect the provider’s time to see their other patients by scheduling a second visit if needed.
- Do you have high blood pressure or diabetes? Write down recent readings to share with the provider.

Making the most of your first visit

Show up prepared to get the visit off to a good start. This will help reduce any anxiety or stress you may have about it.

- Make sure to give yourself enough time for the appointment without needing to rush off to another task.
- Arrive early to fill out paperwork.

- Bring any past medical records or contact information for your previous PCP and specialists.
- Remember that insurance card!

Plan for open communication

- Be honest about your health. The PCP can’t give you the best care if pieces of your healthcare puzzle are missing.
- Talk about your healthcare goals. Are you worried about a family history of dementia or trying to bring down your blood pressure? Let them know.
- Ask questions to clarify information you don’t understand.
- Request a written summary of the visit for you to review later.
- Know the next steps, such as any follow-up visits or referrals.

Building a long-term relationship

Any good relationship requires effort from both sides.

- Stay in touch with your healthcare provider by scheduling regular well checks.

- Schedule and keep the follow-up visits your provider recommends. These visits are generally to keep an eye on health concerns.
- Keep your PCP updated about any changes to your health, such as new injuries or surgeries.
- If you see a specialist, go to urgent care, or the emergency room, make sure the records of your visit are sent to your PCP.

Finding a PCP can go smoothly with a bit of preparation. One of the fundamental components to developing a good relationship with your healthcare provider is seeing them regularly, not just when you have a problem. This helps the PCP get to know you and your health situation. Open communication will go a long way in building a strong provider-patient relationship, which can help to improve your health outcomes.

TAPA’s Summer Theater Camp accepting applications

The Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts (TAPA) proudly announces its summer theater camp for students aged 10-17. Starlite Academy takes place the week of July 8 through 12 with 2 p.m. matinee performances on July 13 and 14. There are spots for 15 student actors aged ten to seventeen. There will also be space for two to five current high school students who are interested in working on the crew.

This year’s Starlite Theater Camp will be directed by Ann Harper, a current TAPA member, actor, and director. Students in the camp will attend a variety of theater classes and work on preparing this year’s show.

The cost is $25 per student and registration is now open. Registration forms can be requested at TAPA’s website www.tillamooktheater.com, by emailing Tapaatthebarn@gmail.com, or phoning TAPA at 503-812-0275. Registration forms are due by June 25.

Parents will be notified regarding their child’s acceptance into the camp. Spaces are limited. Parents and student participants are expected to attend an organizational meeting on July 6 at 6 p.m.

Diverse forests are healthy forests

Getting pesticides out of forests and watersheds and valuing deciduous species

A Canadian/American speaking tour will be coming to Rockaway Beach, Oregon on June 22 to talk about the need for a new paradigm in forest management.

Taking place at St. Mary by the Sea Parish Hall (275 S Pacific St. Rockaway Beach, OR) from 2:00 to 3:30, the event features Deke Gunderson, Environmental scientist and toxicologist, James Steidle of Stop the Spray BC, and salmon biologist Ryan Branstetter of the Umatilla Tribe. Doors will open at 1:30 p.m. for mingling and refreshments.

“Forestry in the Pacific Northwest, from Oregon to British Columbia and beyond, has become more like thinking of forests as an agricultural crop, and this has had significant impacts on wildlife, resiliency, and wildfire,” says James Steidle.

Pesticides are widely used in forestry across the Pacific Northwest to remove deciduous species like alder, cottonwood, madrone (arbutus), maple, birch, and aspen. The goal is to grow commercial conifer plantations of one or two species.

“As a salmon biologist, these forests lands, especially those found in the riparian area, are critical to salmon, as the salmon are also critical to the health of the forests, Says Ryan Branstetter. “There are some tough questions to ask as a community, such as: What is a healthy forest? and, How do we maintain a healthy diverse forests?”

Simplifying forests and removing deciduous species like red alder can harm fisheries and increases the probability of forest fires, something recognized as long ago as 1917. It can also undermine the growth of conifer. Experiments with alder in the Columbia Gorge at Wind River in the 1920’s have shown that the Douglas fir that grew under the alder now have 2.1 to 2.8 higher basal area than in the pure douglas fir stands.

“While we begin to recognize the growing benefits of mixed forests and deciduous species in our regional forests, we are also starting to recognize the costs of eliminating them through toxic chemicals,” says Deke Gunderson.

“Global pesticide use has skyrocketed and their use in forestry has exploded along with it. But as pesticide contamination becomes more widespread, we are also starting to recognize their costs.”

Some of the pesticides used in Oregon and Washington State forestry include glyphosate, 2,4-d, hexazinone, and tricoplyr. A recent Oregon study found the presence of these forestry herbicides in 38% of bivalves sampled.

“Healthy, diverse forests, are a good investment for the long term health of our communities along the Pacific Coast. The reason for this is that they are sources for both Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples foods, medicines, cultural practices, and livelihoods,” adds Branstetter.

Other dates for the tour include Peachland, British Columbia on June 27, and Prince George, British Columbia, July 3. The event is being organized by North Coast Communities for Watershed Protection, Stop the Spray BC, Peachland Watershed Protection Alliance, and Wilderness Committee.

Our library and the Summer Reading program

DONALD ALLGEIER
Tillamook Library Director

The end of the school year is coming soon, and that means the library is rolling out the Summer Reading program. This year’s theme is read, renew, repeat with a focus on sustainability and reading. Library staff have been hard at work to develop an exciting summer program that includes interactive programs, a reading game, and prizes for completing the game. We are excited and grateful to have donated prizes this year from the Tillamook YMCA’s Pastega Activity Center, Bay City Kitchen and Sea Breeze Ice Cream along with books and other prizes. Thanks to the Tillamook County Library Foundation for coordinating donations. Summer Reading will start on June 10th and families can begin bringing in their registration forms on that day.

Summer Reading isn’t all fun and games, though. The library focuses on this program to get kids excited about reading and learning. Taking part in the program can help students to limit the summer slide where kids lose some of the learning gains from the previous school year over the long summer break. With reading and activities that are designed to keep kids engaged in learning and activities, Summer Reading is a great way for families to make sure that young people have support for learning throughout the summer. The main library will also host a grub club to provide kids with access to healthy lunches courtesy of Tillamook United Methodist Church Monday through Friday starting at 11:30 a.m.

The library will have summer programs all through the summer and throughout Tillamook County. Popular programs such as the Border Collie International, Paradise of Samoa and Dragon Theater will compliment sustainability programs from the Heart of CARTM. Teen programs will include opportunities to make recycled paper, create t-shirt pillows and craft malted crayon jewelry. The library will host movies on Wednesdays at noon throughout the summer. For a full schedule of events follow the library on Facebook or visit the library to get a full program of summer events for all ages.

The library has begun giving out sign-up packets to students throughout Tillamook County. We will be signing up kids through July 5th. If your child attends school in one of the three districts, they will get summer reading packets at school. If your child does not go to school through one of the districts, they can stop by any library to sign up and get a welcome packet. Please follow up with them to make sure they get signed up and can take part in the fun and learning this summer. We can’t wait to see all the kids reading and growing throughout the summer.

The best part of my volunteer time at the Historic Chamber Caboose has been meeting people who are excited about coming to Rockaway Beach. And while the beach itself is the leading attraction for most visitors, our other natural areas are a significant draw.

One thing that many people have heard of and inquire about: the Big Cedar preserve and boardwalk. My Fencepost of July 19, 2022, talked about the Cedar Preserve in detail. The Western Red Cedar itself, at 154 feet tall and 49 feet wide, has been certified as one of Oregon’s largest trees, making it what Ascending the Giants calls a “champion tree.”

Many visitors are drawn to the cedar preserve because it’s wheel-friendly, and suitable for all ages. Young families with kids in strollers love the ease of navigating the 1.2-mile boardwalk there, as do visitors in wheelchairs and walkers. It’s really a place where people at many levels of mobility can get out and experience nature.

When these visitors ask me for other, similar nature walks, I mention without hesitation one of my favorites: Kilchis Point Reserve in Bay City. The Tillamook County Pioneer Museum is responsible for holding and maintaining the land in public trust.

Like the cedar preserve, Kilchis Point is a smooth, easy walk—barely worth being called a hike—with good, smooth trails. Much of the 2.1-mile loop trail uses boardwalks, like the cedar preserve. Most of the rest is smoothly graded pea-gravel, described by the Alltrails Web site as stroller and wheelchair friendly.

Kilchis has a wealth of history in the region. It was the site of one of the largest Native American villages on the northern Oregon coast. In 1851, Oregon’s first pioneer settler, Joe Champion, lived in a hollow cedar stump next to this village while he built a cabin for his permanent residence.

If you’ve ever noticed the Morning Star, the ship in front of the Tillamook Cheese Factory, you probably know it’s a replica of the original Morning Star. But the original ship was built at Kilchis Point, completed on December 29, 1854. That makes it the first ship built in Tillamook County as well as the first registered in the Oregon Territory. Kilchis Point was also the home of Tillamook County’s first post office, and of the Whitney Lumber Company.

But my favorite part of Kilchis Point Reserve is the scenery. From the trailhead, you move into a lightly wooded area with a number of interpretive signs. One of those signs includes information about Joe Champion and his hollow-stump living quarters. Others give more historical information and help identify the plants and animals that call this stretch of woodland home.

When you reach the turnaround point at the end of the loop trail, you’ll find a large, covered gazebo just a few yards from the shore of Tillamook Bay. The gazebo has wonderful signage about the bird life you’ll see. It’s highly varied, due to the proximity to the bay. Shorebirds like gulls, cormorants and pelicans sometimes fly over the water. The forest birds include Oregon juncos, crowned sparrows, flickers, starlings and thrush, all familiar to our stretch of the coast.

We have enjoyed packing a lunch, having a picnic in the gazebo, and then watching the gentle waves in the bay lap at the shore. It’s a change from the surf at the Wayside, and it’s beautiful, restful, and inspiring.

If you’re an avid hiker looking for sweeping vistas and challenging terrain, the trails on or near Mt. Neakahnne are more like what you’re looking for. But if you have small children or if any of your party have mobility issues, Kilchis Point is an easily accessed jewel. And even if you’re an experienced hiker, Kilchis Point makes a great recovery walk for the day after you push yourself on a trail with lots of elevation change.

To get there from Rockaway Beach, head south on 101 to approximately milepost 61. When you reach Warren Street, turn right towards the bay. The nest street is Spruce, where you turn left. The parking area is to your right. There’s a trail map, an arbor, and a garden of native plants in the parking lot.

Grocers not serving seniors

I have a problem with our grocery stores. Both Safeway and Fred Meyer (Kroger) are skewed to the rich. Buy five items or pay the regular price. No smart phone? Pay the regular price. Half the sale prices are unavailable to those of us who could really use a break. There is a huge senior population here in Tillamook and many are on a fixed income.

Sounds like discrimination to me. Especially heinous since it targets those of us who can least afford it. Corporate greed.

Protect family farms

Oregon coastal communities, besides living on the beautiful coast - have an extra bonus coming from the small farms here which produce both meat and fruit and vegetables. But something bad is happening. Our farms here are being put out of business, just like farmers in other countries. To get more information, This video explains how “OUR” farmers are being put out of business. Please watch and PLEASE support our local farmers.

We need to join together to support them.

Also contact your governor and oppose the placing of Ivan Gall as the head of the Oregon Water Resources Department. He does not have a good record of leadership and is opposed by the Oregon Farm bureau. To contact your governor - call 1-503-378-4582 and leave a message.

Thank you Walkers Contract Cutting

We hired Walkers Contract Cutting, Inc. to remove a 100 plus year-old hemlock tree from our property. The tree was very close to our well, our house, and Hwy 6. Everyone on the job site was very professional, provided great service, and they cleaned up all of the mess the job created. We have flowers growing under the tree and they did not break a one of them. Walker Contract Cutting, Inc, is a good reason to hire local.

Sad news. Bittersweet news. Dusty news. Planning news. Here we go... Thursday morning was the worst kind of way to wake up. It wasn't the toddler boy screaming for a new bottle so much as the text we received from the Cavitt family. Kyler Cavitt was only 28. Gentle giant. Carpenter Union. Out on his own. Was working a traveling gig in Arizona when tragedy struck. He's the son of Garibaldi Portside Bistro and Barview Jetty Store's Dennis Cavitt (father) and Gengee Ramirez (mother). Their respective households have partnered together to start a GoFundMe to help Kyler properly lay to rest. It's described on Good Reads as "A striking and surprising debut novel... a page-turning and big-hearted story about race and privilege, set around a young black babysitter, her well-intentioned employer, and a surprising connection that threatens to undo them both." You can find Wendy Burroughs taking a beach walk just about every morning. Or perhaps "beach patrol" is a better term. She keeps a sharp eye out, and on May 20 she discovered the big log at beach access #29 was smoldering. She pulled up our new Good Neighbor Guide on her phone (capemeares.org) to get numbers to call to alert the authorities, and she also posted a call for help on MeWe, the social media site used by our neighborhood. Neighbors Steve and Ann Quinn and Wendy's husband, Mike, were quickly on the scene to help with chainsaw, shovels and a cart. The group filled a rice bag from Japan found on the beach with ocean water and used the Quinns' garden cart to carry the water to the smoldering log. Tillamook Fire responded promptly after the call to them, too. Any sign of a fire was extinguished, with a park ranger coming out in the afternoon just to double-check. Many thanks to you all. It's just the start of the fire season... be safe and alert out there, folks, and keep fires well away from driftwood and vegetation. ly the authorities, the paralytic toxin affecting mussels moved northward over the weekend. Twenty individuals who ate mussels from Short Beach to Seaside fell ill—some severely enough to be hospitalized. We were told by the Oregon Dept. of Agriculture employee who returned Pete's call on Sunday that some of the toxic mussels were from Cape Meares beach. We hope all those affected make a fast and full recovery. Kudos to Stacy Mason, now a fulltime Cape Meares resident, for participating in her first Oceanside Annual Memorial Weekend Art Show & Sale. Stacy creates attractive small-batch, functional ceramics from the Oregon coast (see <https://masonclay.com/>). Capt. Pete and I enjoyed visiting her booth at the art show. In case you missed it, last year the Cape Meares

Community Association (CMCA) decided to dissolve the Social Committee when long-time leaders moved on to other activities. In its place, CMCA asked community members to step up and host a regular potluck, if interested. We have had some fun potlucks since the change, including a Hawaiian-themed one and a recent one featuring a fantastic barbecued turkey, but we missed the traditional Memorial Day gathering. The good news is that CMCA designated the July 4 potluck as a permanent event. Kathy Burke and Mary Gordon will head up the potluck and music for the 4th, Deborah Neal will line up a "procession," and Pam Robenolt is organizing the silent auction (CMCA's biggest fundraiser for the year). Attend the groundbreaking ceremony at TBCC

Tillamook Bay Community College (TBCC) would like to invite you to the Groundbreaking Ceremony for the new Healthcare Education Building on Friday, June 21, from 1 - 2 PM. TBCC President Dr. Paul Jarrell will give some formal remarks alongside special dignitaries. Please join them, dedicated staff and faculty from the college, and other community members to celebrate this innovative step forward for TBCC. Built directly on the gravel lot adjacent to the main campus, the new building will house TBCC's Allied Health programs such as the nursing program that started this year, the EMS program, and the phlebotomy and medical assisting programs. The EMS lab will have an ambulance simulator for students to use while the nursing lab will have at least three hospital beds with multiple simulators. Renderings of the new building and samples of carpet, wood, and other internal features will be on display at the Groundbreaking Ceremony. Attendees can get a closer look at the concepts for the 360-seat community event center; the space can be divided into three separate rooms or used as one large event hall, and meet TBCC's partners for this project, Opisis Architecture Inc., Kirby Nagel-hout Constriction Co., and Wenaha Group. The Groundbreaking Ceremony marks the first of many upcoming construction developments for the college. Shortly after work begins on the Healthcare Education Building, TBCC's main campus will undergo a minor internal remodel to create more classroom and office space, and the old Mechtronics building will be transformed into the Center for Industrial Technology (CIT) with space for TBCC's welding and manufacturing programs. Come celebrate and support education on Friday, June 21 from 1 - 2 PM by attending the Groundbreaking Ceremony at TBCC. We look forward to seeing you.

Marine biotoxin closure affect entire Oregon coast

New shellfish closures are affecting the entire Oregon coast, the Oregon Department of Agriculture and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife announced May 30. This comes after the Oregon Health Authority announced that at least 21 people were sickened by Paralytic Shellfish Poisoning (PSP) after eating mussels recreationally harvested on the North Coast since May 25. Mussel harvesting is now closed along the entire Oregon coast. Recent mussel samples taken from the coast exceed the limit for PSP, a natural marine biotoxin produced by some species of microscopic algae. Current harvest closures and openings:

- Mussel harvesting is closed coastwide for elevated levels of PSP. • Razor clamming is closed from Yachats to the California border for elevated levels of both PSP and domoic acid. It remains open from the Washington border to Yachats. • Recreational and commercial bay clam harvesting is closed from the Washington border to Cascade Head for elevated levels of PSP. This includes all clam species in the bays. Harvest is open from Cascade Head to the California border. • Crab harvesting remains open along the entire Oregon coast. The ODA has also closed commercial oyster harvesting in Netarts and Tillamook bays. ODA will continue testing for shellfish toxins at least twice per month, as tides and weather permit. Reopening an area closed for biotoxins requires two consecutive tests with results below the closure limit. For more information call ODA's shellfish biotoxin hotline at (800) 448-2474, the ODA Food Safety Program at 503- 986-4720, or visit the ODA Recreational Shellfish Biotoxin Closures Webpage. Tomorrow, May 31, ODFW is hosting a 9:30 a.m. livestream with experts from ODFW, the Oregon Health Authority, and ODA on ODFW's YouTube and Facebook channels. Contact ODFW for recreational license requirements, permits, rules, and limits.

Evelyn Kalaher
Aug. 1, 1933 ~ March 27, 2024

On March 27, 2024 Evelyn Marie (Fletcher) Kalaher passed peacefully away. Evelyn was born in Tillamook, Oregon Aug. 1, 1933.

She is survived by her daughters, Ann Richards (Zehn) of Tillamook, Sharlene McNeil of Ogden, Utah, Patricia Carlson (Chris) of Albany, Georgia and Enid Kalaher of Poteet, Texas; seven grandchildren; 10 great grandchildren; one great-great grandchild; sister Virginia Beeler of Tillamook; and brother Marion Fletcher of Tillamook.

She is preceded in death by her husband Tom; parents, Schuyler and Agnes Fletcher; brother Andrew Fletcher; and two great grandchildren.

Evelyn went to school in Tillamook, was a rodeo queen and graduated from Tillamook High School. She went to work for a local doctor after high school and during the Tillamook Burn she worked on the switchboards of the local telephone company. She met Robert Jepsen while he was serving in the Air Force at Naval Air Station Tillamook. They later married in August of 1953. She had Ann and Sharlene with Robert; their marriage ended in divorce shortly after Sharlene was born.

Now that she was a working mother, she took jobs as she could find them and went to night school for accounting. In 1961, Evelyn met and married Thomas Kalaher in Elko, Nevada. The couple lived in Orem, Utah for a few years where they had Patricia. Later they moved the family of three to Tillamook so they could be closer to her family. For the next few years, they lived in South Prairie and Pleasant Valley, where they had Enid.

They continued living in the Tillamook/Bay City area until the summer of 1971, when they moved back to Utah. She worked as an accountant for most of her life. After she and Tom retired, they traveled around the country in their RV. When their health started to fail them, they moved back to their home in Utah.

She loved family get togethers for barbecues, birthdays, and holidays. She loved to sew, and made a lot of quilts. She made quilts for all of her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. She and Tom made quilts for women's shelters and veteran's groups while traveling around the country.

She lost Tom in April of 2015 and after that she took turns living with her daughters. When she started losing her sight, she continued to crochet things for local craft markets. She celebrated her 90th birthday in August of 2023 with family and friends. This was a big thing for her, because when she was younger doctors told her she would not live to be 40.

She will be horribly missed by her family. A celebration of Life will be held for her from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m. on May 17, 2024 at the Naval Air Station Tillamook, Officers Mess Hall, 6825 Officer Row, Tillamook, Oregon.

Michael "Mike" Glowa
Nov. 2, 1943 ~ April 3, 2024

With profound sadness, we announce the passing of Michael "Mike" Glowa on April 3, 2024. A beloved man whose life was a testament to the power of love, joy, and resilience. He left us peacefully at the age of 80 after a battle that never once dimmed the light of his spirit.

One of ten children, born to Steve and Helen Glowa, Mike was raised in a small coal mining town in Pennsylvania. He graduated from PSU with a major in Russian, settled in Portland to raise a family and spent 37 years at ESCO until retiring. Mike brought positive energy and optimism to every situation, his ability to find joy in the smallest moments was a gift. Those who met him found his presence comforting, leaving a lasting impression. Mike was an adventurer and outdoor enthusiast. He was an active runner, dragon boat racer, Mt. Hood climber, fisherman and city councilmember.

It was in Wheeler where he spent his retirement fishing and crabbing. It was a passion that connected him with others. Mike met his wife Cathie later in life's journey. They spent 17 wonderful years together, and Cathie remains a reflection of their shared faith, hope and happiness.

For Mike nothing was more important than family. His three daughters were his pride, joy, and legacy. They carry a spark of his vibrant energy, and commitment to the family bonds he held so dear. We will miss him dearly but take comfort knowing he will live on through the great memories and stories we share. His legacy will continue to inspire and guide us, just as his presence always did. We will hold him in our hearts forever.

Tom Chambers
March 22, 1952 ~ May 13, 2024

Tom was born to Harold “Johnny” and Ruby Chambers of Wheeler, Oregon on March 22, 1952, and was one of the first babies born at Tillamook Hospital, a fact that he was unlikely to let you forget. Tommy was a skilled outdoorsman, a pirate born too late, an uncanny stand-in for Santa, and a favorite of dogs and babies alike. He is possibly most well-known for being able to build a fire in the middle of a hurricane. Tom took great pride in his hometown of Wheeler and passed peacefully in his sleep in the golden glow of the evening of May 13th, overlooking the Nehalem Bay he loved, with “just the faintest aroma of lilacs” on the breeze. He leaves behind his pride and joy, daughters, Grace and Lucia Chambers, to whom he has successfully imparted his impeccable music taste and good looks. Memorial Celebrations are planned for 3 p.m. on June 8, 2024 at the White Clover Grange in Mohler, Oregon. Fishing buddies are encouraged to bring a favorite fishing pole to line the hall in tribute. Wear your best tie dye or “hukilau” Hawaiian shirt and come celebrate one of the all-time greats.

Michael Johns
April 28, 1951 ~ May 16, 2024

Michael Johns, born as the oldest son of Mary Jean Dawes and Fredrick Johns, on April 28, 1951, passed away at home on May 16, 2024. Mike’s full life started with his young adulthood spent serving in the Army which led to living in Korea and Germany. His hard work in construction and as a contractor led him to business ownership at Handlebar Enterprises, which he ran until his retirement. Mike enjoyed nature and the outdoors. Camping, hiking, fishing, white water rafting, Mike always seemed to find peace and joy near the water. Paula Johns, his devoted wife, loved their adventures together; made more memorable by Mike’s dry sense of humor. Paula, the love of his life, misses his kind presence at their beach house where they walked their beloved dogs on the shore during his final years. Mike enjoyed drone flying and playing the wii. Friends and family are encouraged to contact M.JohnsCOL@gmail.com for celebration of life information. In lieu of flowers please donate to the American Cancer Society in remembrance of the man who left this unfillable spot. Rest well, Mike

Netarts Water District lanches website, online bill pay

The Netarts Water District is excited to announce the official launch of its website at netartswaterdistrict.com, providing timely service information and online bill pay functionality for added convenience. Today, our customers may now pay their water bill by cash, check, ACH/bank transfer, and credit/debit card. “With so many people relying on technology for information and automated processing functions, the website offers an additional resource for us to keep our customers informed of what’s happening within the district. The bill pay function provides a link where customers have access to their account portal and offers a pay online feature. We have had a great response from our customer base with these recent additions.” – Debbie Hess, Office Manger The district is thankful to the Special Districts Association of Oregon (SDAO) who helped to sponsor this project through its Internship Matching Grant Program, connecting college students with local governments. The district hired Logan Laity on a part-time basis to continue with district modernization following the successful completion of the grant project. “I am excited to help our water district modernize, starting with our website and now onto a Geographic Information System, a type of web map to monitor district assets. Thank you to the Special Districts Association for enabling this exciting opportunity.” – Logan Laity, Project Manager The website makes it easy for our customers to check their account, monitor usage, make a payment, and access district news. “Embracing technology not only brings the district into the 21st century, and improves the customer experience, my hope is it will attract the next generation of water industry workers.” – Traci Bean, General Manager

Tillamook Coast Launches trails coalition to enhance recreation and accessibility

New partnership aims to improve trail systems, secure funding and promote responsible tourism The Tillamook Coast Visitors Association (TCVA) has formed the Tillamook Bay Trails Coalition, a collaborative partnership that will concentrate on prioritizing trails and recreation projects around and near Tillamook Bay. The newly formed coalition consists of TCVA, City of Rockaway Beach, Port of Garibaldi, Oregon Coast Scenic Railroad, Tillamook Estuaries Partnership, City of Bay City, Tillamook County Parks Department, Tillamook County Wellness and the Port of Tillamook Bay. Dan Haag, TCVA’s Director of Trails, Outdoor Recreation, and Accessibility says, “This group believes that creating a wider variety of accessible trails and outdoor spaces will benefit the health and well-being of both visitors and residents, reduce traveler’s carbon footprint, encourage responsible visitation and usage of these areas. and bring people closer to the businesses and organizations in and around these communities.” The goals of this collaboration are twofold: to partner on funding opportunities to build and enhance trail systems and facilities on and around Tillamook Bay; and to create the Tillamook Bay Discovery Loop. The Discovery Loop will be an online presence that provides information on Tillamook Bay history, culture, commerce, recreation and stewardship. Both goals support the planning and creation of the Salmonberry Trail, a major portion of which runs along Tillamook Bay. Haag thinks one of the key elements of this collaboration is eliminating some of the competition for funding by allowing the coalition to apply for grants collectively. “Grants are highly competitive, especially for recreation projects,” Haag said. “Working together gives us a better shot at these funds.” Tillamook Bay Trails Coalition will hold their first meeting in June and use that initial gathering to define their scope of work for the coming year. Haag said there are lots of possibilities for projects to consider, including creating new green spaces, adding informational signage and supporting projects currently in development. “We’ve spent the last year working with other trail coalitions around the state, learning how this process works,” he said. “We wanted to start small, and we’ve got the right partners at the table, but there will definitely be room for more moving forward.” For more information about the Tillamook Coast Visitors Association and the Tillamook Bay Trails Coalition, contact Dan Haag at dan@tillamookcoast.com.

In their rookie year at the competition, the troop took home 2nd place ribbons in the First Aid scenarios and the Campfire Dessert challenge. They worked together under the watchful eye of a judging panel to build a charcoal fire and bake a strawberry rhubarb crisp in a Dutch

reinvigorated as educational asset

The boathouse’s mission began to scale down in the mid-1960s when two new 44-foot lifesaving boats were stationed at the Port of Garibaldi. For the next decade, the boathouse remained operational as guardsmen used the aging boats for towing practice, but by the mid-1970s it was decommissioned before ownership was transferred to the Port of Garibaldi in 1980.

Over the next three-plus decades, the port leased the structure to businesses, first to a bait shop and then to a scuba diving instructor, who closed shop in the early 2010s. During this period the building’s upstairs was converted into living quarters and one of the three sets of rails was removed from the floor.

After sitting abandoned for several years, the boathouse came to the attention of Clair Thomas, retired natural resources education coordinator for the Tillamook School District and current president of GCHI’s board of directors, in 2015.

Thomas, along with other volunteers, began restoration work on the boathouse, which had fallen into disrepair, and began holding field trips for students from local school districts almost immediately.

By 2017, with work progressing and educational activities increasing, Thomas helped to found the GCHI, which has held the lease and managed the boathouse since.

Port of Garibaldi Manager Mike Saindon said that teaming up with the GCHI to preserve the historic boathouse was an easy decision for leaders at the port.

“The port values and wants to preserve and share this area’s rich history,” Saindon said. “Partnering with the GCHI and their expanding programs is an honor and preserving the boathouse is very important to port staff and commissioners.”

Now, the boathouse welcomes schoolchildren participating in outdoor school programs throughout the year, for hands-on learning opportunities about marine biology, robotics and other subjects. Thomas, who also coordinates educational activities at the boathouse, said that more than 1,000 students from as far away as Spokane had visited the boathouse for outdoor school in May alone.

Thomas also leverages the boathouse’s location to help local robotics teams practice their underwater skills, offering a series of workshops to learn to build and operate underwater robots. Thomas said that both the Tillamook and Neah-Kah-Nie robotics teams had participated, as well as teams from two charter schools, and that the waters of the bay provided an added challenge. “Both of those teams will come and do things here because here, they have challenging situations, while there, they just have a pool,” Thomas said. In addition to scholastic pursuits, the boathouse is also open to the public on Saturdays and Sundays from noon to 4 p.m., containing exhibits relating to local history.

GCHI is a 501(c)3-registered, non-profit organization, which accepts donations and volunteers to help with ongoing maintenance and programs at the boathouse. The group is hosting a meeting on June 5, from 5-6:30 p.m. at the boathouse for residents to tell stories about local history.

Denning, who served in the coast guard at Tillamook Bay in the 1980s, said that hearing and sharing stories about the building, area and coast guard was one of his favorite aspects of volunteering at the boathouse.

“A lot of people come in, they have stories, they came in here for a reason, and a lot of times it’ll be something like this, ‘you know, my brother-in-law was in the coast guard,’ and they want to tell me about that experience and I want to hear it,” Denning said.

standoff, Mumey called the manager of the vacation rental company that owned the property. After a brief conversation, the manager confirmed that Schaeffer and his partner, who worked for the company, were legally permitted to stay at the property. Around the same time, the officers were able to speak with Schaeffer’s partner, who remained upstairs during the incident but told the officers that she was okay.

Following several more tense minutes, around 15 minutes after his arm was first grabbed, Schaeffer asked the officers to deescalate the situation and let him go back to bed. The officers told him that that wasn’t going to happen and, for the first time, detailed the accusation leveled against Schaeffer. Five minutes later, the officers informed Schaeffer that they were going to arrest him before barging through the door, taking him to the ground, dragging him onto the front porch and cuffing his hands behind his back. “Why? Why did you do this? I know you, you’ve always been a nice guy, why did you do this,” one of the officers asked Schaeffer as they restrained him. After being arrested, Schaeffer and his partner told the police that they had been trying to find an owner’s phone number on the loose dog’s collar in the middle of the street, when the woman who called the police ran at them. Schaeffer said that he had held up his arm in self-defense, hitting the woman inadvertently, a story which his partner corroborated. Mumey then took Schaeffer to the Tillamook County Jail, where he was held for the night on charges of resisting arrest and assault, before being released the next morning with all charges dropped a day after that. In November, Perriguy filed a lawsuit against Zepeda and Mumey on Schaeffer’s behalf in the United States District Court in Portland. The suit included one claim of false arrest and excessive force, one claim of negligence, one claim of assault and battery, and a further claim of false arrest. The suit said that Schaeffer had spent around $5,000 on medical expenses to treat injuries to his arm and shoulder, as well as for psychological injuries, which the suit said were ongoing. Mumey was represented by Citycounty Insurance Services, while Zepeda was represented by the Oregon Department of Justice. The case against Mumey was settled in late April, with Schaeffer receiving $40,000 to release all claims while acknowledging that the settlement was not an admission of liability, fault or wrongdoing. The case against Zepeda was settled on the same terms in the middle of May. Manzanita Police Chief Erik Harth said in a statement that the settlement had been reached by the department’s insurance carrier and “expressly disavows any fault or wrongdoing by the officer.” Perriguy said that Schaeffer continues to suffer lingering psychological effects from the incident and that his main goal with the settlement was to keep another citizen from going through the same thing. “He’s primarily interested in encouraging education about constitutional issues with the police,” Perriguy said.

sibility of seeking a serial levy to support the sheriff’s office, which would allow those expenses to be removed from the general fund.

Commissioner-elect Paul Fournier, a longtime sheriff’s deputy, was attending the meeting and chimed in that Sheriff Josh Brown had voiced reservations about tying public safety funding to an uncertain funding source.

Final approval of the budget will come to the board of commissioners at their meeting on June 26, and the budget committee agreed to meet once monthly for three hours to discuss the situation.

STATEMENT OF CHANGES IN ACTIVITIES and SOURCES OF FINANCING **
The District's General Fund revenue primarily comes from the State School Fund (SSF). At the time this budget was built, the 2024-25 biennium SSF is $10.2 billion allocating $26.7 million to the District, which does not cover the needs of current operational levels. Due to the shortfall created at the $10.2 billion SSF level, this budget is built with a plan to use up to $3.087 million of the district's reserves. General Fund appropriations increased from the 2023-24 Adopted Budget by $1.35 million, with most of the increase in salaries and benefits. Debt Service and Internal Service Funds increased by $161k, Special Revenue Funds increased by $212k due to and increase in grant funding, and Capital Improvements decreased by $3.1 million due to the Junior High Seismic project and related costs. This budget includes a reduction of about 7 FTE in an effort to reduce expenditures and slow fund balance usage.

Even Exchange by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.

STATEMENT OF CHANGES IN ACTIVITIES and SOURCES OF FINANCING **

The District's General Fund revenue primarily comes from the State School Fund (SSF). At the time this budget was built, the 2024-25 biennium SSF is $10.2 billion allocating $26.7 million to the District, which does not cover the needs of current operational levels. Due to the shortfall created at the $10.2 billion SSF level, this budget is built with a plan to use up to $3.087 million of the district's reserves. General Fund appropriations increased from the 2023-24 Adopted Budget by $1.35 million, with most of the increase in salaries and benefits. Debt Service and Internal Service Funds increased by $161k, Special Revenue Funds increased by $212k due to and increase in grant funding, and Capital Improvements decreased by $3.1 million due to the Junior High Seismic project and related costs. This budget includes a reduction of about 7 FTE in an effort to reduce expenditures and slow fund balance usage.

STATEMENT OF CHANGES IN ACTIVITIES and SOURCES OF FINANCING **
The District's General Fund revenue primarily comes from the State School Fund (SSF). At the time this budget was built, the 2024-25 biennium SSF is $10.2 billion allocating $26.7 million to the District, which does not cover the needs of current operational levels. Due to the shortfall created at the $10.2 billion SSF level, this budget is built with a plan to use up to $3.087 million of the district's reserves. General Fund appropriations increased from the 2023-24 Adopted Budget by $1.35 million, with most of the increase in salaries and benefits. Debt Service and Internal Service Funds increased by $161k. Special Revenue Funds increased by $212k due to and increase in grant funding, and Capital Improvements decreased by $3.1 million due to the Junior High Seismic project and related costs. This budget includes a reduction of about 7 FTE in an effort to reduce expenditures and slow fund balance usage.
