HISTORIC VOTE

TPUD approves resolution to acquire easements and properties however necessary

Ashley Tike
Staff Writer

On April 19th the Tillamook People's Utility District (TPUD) approved a resolution to acquire easements and properties to move forward with their Tillamook to Oceanside Transmission Line Project and the substation property in a vote 4 to 1. Board member David Burt representing subdivision #2 voted no.

This approval authorizes TPUD staff to continue collaborating with property owners to secure easements along the Tillamook to Oceanside transmission line route.

The meeting was held at Tillamook Bay Community College, instead of at the TPUD meeting room, as a large crowd was expected. More than 130 fired-up and passionate people were in attendance, the room was full and people were spilling out into the hallway.

The meeting started with public comments; Kurt Mizee a 4th generation Tillamook County dairyman and Netarts / Oceanside homeowner spoke, "The proposed line would cut right through my family's land, I have a duty to speak up on behalf of my family and as someone who has been involved and following this process for the past 10 years,"

Mizee went on to say that what they are proposing is simply overkill, adding that building the transmission line to fix the electrical problems in Oceanside is like using a wheelbarrow would work just fine.

"If I didn't speak up about this and there was a forest fire caused by this line or if there was damage caused to farmers property I would feel bad that I didn't say anything," said Mizee.

Don Aufdermauer is another landowner affected by the transmission line.

"I thought the TPUD board represented the people; look around this is a room full of people upset about this," he said "No one wants this route; 70% of the problems out there are from vehicles, trees and wind if you'd move some trees, fix the poles, fix the line the way it is we'd be able to get this taken care of in a much less expensive way." Among the minority of people in attendance there to support the proposed transition line was Jerry Keene of the Oceanside Neighborhood Association. Keene said,

"We completely understand the frustration and anger of the Tillamook county residents whose lives will be affected by the new transmission line; and would remind the people that we have endured 20 years of anger and frustration resulting from what the PUD admits is the county's least reliable electric service.

Every time the lights flicker in our homes because of a storm or someone drives into a power pole, we are the ones who look at each other and wonder if that flicker means we are about to spend the evening or night hours with candles and blankets while the PUD's incredible repair team braves the weather to restore our heat and lights.

The TPUD said in a statement, "It is the responsibility of Tillamook PUD to deliver safe and reliable electricity to all of our customers. This is achieved through continual system maintenance, infrastructure improvements, designing for resiliency, and planning for future growth in our community.

The Tillamook to Oceanside transmission line and substation project is necessary for to fulfill our responsibility to our customers and community.

The scope of this project work has been identified as the most effective approach to

Resolving three significant issues within our system which include meeting system

Capacity demands, improving reliability to the customers served in Whiskey Creek, Netarts, and Oceanside, and solving operations and maintenance issues in this area."

Kiwanda Corridor Project moves forward

The project's goal is to improve the visitor experience and resident livability by connecting recreation, commercial and residential places and resolving existing traffic and parking issues

Ashley Tike
Staff Writer

Tillamook County's Kiwanda Corridor Project (KCP), to be located the Pacific City area of south Tillamook County, is advancing. According to the Tillamook Coast Visitors Association website, the general project goals are to; improve livability and user experience for Pacific City's residents, local businesses, and visitors, provide equitable beach and community experiences, improve transportation efficiency and safety within the Kiwanda Corridor by promoting alternative modes of transportation, providing options for parking, and adding pedestrian connections, improve wayfinding and enhance connections to the community, provide safe and accessible pedestrian and bicycle access, minimize impacts on the environment through sustainable, resilient and equitable architecture and infrastructure, prepare for and buttress existing natural disaster safety & evacuation plans, be fiscally responsible and sustainable.

Tillamook County has applied to participate in the Local Government Grant Program to partially support two of the KCP elements: Multi-Modal Path - Phase 1 South and Jensen Property Development.

According to grant application documents from Tillamook County and from the website created for the project, "www.online-voice.net/kiwanda-corridor/" The Kiwanda Corridor Project is a once-in-a-generation opportunity that requires extraordinary vision, creativity, and leadership for success.

The improvements made will need to balance creating a positive tourism experience without compromising the needs of local businesses and year-round residents.

Improvements can occur through the thoughtful resolution of the current underlying traffic and parking problems and by expanding and improving recreational opportunities beyond the focus of Cape Kiwanda. This project is an opportunity for creative place making to seamlessly connect recreational, commercial, residential, and civic spatially to transportation.

Cape Kiwanda Master Plan includes the following strategic ideas:

Restructuring and improving the Cape Kiwanda parking lot, including a new gathering center that pays homage to one of Pacific Northwest's most treasured historic landmarks and natural resources; building new restrooms and all-inclusive shower facilities; upgrading garbage and implementing recycling facilities; and connecting multi-modal transportation options including EV charging stations, public transportation, and bicycle parking.

In addition, reconfiguring Webb Park, including access improvements to Circle Drive, improving parking shuttle services, completing development of the Nestucca Valley Community Alliance (NVCA) property as a community park, developing the recently acquired Jensen Property, including access improvements to Pacific Avenue and Sunset Avenue, constructing the Cape Kiwanda Drive Multi-Use Path, from the Jensen Property to Bob Straub State Park,

Tillamook reached their 35-year milestone in the Tree City USA program: plant tree in celebration of Arbor Day

Ashley Tike
 Staff Writer

Arbor Day is always observed on the last Friday of April, this year it will be held Friday, April 29th. City Manager Nathan George and City Planner Tommy O'Donnell along with the City of Tillamook public works department planted a tree at Goodspeed Park in recognition of Arbor Day and Earth Day.

The Arbor Day Foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to planting trees. They have 350 million trees in neighborhoods, communities, cities and forests throughout the world. The Arbor Day Foundation created the Tree City USA program in 1976 to encourage greener, healthier communities. Tillamook has reached their 35-year milestone in the Tree City USA program in 2022. To qualify as a Tree City USA, a community must maintain a tree board or department, have a community tree ordinance, spend at least $2 per person on urban forestry and celebrate Arbor Day annually.

The City of Tillamook said that this ceremony was just a small piece of their commitment to urban forestry.

"We support the ideal of 'Right Tree, Right Place,' so that we can minimize conflicts between trees and other uses while keeping our City green and beautiful for years to come. The City of Tillamook urges all citizens to celebrate Arbor Day and to support efforts to protect our trees and woodlands, and we do further urge all citizens to plant trees to gladden the heart and promote the well-being of this and future generations," said O'Donnell.

TAPA's 'On Golden Pond' opens May 6

The Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts (TAPA) is pleased to announce the performance dates for Ernest Thompson's On Golden Pond, which opens on May 6, at 7 p.m. at The Barn Community Playhouse in Tillamook. Additional performances will be held on May 7, 13, 14, 20, 21 at 7 p.m. and May 8, 15, 22 at 2 p.m. Doors open 30-minutes prior to curtain. There is an opening night champagne gala on May 6th; each ticket holder is welcome to complimentary food and will receive a complimentary beverage.

TAPA is celebrating over 40-years of entertainment by giving a nod to the old favorite, which was first performed at The Barn Community Playhouse in 2003. Robert Buckingham, director of the revival production, remembers watching the film with his parents in 1981 at the historic Fox Theater in Rawlins, Wyoming. The movie and the memory have been close to his heart ever since, which is why he chose this play over many other plays performed on TAPA's stage during the 40 year history.

The story centers around the old fashioned and, at times, inappropriate curmudgeon Norman (portrayed by Chris Chiola) and his loving, force of nature wife, Ethel (portrayed by Kristi Hanson) at their summer cabin at Golden Pond in Maine. They are visited by their adult daughter Chelsea (portrayed by Sarajane Elkins), her new boyfriend Bill (portrayed by Jason Hovey) and his son Billy Jr. (portrayed by Lora Ressler). The Thayer cabin is also visited by Chelsea's childhood friend Charlie the mailman (portrayed by Chad Clemmer). Chelsea and Ethel are close, but Chelsea and Norman have never had a father/daughter relationship, which has cre-ated a divide between the two of them. Billy Jr. bonds with Norman in a way Chelsea never could and this helps Chelsea see Norman in a different light. Billy Jr. helps to open the door of communication between Chelsea and her father. On Golden Pond is a love story, a story of healing and a story of an aging couple in their golden years facing the reality of their own mortality. On Golden Pond is surprisingly light hearted, full of charm and humor while dealing with serious issues.

TAPA appreciates their patrons and their patience regarding the postponement of the originally scheduled dates. They sincerely apologize for any inconvenience and any disappointment of their loyal audiences when they had to postpone. They look forward to welcoming audiences to their performances this May. On Golden Pond is sponsored by The Rendezvous Bar & Grill, and Cyndi Lewis of Rob Trost Real Estate. Tickets for this production would make the perfect Mother's Day gift for your loved one!

The Barn Community Playhouse is located at 1204 Ivy in Tillamook, across from Les Schwab. Tickets are available now, or may also be purchased at the door. To review the COVID-19 attendance policy and to purchase ticket, visit <http://tillamooktheater.com/index.php/ticket-information/> or call (503) 812-0275.

TLT announces support projects totaling $890K

Using the transient lodging tax (TLT) to benefit the community has been the primary goal of the county commissioners since the TLT was first collected in 2014. One of the ways that is accomplished is through a tourism facilities grant process. From 2015 through 2022, nearly $4 million has been distributed through grants to help with local projects. In this year's grant round, 16 organizations from throughout Tillamook County were approved for tourism-related facilities grant awards, totaling $890,048.

TLT funds will support the following projects:

- City of Bay City for a hiker/biker campground at Al Griffin Park
- City of Tillamook for lighting of gateway signs
- Hoffman Center for the Arts for an expansion plan
- Oceanside Community Club for a roof replacement
- Oregon Department of Aviation for repairs at the Pacific City Airport
- Pine Grove Community House for Phase II construction improvements
- Port of Garibaldi for restroom renovations

- Rockaway Beach Chamber of Commerce for decking on the visitor center caboose
- Shorepine Village HOA for repairs on the public beach dune ramp
- Sitka Center for Art and Ecology for electric and wall repair
- South Tillamook County Emergency Volunteer Corps supply shed project
- Tillamook Chamber of Commerce for development of a public meeting and

Real estate prices climbing fast in NW Oregon

Erik Knoder
Guest Article

The global pandemic hammered many industries and led to massive unemployment, but home owners are coming away with a big win.

Home prices not only continued to rise in many cities across the nation, but they increased even more than in the previous year. The widely quoted Case-Shiller Index of national home prices available from the St. Louis Federal Reserve showed a 19.2% increase over the year to January 2022. That was up from an 11% growth rate of the year before.

This raises the question, how is the real estate market in Northwest Oregon?

The answer is that most Northwest Oregon counties seem to be doing very well. Residential property average sales prices reported by RMLS in January 2022 rose 29.2% to $543,700 in the North Coast region (Clatsop, Tillamook, and Lincoln counties combined), grew 12.9% to $434,700 in Columbia County, and increased 18.2% to $470,800 in Benton County. (Based on a 12-month moving average.) It should be noted that Benton County reports few home sales to RMLS so the prices can vary quite widely from month to month.

The volume of homes sold as reported by the RMLS system also held up pretty well in 2021. The North Coast region reported 1,941 closed sales for the year versus 1,960 sales for 2020. Columbia County had 970 closed sales in 2021 versus 914 in 2020, and Benton County reported 258 sales in 2021 versus 189 sales in 2020. Not all realtors report sales to RMLS.

One drawback in using home sales to evaluate the real estate market is that the quality of houses sold each month is not consistent; one month may see more high-quality houses sold, the next month may see more low-quality houses being sold. One way around this problem is to use economic models to estimate values for all the residential property in an area. Zillow does this modeling and makes the data available on the company's website. The chart below shows the smoothed, seasonally adjusted measure of the typical home value for each county. It reflects the typical value for homes in the 35th to 65th percentile range.

The Zillow estimates for the five counties in Northwest Oregon also show that home values hit new highs in 2021 and that the rate of increase was high in all counties. Price increases ranged from 18% in Clatsop County to 29% in Lincoln County. Prices also continued to converge. In early 2009 when data for all five counties were first available the most expensive county (Clatsop) had prices that were about 26% higher than the lowest-price county (Lincoln). By the end of 2021 that difference had dropped to 14% (Benton vs. Columbia). To the extent that more opportunities for remote work are occurring, it may be one factor in causing that trend.

Of course, the real industry is much broader than just buying and selling homes. Some of the larger businesses are involved in rental management. Additionally, many jobs, especially brokers, in the real estate industry are not covered by unemployment insurance and consequently aren't reported to the Oregon Employment Department.

The reported jobs are more likely to be support and office staff for brokers or maintenance and cleaning staff for real estate rental agents. The employment that is reported for real estate was 76 jobs higher in September 2021 (the most recent data) than September 2020 for the five Northwest Oregon counties as a region, but the individual counties varied widely.

Over the year Benton County lost nine jobs, Clatsop County's employment was down 12 jobs. Columbia County added three jobs, Lincoln County gained 87 jobs, and Tillamook County was up seven jobs. The region as a whole had 1,244 jobs that were reported to the Employment Department in September 2021.

"Visitors invest in our county by spending their vacation dollars at our hotels, house rentals and campgrounds, and paying the lodging tax," said Nan Devlin, executive director of Tillamook Coast Visitors Association (TCVA). "The county reinvests those dollars into projects that benefit our local communities. Tillamook County has been a state leader in reinvestment programs since the TLT was implemented."

TCVA managed the tourism facilities grant process this year, working with the Tourism Advisory Council (TAC), a group of community volunteers from throughout the county who are charged with reviewing and scoring applications. Their recom-

FENCEPOSTS

We were out of town for just a few days when all snow broke loose. I received texts, e-mails and pictures of snow here in Cape Meares—in April! Surely one for the record books.

It's official! Kent Martin received his new membership certificate at the Tillamook Fire District Annual Awards Banquet on Saturday, April 9. This means Kent joins Mike Smith, Dave Audet, Olli Ollikainen, and Jonathon Hedden in the elite squad manning Station 73 right here in Cape Meares. As rural volunteer firefighters, they are trained to do a variety of first responder tasks in addition to fighting fires. Olli and Mike are also Emergency Medical Responders (EMRs). Congratulations to Kent and thanks to all five Cape Meares volunteer firefighters for serving and protecting our community.

Speaking of our volunteer firefighters, Kent, Mike and Dave responded to a fire at Bay Ocean Boys Self Storage Units in Bay City on Easter Sunday. All three helped fight the big fire, along with other firefighters from Tillamook, Rockaway, Garibaldi, and Bay City Fire Departments. The cause of the two-alarm fire is under investigation.

Two adult beachgoers neglected to pay attention to the tides on Easter and were trapped in the cove at the south end of Cape Meares beach. The mother of one of them checked with locals to find out when the tides would be low enough to permit the two to come back the way they had gone. Once she found out it was only two hours, in daylight, she thought it best to let them wait it out—hopefully learning a good lesson. All's well that ends well: The trapped beachgoers were able to walk back around the point after a couple of hours.

Spring has sprung and the Master Gardener sale is ready to help you take advantage of it. Arla Ayers, a Master Gardener right here in Cape Meares (along with Wendy Kunkel and Marcille Ansoorge), says the in-person plant sale will be held in the Livestock Pavilion at the Tillamook County Fairgrounds on May 7, 2022, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Online sales have already started and close May 3; you can find the catalog at <https://tillamookmaster-gardeners.com>.

If you order plants online, you may pick them up at the north door of the Pavilion on May 6 from noon until 4 p.m. or on May 7 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. There will be hundreds of tomato plants in varieties that grow well in a coastal climate, as well as vegetable starts, perennials, and house plants. There will also be vendors selling gift items and native plants. And if you have a specific gardening question or problem, check with the Master Gardeners at the help desk during the sale for answers.

Please join us at the Barbara Bennett Community Center on April 30 for the annual clean-up. Work will start at 9:00 a.m. and end around noon. Bring your favorite gardening tools or inside cleaning supplies; coordinator Patti Smith says we will try to do both areas this year. This event will happen rain or shine; be there or be square!

GARDENING MATTERS

April Showers?

Sometimes it's hard for me to realize we are at the end of April. Snow, sleet and hail earlier this month made it seem more like Christmas than Easter. And then when I checked the last frost date for Tillamook County, I found - according to Oregon State Extension Service - that date is now around May 4. It has traditionally been closer to May 15. On further exploration, I also found an interactive map from plantmaps.com saying it is May 21-31. So, by then I was really confused.

I did a little more research and found Oregon State Extension's May 4 date was the result of compilation of data from 1981 through 2010. And their caveat was that in 90% of those 20 years, the last frost was on or before May 4. But on the plantmap.com site, the cities of Tillamook, Rockaway Beach, and Garibaldi were May 1-10 and Manzanita and Nehalem were both May 11-20.

Which of these dates should we go by?

GARDENING MATTERS
CARLA ALBRIGHT

We have talked before about the many micro-climates we have in our county, and these frost dates confirm that. There is also the issue of micro-climates within individual yards and gardens. Therefore, you need to be aware of what conditions are like in your own garden: sun or shade, wind, moisture, ocean effects and soil type are the main ones. And, of course, the type of plants in question is important. There are some plants - like shrubs, trees, some herbs and vegetables like lettuce and beans, and perennials - that can withstand a little frost and cold weather. Others, like tomatoes and peppers, aren't cold-hardy.

So, to be safe, I would suggest sticking to that May 15 date for most of your plants in most of the county. And wait to put those more fragile vegetables, herbs, and annuals into the garden until later in May, maybe even to that May 20-31 range. Which means you need to protect those plants inside for a little longer.

But keeping plants inside brings on its own challenges. The light indoors isn't as strong as outside sun so the plants tend to grow taller and spindlier than we would like. Special "grow lights" can help with that. You must be attentive to watering, too. Inside tomato plants won't need as much water as they would once planted outside where the wind and sun will dry the soil faster. And there is the perennial challenge of lack of enough window sills... unless you are lucky enough to have a heated greenhouse.

When those April days are nice and sunny, it is very tempting to get out into the garden to do some spring clean-up. There are a few

CHAMBER CHATTER

Lend a hand May 7 for the Downtown Tillamook Cleanup

Mallory Gruben
Communications Manager

Despite the strange weather patterns of late, it's still the time of year to begin spring cleaning in preparation for sunnier days ahead. Here at the Chamber, we hope to kick off the traditions of springtime tidying with our annual Downtown Tillamook Cleanup, sponsored by US Bank.

Scheduled for 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. on May 7, the Downtown Cleanup will bring volunteers together to weed sidewalks, clean signs, blow leaves and pick up garbage downtown to keep our community attractive and appealing for locals and visitors alike. After a long winter - and an unusual April snow - we'll make the city shine.

We'll focus on the five blocks along Main Street and Pacific, splitting up into small groups to cover the whole area. We encourage you to bring your family or friends along as a little work party.

Or show up solo and meet new friends as you work together.

North Coast Lawn graciously lends us all the equipment we need to do our work, so no need to bring any tools. And the Chamber supplies work gloves in multiple sizes, including kids' sizes. Afterward, you can head to Dutch Mill for a free "thank you" meal to show our appreciation for your help.

This is one of my personal favorite events of the year, because it feels great to give back to the community. Plus, there's something so satisfying about scraping away the moss that's grown between pavers over the winter. It's such a simple act that makes all the difference - and you can immediately see how much better the sidewalks look because of it.

And this year, I'm especially excited to include extra hands on our volunteer crew! We've invited the Young Pros Tillamook network to the Downtown Cleanup, and several members have already scheduled the event into their calendars. We hope this event will be one of many "Engage" events, where the Young Pros can give back to the community through service and fundraising.

For folks who aren't part of the Young Pros network, this will be a great opportunity to meet some of the talented young professionals who live here in Tillamook - if you haven't already met them through their many community involvements. As it turns out, many of our Young Pros are already active volunteers.

We have a link on our website for volunteers to sign up for Downtown Cleanup, or you can email me at mallory@tillamookchamber.org. This year we will work for 8 a.m. to noon. If you can't make it for the full shift, no worries! Join us when you can to lend a hand however long you're able. When it comes to spring cleaning, every little bit counts.

things you can do in the garden until the weather and the soil temperatures warm: pick up sticks and debris from the flower beds, trim back ferns to the fiddle heads, and prune any dead or broken branches from trees and shrubs.

But perhaps more important are a couple of things not to do this month. First, try not to rake, dig or even step on muddy soil. Working the soil when it is too wet compacts it and makes root growth difficult for seeds or plants subsequently placed there. Best to wait until the soil dries out to rake it and get the vegetable and flower beds ready for planting. If you can take a clump of soil, press it in your hand and it crumbles and doesn't have water dripping out, it is ready to be worked. If on the other hand, the soil stays in a ball or releases water when pressed, wait until the sun and wind have had a chance to dry it out for a few days before working in it.

The other thing to avoid doing in April is to prune hydrangeas. Most hydrangeas - especially the H. macrophylla (lace cap and mop head) - bloom on old growth. So pruning now will also prune off the summer blooms.

There are new varieties that bloom on new growth, but if you aren't certain you have one of these, best to leave them until after the blooms fade in the fall. I will offer a couple of cases when you can prune now: a.) if you don't mind losing flowers, and b.) if the shrub itself has gotten to be so large it needs to be done sooner rather than later. Perhaps it is blocking a window or door or if it is encroaching on a neighboring property, in which case, a good spring pruning will correct the problem.

We all need to be aware of what is going on in our gardens to get the most pleasure from them. Whether it be cataloging when the last frost date is or what chores should be accomplished now, staying in tune with your garden can only be a good thing.

TALES FROM THE LIBRARY

Bill Landau
Tillamook County Library

A quote from Winnie the Pooh: "Goodbye? Oh no, please. Can't we just go back to page one and start all over again?"

Have you ever felt that way after finishing a good book? Perhaps it is time for you to revisit some of your favorite novels you've enjoyed in the past. But why would you want to read a book that you already read? There are many reasons, but the one I like best is...you are smarter now than when you read it the first time! As we grow and mature, we hopefully gain a new and improved mindset that will help us find deeper meaning in the novels we read.

I re-read my most-loved books from time to time and it really makes me appreciate the author and the book that much more. In fact, I am revisiting Misery by Stephen King right now. It has been many years since I originally read it and I have watched the movie version in the meantime. I already know how it is going to end, but that's OK. In fact, I think knowing the ending allows me to concentrate more on the details and nuances in the text, enjoying it all the more the second time around.

Since Misery is an on-the-edge-of-your-seat thriller, I calmed myself down by picking up a very old classic, The House at Pooh Corner, by A. A. Milne. I read this book many moons ago, and at that time, I thought it was just an imaginary tale about a stuffed bear who liked honey. But as I re-read this title decades later, I can see all the symbolism in the text. For instance, Pooh's main objects of affection are his pots of honey. Honey is his favorite dish, and he eats "smackerels" of it all day long. Honey comforts him, but it also appears to be much more important than that...it's as though it feeds his soul. So, are we talking about actual honey here, or could it be symbolism for things that comfort us in our lives? Throughout this old classic, Pooh and his friends share many other interesting thoughts and life lessons dealing on topics adults can relate to.

Winnie the Pooh on friendship: "You can't stay in your corner of the Forest waiting for others to come to you. You have to go to them sometimes."

Pooh on body image: "Just because an animal is large, it doesn't mean he doesn't want kindness."

Piglet on our differences: "The things that make me different are the things that make me, me."

Pooh on love and loss: "How lucky am I to have something that makes saying goodbye so hard."

Pooh on disagreements: "If the person you are talking to doesn't appear to be listening, be patient. It may simply be that he has a small piece of fluff in his ear."

Pooh on slowing your life down: "Rivers know this: there is no hurry. We shall get there some day."

And gloomy Eeyore on disappointments: "Could be worse. Not sure how, but it could be."

So, on these rainy spring days, I invite you to check out your favorite old book to re-read...maybe even one that takes place in the Hundred Acre Wood! Borrow a teaspoon of honey from Pooh to stir into your tea, plop down into your favorite reading chair, and get reacquainted with a friendly old book.

TBCC CONNECTIONS

Frequently asked questions about the proposed TBCC bond measure

By Ross Tomlin
TBCC President

On May 17, 2022, the Tillamook Bay Community College Board of Education will refer to voters in Tillamook County a $14.4 million proposed bond measure to build a new healthcare education building on property the college owns adjacent to the main campus building on Third Street.

If the proposed measure passes, the new building would provide the college the capacity to add a nursing program; add additional healthcare occupations training programs; and provide space to expand and add new degrees and certificates. It would include simulation labs, classrooms with built-in technology, and a large community event center.

Why is Tillamook Bay Community College proposing a bond measure?

TBCC has provided education and job training to students in Tillamook for over 40 years.

In 2019, TBCC commissioned a study on the educational interests of Tillamook County. It included focus groups, community town halls, one-on-one interviews and a community wide survey. Over 400 community members participated. The study results showed interest in TBCC training for healthcare occupations such as nurses, CNAs, EMTs, paramedics, and technicians. The survey also identified an interest in a large-scale community event space for conferences, trainings, and locally hosted events.

In response, in 2020, TBCC began working with an architect to develop a Facilities Master Plan that outlines the capacity the college would need to deliver general education and career-technical programs to meet Tillamook County's current and future workforce projections.

In 2021 the Facilities Master Plan was adopted by the board and includes proposed construction of a new facility focused on healthcare education training.

The proposed new building would include simulation labs, classrooms with built-in technology, office space, and a large community event center that the college, local businesses, and community organizations could utilize.

TBCC is the only community college in Oregon that does not have a nursing program. The proposed new building would add the capacity for TBCC to train nursing students locally.

Could the college expand and remodel its current space?

The TBCC Main Campus building has served the college for the past 12 years but cannot accommodate additional growth. The new building proposal would add six additional classrooms and three specialized labs.

Where would the proposed new building be located?

If the proposed bond measure passes, the college would build the new building on land adjacent to the main campus building on the south side of the driveway, which the college already owns.

What would the proposed bond measure cost?

If the proposed bond measure passes, the new building would be estimated to cost $22.4 million. TBCC has received an $8 million matching grant from the Oregon State legislature to construct the proposed new building. The grant must be matched within five years to receive it. If passed by voters, the $14.4 million proposed bond would meet the match and provide the additional funds to construct the proposed new building.

If the proposed bond measure passes, homeowners would be assessed an estimated $0.19 per $1,000 of assessed property value for a 20-year duration. A homeowner with an assessed property value of $250,000 would pay $47.50 annually, or $3.95 monthly, on the proposed bond measure.

If the proposed bond does not pass, the college would not receive the $8 million in committed match funds from the state, the proposed building project and educational services would not be provided, and the proposed tax would not be assessed. The current bond tax would expire in 2027.

The last time TBCC referred a proposed bond measure to voters was 2007 to build the main college building on Third Street, and upgrade and construct college facilities at the high schools in north, central, and south Tillamook County. That bond measure passed with an estimated bond tax rate of $0.19 per $1,000 of assessed value. Actual tax rates have been less. The current bond debt will be paid off in 2027.

BUZZ ABOUT BEES

Claire Moody
Tillamook Beekeepers Assoc.

This past weekend 1,450,000 new honey bees arrived and now call Tillamook home! No reason to be nervous. They are really friendly (unless you are trying to steal their honey).

They didn't just fly in, of course! They came in cardboard boxes in a form called a "nuc" which is short for "nucleus colony". A truck brought 145 of these nucs from Colton, Oregon. Each nuc contained five frames mostly covered with bees, about ten thousand per nuc. One frame was filled with pollen and nectar or honey. Others were filled with eggs, larva, and capped brood. There was one queen in this mini-colony and she was busy laying eggs. Nurse bees were actively feeding larva and other workers worked to maintain the 95 degree temperature required. Can you imagine what it takes for it to be in the 40's outside and 95 inside? It's one well-orchestrated community!

You will be surprised and, perhaps, saddened to know that all 1,450,000 of these bees will be dead before the fourth of July with the exception of the queen. Don't be sad. That's their destiny. They were born to only live about forty days this time of the year and to work faithfully building colonies that will total over seven million bees by mid-summer, about 50,000 bees per colony. The summer bees will collect the nectar, make honey and produce the bees that will produce the winter bees to continue on the life-cycle of the honey bee colonies. Based on fossils, it's been going on like this for a hundred million years!

The sixty-two of us beekeepers who got these nucs are as excited as children at Christmas. Hope springs eternal that this year we will do everything right and the colony will still be alive this time next year. There's probably at best a 50-50 chance.

Serious challenges to keeping bees alive exist. It's part science, part art, and part luck. Some things we have control over and some we don't. That's the topic for the next article I'll be sharing with you.

I'd like you to know that I am in no way trying to convince any of you you should become beekeepers. It's expensive and challenging, as I said, but from the bees we get a lot more than just honey or pollinated fruit trees. We get another glimpse of the awesomeness of nature.

There are two upcoming events you need to be aware of. First, we will be at the Home and Garden Show. Please stop by, see the bees and their hive. Local honey will be for sale. Bring your questions.

Secondly, there is a free class which we call "To Bee or Not to Bee". It's an introduction to honey bees, the challenges of keeping bees in Tillamook, and what equipment it takes to keep bees. It's Saturday, May 7th, from 1:00 to 3:30. There is more info on the home page of the website. Registration is required. It's a fun class even if you have no interest in becoming a beekeeper.

Looking forward to seeing you at one of the two above events. In the meantime keep taking your tablespoon of raw honey every day. Never has "medicine" tasted so good!

For additional interesting information about honey bees check out the Tillamook Beekeepers Association website: www.tillamookbeekeepers.org. Prior articles can be found in the section titled "About Bees". Claire Moody is education director for the association and can be reached at clairemoody503@gmail.com. DISPATCH FROM THE WAVE

Doug Pilant
TCTD General Manager

In this month's Dispatch from the WAVE, I'm excited to share about the opening of the TCTD propane fueling facility that was constructed at the District's operations center. Over the past several years, TCTD has been exploring different clean air fuel alternatives. In discovery, due to cost constraints and fuel distribution limitations, converting the fleet to propane powered vehicles was determined to be the most advantageous option for Tillamook County.

Tillamook County residents are going to experience countless benefits from the District's conversion of fleet to propane. We are focusing our short-term efforts to convert the Dial-A-Ride fleet of gasoline powered vans and small buses to propane. The District has begun this conversion with the recent purchase of 4 propane powered vehicles.

Immediate benefits to the environment will be a 20% percent reduction in nitrogen oxide, a 60% reduction in carbon monoxide and a 24% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions. Also, the District's cost for propane fuel is 50% less than gasoline. Next year, with just the 4 propane powered vehicles in the fleet we expect to have a fuel cost savings of $27,000. Additionally, the District anticipates that by using cleaner burning fuel the costs to maintain the fleet will also have a cost savings.

With construction of the fueling facility, the District made the strategic decision to own the pumps that will be used in dispensing fuel. With this, TCTD will earn greenhouse gas credits and for every gallon of propane dispensed into vehicles, the District will earn 12 cents per gallon. TCTD has selected Blue Star Gas as its propane gas supplier who is the only renewable propane gas provider in Oregon.

Each month TCTD will report the fuel dispensed to the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) who will calculate the credits earned by the District at the end of each reporting period. TCTD will then accumulate credits and will convert these accumulated credits into cash that can be used as local matching funds for grants in purchasing new vans and buses in the future.

TCTD's goal is to begin replacing the diesel fuel powered buses with propane powered buses in the near future. In doing this, there will be greater benefits to both the environment and the District. The District is currently working with ODOT and a consultant to develop vehicle specifications to begin submitting orders to purchase buses. Current national supply chain issues have adversely affected the bus manufacturing industry.

I also want to include a big "Thank You" to our team of 37 drivers that keep all TCTD vehicles rolling. On March 18 we celebrated National Driver Appreciation Day and thank everyone who participated in our Facebook shout-outs, acknowledging drivers who go above and beyond to serve our customers.

As always, you can learn about current District happenings and find our service schedules on our website at www.TillamookBus.com and on Facebook at @TillamookBus.

TRYING TO SEE

The green worm and us

I cut some cilantro from my garden and brought it into the kitchen, then rinsed it in cold water and separated its leafy strands and laid them on a square of paper towel. I laid another piece of paper towel on top of them and patted them mostly dry, then got out a small baggie to store them in. Starting to wrap the cilantro in the damp paper towel, I saw a bit of movement next to one strand of cilantro.

Looking closer, there amid the leaves was a tiny green larva. It still clung to the greenery which I had already rinsed under the faucet. I shook the cilantro and the worm fell onto the paper towel. It stretched

merslife@gmail.com

its forward half up in the air, probing blindly around with its snout, feeling for the cilantro leaves on which it had been feeding, and in which it had been hidden by its natural camouflage.

Contorting itself, the worm swiveled its snout in the air, reached upward left and right, twisting. Then it lowered its snout to the paper towel, as if trying to whiff a trace of the cilantro so it could find its way back to food and safety. Eyeless, it foraged blindly, though its body was covered with nerve cells that sensed light.

I looked more closely at the rest of the cilantro, trying to make sure no other worms were in it. The blind worm still searched around in all directions. Its motions had become faster, seemed more anxious and fearful. I found a magnifying glass and looked closely at this plump green thing with minute feet like suction cups.

See RANDALL, Page A7

Setting the batch of cilantro aside on a damp paper towel, I took one stem with several small leaves on it. Dangling it, I then laid it beside the worm, which quickly wriggled among the leaves and began to eat. Its frantic motions slowed, became languid, as though more content. Through my magnifier I watched it for a couple of minutes until it started to cast about again, reaching its front half into the air, flailing blindly about for other stems and leaves. Or for something else. I knew not what.

It had become agitated again, as if dissatisfied with what it had. It moved away from the strand I had given it, out onto the white desert of paper towel that stretched away in all directions. Inching its midsection upward again and again, it slowly, then sightlessly thrust itself forward across the empty expanse. Repeatedly, it reached up and out, its body twisting, but found nothing to satisfy it.

The worm moved further away, leaving the sprig of cilantro behind. I picked up the green strand and moved it into the worm's path. It quickly found the stem and its leaves and moved into them again. But, after a moment of eating and tentative examination, it left the strand and moved away again, inching across the empty whiteness, searching.

That was when I took up the paper towel, shook the strand of cilantro and the worm into the sink. Turning on the faucet, I swept them into the disposal unit and turned on the grinder.

From beginning to end, this small scene said something to me about the worm and us and the nature of life. We camouflage, protect ourselves against dangers as best we can. Frequently restless and dissatisfied with what we have, we search for more. We are questers, but often we search blindly and anxiously. And for what? Often, we do not know.

Diversions and entertainments are dangled before us, and we yield to click bait. But afterwhile, like the worm, we become anxious and cannot find what we truly need. And we are unaware that some force may be watching us, at first fascinated, but ultimately bored by our aimless search. Finally, we are flushed away into mystery.

All we had were these moments, but we may have failed to figure out what to do with them, how to use them best for ourselves and for some common good.

Of course, we still are here and, hopefully, will remain interested enough to widen our search.

Adelyn Willford April 8, 1924 - April 15, 2022

Adelyn Willford passed away in Eugene, Oregon on April 15, 2022 at the age of 98.

Adelyn was born in Lankershim (Los Angeles), California on April 8, 1924. Scarce employment due to the Great Depression prompted her parents Fenton and Margaret McLellan to move to Oregon in 1930. As a youth Fenton had lived on his father's homestead on Upper Sweet Creek, near Mapleton, and he introduced Adelyn to a similar childhood: milking cows, raising chickens, tending gardens, fishing, and walking with her younger sister Barbara to a one-room schoolhouse with only nine students. Adelyn cherished these years that were filled with nature, music, dances, and plays presented by the community.

Adelyn met her future husband Jack when she was a sophomore at Mapleton High School and he was a junior. They married (at her suggestion) in 1942 a year before Jack's Army Infantry Division shipped out from Camp Adair to North Africa. Jack was wounded during the Italian campaign and received a Purple Heart medal. He returned to Adelyn in 1945 and met his daughter Janelle for the first time.

Jack joined the timber industry and they raised their three daughters Janelle, Beverly, and Jeri in Tillamook. Adelyn also provided childcare for "little ones" (many families stayed in contact in later years). Timberwork took them to Klamath Falls and then to Thorne Bay, Alaska for ten years. Adelyn adored Alaska and carried forward her childhood pastimes of fishing, berry picking, and boating. They enjoyed many weekends out on the Clarence Strait catching salmon, halibut, and sea cucumbers on a cabin cruiser named the C-SCAN (an acrostic from names of their grandchildren). Adelyn continued to enjoy arts and music, organizing events for the Arts Council program for the public school. Musicians would often arrive by floatplane, perform a town concert in the gymnasium, have dinner at Jack and Adelyn's house, and play another concert in the living room.

Jack and Adelyn retired to Prineville in 1984 and adapted to high desert camping and fishing. Adelyn also became a dedicated family historian and visited numerous genealogical research venues across the country. They celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary in 2017 one year before Jack's passing. Adelyn moved to the Eugene Hotel in 2018, enjoyed lectures and concerts, and kept up a lively correspondence with her three daughters, five grandchildren, six great grandchildren, and many friends, all of whom will miss her dearly.

Per Jack and Adelyn's request there will be a family remembrance ceremony.

Mooks bounce back with two league wins on the diamond

Mike Weber
For The Herald

Valiant's field was unplayable due to recent rainfall.

"I've never been a part of baseball game that ended in a tie," said Strang. "It's definitely been a weird season and it's much worse than last year. Last week we had snow, hail and rain and just every type of weather conditions, including a little sunshine too. The last few weeks, there's just been some crazy weather and we've had games canceled and then this one ends because of darkness. We'll have to finish the game later, so it's just been a crazy season."

The Cheesemakers won 9-7 over the Seaside/Jewell High Seagulls (0-4 league, 5-7) April 20 at Seaside High School, which was their first road win this season. Tillamook won its second straight in a 7-1 win over the #20 ranked Astoria High Fishermen April 22 at Astoria High School. The Mooks were hoping to extend their win streak to three when they met the Fishermen (2-2 league, 5-9) again Tuesday at home (results unavailable because of Headlight Herald press deadline).

"It's nice seeing us start a win streak now, because I think it will help provide us with some momentum for the remainder of the season so that we can hopefully achieve our goal and reach the state playoffs" said Strang, a 2013 Tillamook High graduate.

The last time Tillamook advanced to the playoffs was in 2013 and Strang was a member of the squad that reached the Class 4A quarterfinals. The 16-team state playoffs begin May 25.

Tillamook plays its next game at 4:30 p.m. Friday versus the Sweet Home High Huskies (3-12) at Sweet Home High School. The Mooks follow with a home game May 2 at 4 p.m. versus the Class 3A Taft High Tigers (11-7).

The Mooks had a strong start versus the Valiants and they took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Junior catcher Bryce Hamerl (2-for-4, two doubles) hit a line drive to left field for an RBI double, driving home starting pitcher Parker McKibbin (1-for-2, single, hit by pitch) to put Tillamook on the scoreboard.

"I was just trying to keep them (Valiants) off balance at the plate," said McKibbin, who had a season-high nine strikeouts, while throwing fastballs and curveballs. "My fielders got the outs when we could and we had couple of mistakes, so there's some things that we need to improve on. It was nice to get out here and play on this beautiful field and it was fun to play here and get the game in with my friends."

McKibbin pitched five innings and reliever Seth Landolt (three strikeouts) pitched two and one third innings. The duo combined to allow just five hits by the Valiants while the Mooks had a total of 11

The Mooks extended their lead to 3-0 in the top of the second, highlighted by an RBI triple by junior Garrison Gunder (2-for-3, two RBI), scoring senior Dillon Stein, who earlier drew a walk. Gunder scored on an RBI sacrifice groundout by junior Cade Ross. The Valiants came back and got a run in the bottom half of the frame, making it 3-1 after two innings.

"Things got tough late in the game and stuff happens that you really have no control over, but I feel like we closed the game good and we did what we could to finish it up," said Gunder. "We had one inning where we slipped a little and we had a couple of errors that allowed them (Valiants) to score a few runs. We finished it off and held it to a tie at the end."

After the Valiants narrowed the margin to 3-2 in the third, Tillamook responded with an offensive spurt to regain a three-run advantage.

Sophomore Melvin Ramos (1-for-4) ignited a rally with a single. Ramos scored on an RBI triple by Stein, who then ran home on an RBI single by Gunder, making it 5-2 after four innings. It appeared that the Mooks were on the verge of getting a win with a three-run lead going into the fifth inning.

"We definitely played well enough to win, but we just needed to play better defensively in the fifth inning," said Strang. "We had really good pitching from both of our pitchers. We started off with hot bats, then we kind of cooled off a little bit later. We hit the ball well and we had a lot of good at-bats and lots of good defensive plays. It was just that one inning that hurt us and that's the reason it was tied."

Valley Catholic capitalized on two Mooks errors and scored three runs, knotting it 5-5. Following two scoreless frames, the contest was extended to extra innings in the eighth, but the Mooks were unable to produce the go-ahead run. The daylight was gone at that point though and without lights on the field, the contest concluded after seven and a half innings at 8:15 p.m.

The remainder of the game will be played when the two teams meet again May 13 at Tillamook High School. The contest will continue in the bottom of the inning with one out and a Valiant baserunner on first base. Following the conclusion of the contest, the teams will then play a regularly scheduled seven inning contest.

TELC hosts 5K Color Fun Run to benefit local childcare program

Tillamook Early Learning Center (TELC) invites the community to add a little color to their lives to benefit local families enrolled at the Tillamook childcare center and preschool.

The 501(c)3 nonprofit will host a family-friendly 5K Color Fun Run hosted by the Port of Tillamook Bay on June 11, 2022. Participants will walk or run a breathtaking course that winds around the blimp hangar, air museum, future site of a new disc golf course, and beautiful scenery at the port, all the while getting periodically showered in colored powder. The Tillamook County Creamery Association and the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, the event's presenting sponsors, will send racers off from the starting line and welcome them back after their three mile journey. Children and leashed pets are welcome to participate.

"By the end of the 5K, everyone will be covered in a unique design of colors that they can show off to friends and family at the finish line," said Jaimie Rhodes, TELC executive director. "This event is sure to inspire awe and create lasting memories.

We are grateful to the Port for hosting this run and to TCCA and the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians for supporting us as a presenting sponsor."

TELC will use proceeds from the run to support its local childcare program, which provides all-day licensed childcare and preschool for local families.

"TELC provided more than $40,000 in tuition assistance to help our families with childcare expenses during the pandemic. The Color Fun Run will be a key part of raising funds to continue to offset that assistance and potentially expand our reach to include more families," Rhodes said.

The Color Fun Run costs $25, and participants will receive a free T-shirt for race day. Children age 5 and under can participate for free, and there is no additional cost to bring leashed pets.

To register, go online to www.tillamookelc.org and click on the Color Fun Run icon. Registration will remain open through June 10. TELC is a 501(c)3 nonprofit providing all-day, licensed childcare and preschool in Tillamook on the beautiful Oregon Coast. The center has stayed mostly open during the pandemic, serving a majority of low-income working families, in an all-day licensed environment.

A WELL REGULATED MILITIA

Know this - we support the 2nd Amendment and if it ever came to pass that it was threatened on its fundamental ideas, we would defend it to no end. That is what we are doing now.

Two very important, yet often overlooked, words in the 2nd Amendment are WELL REGULATED.

Like many passages in the Constitution it reveals the foresight of our Founding Fathers. They saw that we might one day advance the power of our weapons to a point that an individual, or a group of individuals, might create a greater threat than they do a protection.

The responsibility of these two words is to insure that with keeping the fundamental right to bear arms, we also keep each other safe. Let us NEVER forget them.

BACK THE BADGE!

Keep extremism out of Tillamook County by trusting and empowering our officers to keep the community safe.
