Malware: County to negotiate for ransomware key

Cody Mann

headlightnews@countrymedia.net

Tillamook County commissioners voted Monday, Jan. 27, to negotiate for an encryption key to regain control of the government's computer systems after a cyberattack struck.

Information Technology Director Damian Laviolette told the board of commissioners in a late Monday meeting a significant amount of investigation was done into the cyberattack with help from forensic computer firm Arete Incident Response. Laviolette said the integrity of many, but not all aspects of the county systems have been restored or protected.

"At this time, we are looking to Arete to potentially begin the process of negotiation for an encryption key for the remainder of the systems we have been unable to protect or retain the integrity of," Laviolette said.

The board of commissioners voted unanimously, but with apparent reluctance, to authorize negotiations by Arete for an encryption key, the cost of which the county will later reimburse. A potential ransom cost has not yet been made public.

"We have to keep moving forward," County Commissioner David Yamamoto said.

"This is an extremely difficult process and I'm grateful for everyone's patience, and we're ready to take the next step," County Commissioner Mary Faith Bell said.

Officials have not yet commented regarding possible cyberattack suspects or discussed details regarding any demands for payment to relinquish control of the computer systems.

After meeting in a closed-door session Wednesday, Jan. 22, county officials confirmed a cyberattack took place. The county's server and internal computer systems were down, and phone systems and email networks were affected. The Tillamook County website, which hosts numerous departments, was also down. County computer network connections were disabled to contain the spread of malware.

Coastal crabber finds passion at sea

Max Kirkendall

newsguardeditor@countrymedia.net

Spending days out at sea collecting Dungeness crab sounds a bit daunting for most people. But for Lincoln City commercial crabber Tony Latino Jr., it's a lifestyle he's quickly taken a liking to.

Son of Tony Latino Sr., the owner of Tony's Top Shop in Lincoln City, Jr. has been working for his dad but has always had an interest in commercial crabbing. Drawn to a life at sea, and not to mention a wealthy bounty for a good catch, Latino had the opportunity to get his sea legs and join a crew for this year's crabbing season.

"My best friend Tyger Pearson works on the Cape Cleare boat as well as a few other close high school friends, who work down here," Latino said about how he got started. "I heard how much money I could make, so after walking the docks for a month and having my buddy Tyger ask around, him and his Captain met my boat the Tauny Ann and got me a deck hand job."

For the past three weeks, Latino has been adjusting to the long days and nights at sea aboard the 63-foot crab boat. Recently, he just returned from a 27-hour trip that was followed by cleaning the boat, offloading the crab and cleaning out the tanks.

He understands it's not for everyone, but he feels he's cut out for the job.

"I wanted to do it for the challenge, not many people can do it... we had two guys quit first couple days out," Latino said. "Being a crabber is an elite crew, not many people get respect down here until you put time in and show you're tough enough to be around."

But it hasn't all been fun for Latino... it's hard work. He said the first three days on the ocean he faced tough water conditions, sleepless nights and a fast paced working environment. But eventually, Latino started to find certain serenity at sea.

"I had no idea what I got myself into working two days straight on the water... It was the hardest challenge of my life," Latino said. "But I found I like working all through the night time to the morning. I'm on the dark ocean and it's peaceful."

In addition to the calmness he's found in the ocean, Latino has also formed camaraderie with his fellow crewmates and other fisherman in his short time as a crabber.

"I really enjoy being around the docks and talking to all the other people on the boats and hearing the stories," Latino said.

Along with his passion for crabbing, Latino has also had a interest in photography. He has taken his photography skills aboard his crab boat and will often take a quick moment to document an average day at sea. This resulted in the stunning photo of the rough ocean waves crashing over the side of their boat.

"I like to take all kinds of pictures all the time just because I like remembering good times," Latino said. "The first three times I went out (to sea) it was pretty

Although he's still new to the commercial crabbing business, Latino said he's found a joy for the work he's doing and plans to do it every year. And as long as he's living in the Lincoln City area, he should be able to do it quite easily.

"It's only three months long and it makes enough money to where I can live here and I should take advantage of the opportunity," Latino said. "Many people live in the city or inland and never have an opportunity to do this."

Housing study reveals need for 2,603 new homes over next 20 years

Hilary Dorsey

headlightreporter@
countrymedia.net

The Tillamook County Board of Commissioners held a board meeting Wednesday, Jan. 15, to hear a Housing Needs Assessment Presentation from Sarah Absher, director of community development; Todd Chase, AICP, LEED AP, principal of economic services; Erin Skaar, executive director of CARE, Inc. and Jake Davis, Tillamook County housing coordinator. Skaar said the process of the assessment began in 2013.

A housing task force was started by Commissioner Bill Baertlein and the county, Skaar said. The two keys partners in this study were CARE, Inc. and the Tillamook County Creamery Association. CARE, Inc. has been a fiscal agent for two studies.

"When we started this work back in 2015, our first study was funded almost completely by Tillamook County Creamery Association," Skaar said. "They understood early in the conversation the importance of housing for the community and step forward with funds to help us begin to dig into the problem."

Chase said they have been working on this issue for almost a year. They started in January of last year.

According to the Housing Needs Assessment, Tillamook County has been growing consistently for 20 years. Tillamook has been growing half as fast as the state average. There are 2,890 new dwellings over the past 17 years, according to data that went from 2000 to 2017. That data was pulled from historic building permit data provided by the Community Development Department.

"As Todd also mentioned, right now a vast majority of our new housing stock is diverted to second homes or short-term rentals," Davis said. "The projections of 2,603 new units needed over the next 20 years depends on a significantly more favorable split of new housing going to long term rentals."

Davis said the projections of 2,603 new units needed over the next 20 years depends on a significantly more favorable split of new housing going to long-term versus short-term/seasonal housing (about half short-term, half long-term).

"I'd also like to note that most of those dwellings were constructed pre-recession," Davis said. "This is a national trend: new housing starts have slowly recovered since the recession but are still short of their pre-recession levels."

There is a need to increase the number of new housing (most multi-family and single family, rental and ownership) to get ahead of increased rents/prices, Davis said. 90 percent of those have been built for seasonal residents. Housing for year-round residents has remained slack. In fact, seasonal housing is crowding out residential housing, especially long-term rentals.

Chase said Tillamook has three housing markets to work with: coastal/seasonal, inland/local, and mixed. Tillamook County is near a 0 percent vacancy rate for long-term rental units, compared with a more typical rate of 4-5 percent, which is found in most cities in Oregon, Chase said. 22 percent of Tillamook renters spend over 50 percent of their income on rent, from data in 2018.

Housing and other factors are contributing to an increase in economically distressed households, Chase said. Tillamook County is now tied for second, according to a metric furnished by United Way called ALICE (Asset-Limited, Income-Constrained, Employed).

"This is a really spectacular report that takes a variety of data sources to calculate the percentage of households not only impoverished by the federal standard, but also near impoverished based on cost of living, tax burden, income, etc.," Davis said.

Tillamook County's ALICE percentage has gone from 19 percent in 2010, to 23 percent in 2012, to 31 percent in 2014, to 37 percent in 2016. Davis said the 2018 numbers are not out yet, but he suspects they will be similar to 2016, and the county has trended very high.

Chase said one in four workers commute over 100 miles a day. Davis said this data is compiled by the Census Bureau, which looks at where residents for a given geographic area are coming from and

A Tillamook boy was in stable condition after his brother shot him in the face with a crossbow during an argument, according to authorities.

At 8:47 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 22, Tillamook Police Department officers responded with a Tillamook Regional Medical Center ambulance crew to the 2500 block of First Street on a 911 medical emergency response. It was reported that a child had been shot with a crossbow.

Police found a 12-year-old boy who was shot in the face with a crossbow by a 13-year-old boy. The boys are brothers and were in the family home. Police said the shooting occurred during an argument, and a parent or parents were home at the time. The crossbow was described as not a toy, and small to medium in size.

The victim was taken to the emergency room by ambulance in stable condition. An investigation is ongoing, and the case was submitted to the Tillamook County Juvenile Department for review.

Four arrested after suspicious activity, pursuit

Three people were arrested after suspicious activity was reported in the Cape Meares area.

The Tillamook County Sheriff's Office responded to the 5500 block of Northwest Second Street in Cape Meares at the request of Vacasa Vacation Home Rentals for suspicious circumstances at 9 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20.

Upon arrival, the suspects fled out of the back of the home. A stolen car was found in the driveway.

Through the course of the investigation, several people were contacted, and another vehicle fled the location.

Deputies pursued the fleeing vehicle through Tillamook and then eastbound on U.S. Route 6. During the pursuit the vehicle drove erratically, sped, drove into opposing lanes, and failed to yield to stop signs.

The vehicle yielded abruptly on the highway at Gales Creek and four subjects were taken into custody.

Devonte Tavon Gibson, 25, of Portland was arrested and held at the Tillamook County Jail for eluding, three counts reckless driving, four counts of reckless endangering, a Multnomah County warrant for eluding and possession of methamphetamine, and a warrant out of Oregon City Municipal Court for misdemeanor driving on a suspended license.

Kyleah Marie Hegre, 25,

Kyleah Marie Hegre

of Star, Idaho was arrested and held at the Tillamook County Jail for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and a warrant out of Benton County for possession of methamphetamine and tampering with evidence.

James Paul Ullman, 41, of Gresham was arrested and held on a Douglas County warrant for failure to appear.

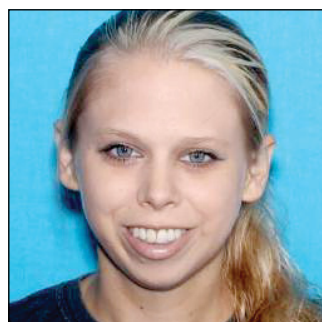

Melissa Pauline Castro, 37, of Portland was on misdemeanor probation for second-degree theft and was released on scene with instructions from Washington County Community Corrections to report to the probation office.

Interim Sheriff Jim Horton announced the Tillamook Narcotics Team continued the investigation and a substantial amount of methamphetamine (42.9 grams), scales, and packaging material and some cash ($1,231) were located

Narcotics team finds drugs, guns in raid

Two people were arrested after a search warrant in Tillamook yielded drugs and firearms, according to a report from the Tillamook County Sheriff's Office (TCSO).

At around 3 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 23, detectives with the Tillamook Narcotics Team (TNT), along with TCSO deputies and Tillamook Police Department (TPD) officers, served a search warrant in the 500 block of Cedar Avenue in Tillamook.

During the search, authorities said they found methamphetamine, evidence of drug sales, prohibited weapons and other firearms that included three stolen weapons linked to active Tillamook Police investigations and one with an obliterated serial number. There was also allegedly evidence of possible gang affiliation found during the search.

Omar N. Ayala Sanchez, 26, was arrested for possession of methamphetamine, seven counts of felon in possession of a firearm, three counts of possession of a stolen firearm, possession of a firearm with an obliterated serial number, felony in possession of prohibited weapons (daggers), and frequenting a place where drugs used/sold.

Shawn M. Mitchell, 26, was arrested for frequenting a place where drugs are used/sold and a parole violation. Sanchez and Mitchell were taken to the Tillamook County Corrections Facility.

"One of our office's goals is to aggressively combat the drug epidemic in our community that touches so many of our lives," Sheriff Jim Horton said. "Our relationships with our partner agencies is paramount in these efforts."

TNT is comprised of detectives from TCSO and TPD. The TNT tip line is 503-815-3319.

23rd Annual Great Backyard Bird Count allows participants to count birds for data analysis

The 23rd Annual Great Backyard Bird Count (GBBC) will be held Friday, Feb. 14, through Monday, Feb. 17. GBBC is a free, fun and easy event that engages bird watchers of all ages in counting birds to create a real-time snapshot of bird populations.

Participants are asked to count birds for as little as 15 minutes, or longer if they wish, on one or more days of the four-day event and report their sightings online at birdcount.org. Each checklist submitted during the GBBC helps researchers at the Cornell Lab or Ornithology and the National Audubon Society learn more about how birds are doing, and how to protect them and the environment we share.

The GBBC began in 1998 as the internet began to take off, said Coordinator Patricia Leonard. Cornell Lab Information Science researchers wondered if people would report their bird observations online. The GBBC was born to test that question, at first just in the U.S. and Canada.

"People did respond enthusiastically and have been filing their checklists in increasing numbers ever since, leading to the birth of the eBird online reporting program in 2002," Leonard said. "Participation bloomed even more in 2013 when the GBBC became integrated with the eBird program, allowing bird watchers to submit their observations from anywhere in the world."

You can view a variety of birds at different times of the day. Leonard said North American songbirds are usually more active from dawn through mid-morning.

"Almost as soon as there's light in the sky, birds start looking for their next meal," Leonard said. "If you have feeders set up, that's when you'll see the most traffic."

Leonard said there can also be a smaller pulse of feeding activity during the evening before birds call it a night. At dusk, you may start to see some nocturnal species. For example, most owls hunt at night.

"But unless you go out at night or happen to catch a glimpse of an owl snoozing in its tree cavity during the day, you're unlikely to see an owl during normal waking hour," Leonard said.

birds that gather there, Leonard said. These birds typically hunt during the late morning and early afternoon hours when the air has warmed up and they can soar on the rising

Country Media buys daily in Coos Bay, weeklies in Bandon and Reedsport

Country Media Inc., parent organization of the Headlight Herald, the North Coast Citizen and the Cannon Beach Gazette, has reached an agreement to acquire the daily newspaper in Coos Bay, as well as the weekly newspapers in Bandon and Reedsport.

Country Media president Steve Hungerford said the transaction will close Jan. 31.

The World in Coos Bay, the Western World in Bandon and the Umpqua Post in Reedsport are being sold to Country Media by Southwest Oregon Publishing Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Lee Enterprises

Inc., which has owned the Coos Bay newspaper since 2005.

Lee is a publicly-traded media company headquartered in Davenport, Iowa that also owns Oregon dailies in Corvallis and Albany.

Country Media is a 20-year-old Oregon family-owned company with its central office in Salem.

The company bought the twice-weekly newspapers in Brookings and in Crescent City, California just seven months ago from Western Communications Inc. in Bend.

"We certainly had not set out to buy additional newspaper companies so soon after settling in to Brookings and Crescent City," said Hungerford.

"But when approached with the opportunity to purchase The World and its two sister publications, it was a logical fit with our other news media on the Oregon coast.

"We'll now have more people and resources available to make our individual publications here even stronger," Hungerford said.

Country Media also owns non-daily community newspapers serving Lincoln City, Clatskanie and St. Helens, Oregon; Langdon and Bowman, North Dakota; and Baker, Montana.

GUEST COLUMN

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An example of bad taste, and worse

I quickly went from shock to a strong sense of revulsion and disgust the other day, as I was checking up on the latest local news. (Online and HH: 1/15/2020)

It was a story of tragedy and grief. A young mother was killed in a traffic crash, with her baby rushed to the hospital. The text of the story, taken from the Sheriff's press release, told me all I needed (and wanted) to know. The story was a traumatic reminder of the fragility of human life and the senseless disaster of traffic crashes.

What left me numb and sickened, and then outraged, was the accompanying color photo of the car, horrific in every detail. The photo didn't add to the story, and instead it fueled my emotions and smacked of tabloid journalism and poor taste.

I thought of the victim's family and friends, and of all those impacted by the tragedy, and how seeing that photo would amplify their grief. And, to what purpose was the photo published?

When I was a prosecutor in the criminal justice system, I reviewed countless photos of tragedy. I sometimes used them to assist experts determine causation, and in court as evidence for the judge or jury to consider in making their findings. In deciding on whether to use a particular photo, I always asked myself three questions: is it true, is it kind, and is it necessary?

If the photo was the only way to convey an important fact, I still needed to decide if the real motive to submit it into evidence was to simply be dramatic, or appeal to lurid or emotional sensationalism. Photos that didn't meet those standards were left in the case file.

Like prosecutors, journalists also have professional standards of ethics.

A position paper on reporting stories of grief and tragedy by the Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ), takes on these questions:

"Stories involving grief and victims goes to the heart of one of the tenets of the SPJ Code of Ethics: minimize harm.

"The Code recognizes the responsibility to ... show compassion...be sensitive... When using photographs (be sensitive) to those affected by tragedy or grief.

"(A)void pandering to lurid curiosity. ... media will receive higher marks if they present their stories in responsible fashion without

Environmental advocates rally in Wheeler

Nancy Webster
North Coast Communities for Watershed Protection

North Coast Communities for Watershed Protection held an informational rally adjacent to Highway 101 in Wheeler on Jan. 11 because of its concerns about current clear cut logging above Wheeler.

Those of us with North Coast Communities for Watershed Protection are very concerned about the clearcut logging of 94 acres above Wheeler, Oregon by Stimson Lumber Co. that has been taking place recently.

Broadly speaking, our concerns extend to the similar treatment of forest lands bordering many other North Coast towns. How Stimson, and other industrial forest owners, manage their lands has serious and costly consequences for all of us.

Even though they hide behind the claim that they adhere to the Oregon Forest

Practices Act, or even go beyond it, what they do to the land that, in a larger sense, all of us share threatens our wildlife (including fish runs), our drinking water sources (and, thus, potentially, our health), and our physical safety (by increasing landslide risk).

Let's all work together to support improving the management of forestlands and the updating of the Oregon Forest Practices Act.

Four decades ago, this Act was far-reaching and progressive. Since then, California, Washington, and even conservative-leaning Idaho, have instituted more stringent forestry measures. Let's bring in independent, conflict-free, scientists who can review current forestry practices and determine what would truly be best management practices to protect our forest waters. Current bad practices have the potential to adversely impact all of us who live downstream.

As stated above, NCCWP

has many concerns about the current clearcutting going on above Wheeler. Most importantly, we request that Stimson not spray pesticides after clearcutting. This is particularly crucial where logging has taken place in a watershed that is used for drinking water.

People who live in Wheeler have reported that, in the past, when spraying occurs, they can smell it. This is known as "chemical trespass." Scientists at EPA say that "if you can smell it, you have been exposed to it." Many people who live in Wheeler are concerned that past pesticide spraying may have resulted in increased cancer rates, including in especially vulnerable preschool children.

We are concerned that these sprayed pesticides can travel in the air, the water, and the soil away from the original spray site. We also strongly request that

Day. The date marks 75 years since the liberation of Auschwitz-Birkenau, Hitler's largest death camp. It's an opportune occasion to reflect on how each of us can help end oppression.

A key question facing historians is how could an enlightened society that produced our civilization's greatest philosophers, poets, and composers also produce its most notorious mass murderers? How could it get millions of ordinary citizens to go along. Was the Holocaust a peculiarly German phenomenon, or are other enlightened societies capable? And, is it just about killing humans, or does it extend to other sentient beings?

Jewish Nobel laureate, Isaac Bashevis Singer provided a clear answer when he wrote: "To the animals, all people are Nazis." His message was that, even in our own country, we are willing to subjugate our own compassion and affection for animals to those of our society. We have allowed social norms to supersede our own.

It follows that the only way to end our own participation in oppression is for each of us to reclaim our own moral values. Our very first step should be to drop animals from our menus.

2020 is going to be another great year at TBCC

Dr. Ross Tomlin
TBCC President

January 2020 marks the 10-year anniversary of TBCC moving onto our new campus here on Third Street. What an exciting decade it has been for the college. We are kicking off this new decade with enrollments up again over last year and a 12-percent growth in enrollment over the past two years. Our new welding program has full classes, we are offering Physics for the first time ever, and Chemistry for the first time in many years. We are planning new career-technical programs in Healthcare and Agricultural Technology. We will be finalizing a Facilities Master Plan this spring that will detail our plans for new and expanded facilities to address space needs for the next 10-20 years. We will be reaching back out to the community this spring and summer to detail those plans.

We are also addressing needs in our transfer programs which is the other main focus of community colleges. We just held our annual Transfer Days event at the college. Representatives from universities throughout Oregon visited and provided our transfer and high school students with information on how to transfer seamlessly from TBCC to a university. Going to a community college for the first two years before transferring to a university saves students thousands of dollars and allows them to stay local for those first two years and make a smooth transition from high school to a college environment. In addition, high school seniors graduating in Tillamook County have access to our First Class Scholar and Oregon Promise programs, which cover most to all of tuition in their first two years, saving even more money. And, community colleges in Oregon are working closely with the public universities to ensure that the credits obtained at community colleges will all count toward their chosen major at the university. In addition, we are now able to offer our main transfer degree, the Associate of Arts Oregon Transfer, completely online! This will allow students to complete their transfer degree, which is accepted by all Oregon public universities, without having to take any classes on campus. An online option such as this can be a huge benefit to a student who works full time while attending school. Spring term registration begins Feb. 24. Come in now to start working with an advisor in Student Services that can help you with all the details of applying so you can be ready to get started. It truly is an exciting time at TBCC and we look forward to continuing to serve you.

thermals. There is usually something to see at any time of day or night, especially if you visit different habitats, including forests, ponds, and streams where ducks, herons, and other water birds hang out, Leonard said. "Collecting bird observations is important because no single scientist or teams of scientists could hope to capture information about birds around the world without relying on the eyes and ears of bird watchers," Leonard said. "The information gathered for the GBBC and for other important counts and surveys provide a long-term record of how bird populations may be changing over time on a broad scale." Leonard said what happens in one or a few backyards does not necessarily reflect what is going on with the overall populations of a species. Bird populations naturally fluctuate from year to year depending on food supplies, weather and other factors. A dip in the overall numbers for a particular species might not mean much when it shows up in one year's tally or on a very local scale. "The real value of these counts comes with the passage of time when broad, consistent trends become apparent," Leonard said. Data from Tillamook was last updated in February 2019. Popular locations with a wide variety of birds located were: Tillamook Bay – Garibaldi Marina, Tillamook Bay – Barview Jetty, Bay Ocean Spit, Cape Meares Lake, Tillamook Bay, Bay City Oyster Company, Nehalem Sewage Ponds, Sitka Sedge State Natural Area and Goodspeed Road. An estimated quarter of a million people participated in the 2019 GBBC, submitting checklist from more than 100 countries and reporting around 6,700 species – well over half of the known species in the world, Leonard said. 132 species were spotted in Tillamook with high counts of: American Wigeon, Cackling Goose, Northern Pintail, Bufflehead, Green-winged Teal, Mew Gull, American Robin, Great Egret, European starling, Northern Shoveler, Canvasback, Canada Goose, and Glaucous-winged Gull. Rare sightings of: Spotted Sandpiper, Common Murre, Cattle Egret, Swamp Sparrow, California Scrub-Jay, Sharpshinned Hawk, Harris's Sparrow, Green Heron, Ruddy Turnstone, Northern Shrike, Lark Sparrow, Pigeon Guillemot, Cooper's Hawk, Barred Owl, and Red-breasted Sapsucker. To learn more and participate, go to www.bird-count.org. There you will find downloadable instructions. You will also find information about entering the photo contest.

Wheeler

Stimson do no more clearcut logging of the land above Wheeler. What happens in the hills above Wheeler can compromise downstream water quality in creeks, nearby wetlands, Nehalem Bay, and, ultimately, the ocean. Timber companies in Oregon that use industrial forestry practices will say they are "following the rules" of the Oregon Forest Practices Act, and that may be true, but that is precisely the point. As mentioned, Oregon has less stringent logging rules than California, Washington, and Idaho. Those of us with North Coast Communities for Watershed Protection are saying that the rules need to change and to be strengthened. Anyone looking with an unbiased eye at the slopes behind Wheeler would agree. The Oregon Forest Practices Act needs to be modernized to better protect people and the environment. Some of the same companies that cut timber in Oregon also operate in California, Washington, or Idaho. If they can do so profitably there, under more stringent regulations, they can here, too. For too long, many of our forestlands have been managed only as a resource for wood products. Forests also play a critical role in affecting water quality, wildlife, and the climate. Let's modernize our forestry practices to protect our forest waters by supporting practices that will insure clean water, healthy fish runs, and a healthy and sustainable forest. Our forests are our future!

Capitol Building. Then I noticed that it would be on a Thursday. Whoa! How can the loggers, truckers, and their employees afford to lose a day of production, lost profits and wages? Then I recalled that Governor Brown and her Liberal Majority had revived their "Global Warming" inspired legislation. Rules and restrictions that if adopted will cripple our industries and cost thousands of jobs. it could have been passed at the last Legislative Session. But our Republican Minority had the courage to walk out and prevent a vote. In spite of Brown's ordering the OSP to hunt them down and bring them back to the Capital. Bullying? This brings back sad memories of Lavoy Finicum at a roadblock on the road between Burns and John Day. A dark day in our State's History. I now believe the answer to my question is: How can we afford not to attend the Protest? Our industries, jobs, the right to earn a living, and the economic future of our State is hanging in the balance. If you want to help prevent this financial disaster please go to Salem 02/06 and voice your disapproval of these destructive concepts. The future of our economy depends on it! Peaceful Protests are still permitted in the USA as far as I know, May God Bless America, President Trump, the State of Oregon and it's citizens. Norm Neal

Oregon's unemployment rate drops to 3.7 percent in December

Oregon's unemployment rate dropped to 3.7 percent in December, the lowest on comparable records dating back to 1976. The November unemployment rate was 3.9 percent. "The latest estimates suggest there are fewer unemployed Oregonians now than at any point since 1976, when comparable records began," said Nick Beleiciks, systems and economic analysis manager at the Oregon Employment Department, in a press release. "That's especially striking considering Oregon's labor force is twice as large as it was 44 years ago." In December, many of Oregon's workforce metrics set records, indicating an increasingly tight labor market. The number of people who were unemployed for less than half a year dropped to the lowest level in at least 18 years. The number of people who were unemployed due to a layoff also dropped to the lowest level in the past two decades. The broadest measure of labor underutilization, called "U-6," came in at the lowest on records dating back nearly two decades. This measure includes the unemployed, plus those who want a full-time job but are working part-time due to the economy. Total nonfarm payroll employment grew by 800 jobs in December, following a gain of 3,800 jobs, as revised, in November. December gains were strongest in leisure and hospitality (+2,000 jobs). In addition, several industries added between 300 and 500 jobs. Meanwhile, two industries declined by more than 500 jobs: health care and social assistance (-900 jobs) and professional and business services (-1,600 jobs). Oregon's over-the-year job growth of 1.4 percent equaled the U.S. job growth of 1.4 percent. Most of Oregon's major industries expanded by between 1 percent and 3 percent since December 2018. The fastest growing industries in the past 12 months were private educational services (+1,300 jobs, or 3.6 percent) and transportation, warehousing, and utilities (+2,100 jobs, or 3 percent). In that time, only two industries cut jobs: retail trade (-700 jobs, or -0.3 percent) and mining and logging (-300 jobs, or -4.2 percent).

"The data suggests that 21.5 percent of workers in Tillamook County commute 50 or more miles each way," Davis said. "I would caveat this slightly – some of these workers will be 'work from home,' but the overall number is still very large."

Davis managed to grab this data and aggressively cut out some cases that he thought were probably remote workers instead of actual commuters, and it still only brought the number down to 17 percent. The implication is that people are moving out of the county, presumably due to housing costs, to reach their job in-county.

There is an estimate of nearly 3,000 more people expected by year 2040. There is more demand for small lot dwellings, townhomes, plexes and apartments. There is a need for middle income housing that consist of smaller, more affordable units.

Chase did a residential needs analysis and found that despite environmental constraints, there are 2,000 acres of buildable residential-zoned land that exists in the unincorporated areas in the county. Chairman David Yamamoto asked if there has been any analysis done in the unincorporated areas in south Tillamook County that are buildable. Chase said 815 dwellings would need to be added in.

According to the assessment, 1,788 new dwellings in the cities would require 404 buildable acres. There is very low-density zoning in unincorporated areas in the county. The smaller cities have better potential for providing townhomes, duplexes and more. Policy recommendations were to utilize state and federal grants for gap funding.

A 10-year multiple-unit tax abatement is part of the missing solution, Chase said. He encourages accessory dwelling units (guest homes, granny-flats, mother-in-law-apartments) and cottage homes within the low-density zones. There should be focus on downtown redevelopment in Tillamook.

Chase suggested an expansion of water and sewer and include both in unincorporated areas. He wants to continue county-wide Housing Needs Assessment planning and housing allocations with city, community and Department of Land Conservation & Development input. He suggested to continue to work with local sewer and water districts to determine current and planned capacity levels.

Another recommendation was to partner with others to create new local housing construction certification programs. Shelter Institute provides classes for people in northeast from rural Maine. People travel for 300 miles for these trainings. There is nothing like it in Oregon or Washington, Chase said.

Baertlein asked of the 2,000 acres available, how much of it are property owners actually willing to sell. Chase said there is a supply here of land that a lot of communities do not have. He suggested that the county reach out to property owners about developing in the near future. Absher said they are currently identifying potential sites.

"This is going to be a challenge," Absher said.

Commissioner Mary Faith Bell said she is excited to deliver the data and start with work. Commissioner Bill Baertlein said there could be an impact on school districts. He pointed out that Newport called the office to see what Tillamook was doing and followed their plan.

Funnel cloud, hailstones hit North Coast

headlightnews@countrymedia.net

A tornado left storm damage in the Manzanita area Tuesday, Jan. 21. Large hailstones were also reported as a rainstorm struck along the North Coast.

Witnesses said a water spout was seen on the ocean shortly before the tornado blew through in the area of Neah-Kah-Nie Meadow. TV news station FOX 12's meteorologists first reported the storm as a possible tornado.

Tillamook County Emergency Management and Nehalem Bay Fire and Rescue (NBFR) personnel responded to the scene. There were no injuries reported, but some properties were damaged, and there were reports of tree damage.

NBFR Chief Chris Beswick said units were dispatched to a residential fire alarm at around 11 a.m., finding the alarm was triggered by the tornado. He said at least four homes had reports of minor damage such as broken windows and other roof damages.

Beswick said witnesses reported a tornado of around 20 feet in diameter. He said it does not appear to have touched down at any point and it dissipated quickly.

Emergency Manager Gordon McCraw said the National Weather Service did an assessment and classified the funnel cloud as a confirmed EF-0 tornado, weak but bringing winds between 65 and 70 mph. The tornado's path was an estimated quarter-mile long and 100-yards wide.

An EF-2 tornado with winds up to 130 mph tore into Manzanita in 2016, causing significant damage. Two shops and a home were smashed in the storm and more than 100 other properties were damaged.

Bay City Arts Center implements art, music into Tillamook elementary schools

headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

Bay City Arts Center's (BCAC) executive director, Leeauna Perry, is administering art and music classes at Tillamook elementary schools to supplement the district. This project started a pilot project.

Tillamook elementary schools do not have any art teachers anymore. Perry got intrigued and met with teachers at Liberty Elementary and one other elementary school. Perry teaches art in different classes – volunteer-based and all supplies are out of pocket. She integrated an art project in the science classes.

"The schools responded so well," Perry said.

The project received a grant, which goes to paying for art supplies, Perry said. She said they can buy water-color paper now rather than use plain printer paper. This year, they incorporated art in math, science, social studies and more. These are once a week, one-hour classes. Students create art projects for that particular class.

According to Perry, some classes are more advanced than others. In a bilingual class, the project was half Spanish, half English.

Students entered art into a gallery at Adventist Health. This will be part of the hospital's fundraiser for February.

BCAC art director and treasurer, Charlie Wooldridge, runs the DaVinci project, which brings fifth graders from across the region to the BCAC to design and build their own inventions. Perry said the DaVinci Project has been going on for over 10 years. It was started by Wooldridge, who is a founding board member. They go into schools and work with the fifth-grade class.

The kids make a diagram plan in a one-hour class session. A bus transports the students to the BCAC. Materials are brought in – a lot of reclaimed stuff, such as recycled wood. Perry said a lot of robot-style inventions are made from this project. She said students can look at a plastic bottle and could see it as a propellant for a robot body.

"This project is a great way to recycle materials and have a secondary use for them," Perry said.

Perry said this project is visually stimulating. There are seven different classes that participated. They had a reception to celebrate the art in the gallery. This allows parents to see the students' artwork for free. A description of the art and artist was next to the art piece.

The DaVinci Project is funded by the Tillamook County cultural Coalition. BCAC President Rob Russel said they are hoping to use part of the grants to make a more advanced sixth grade project. Perry said community investment is important to granters. The supplemental art is funded to go through June.

The BCAC also worked to get a music program in the schools and had a concert in December. The school was willing to work on the project, Perry said. They held a second and third grade concert. The theme was Equity and Equality. There were 600 parents at the third-grade concert and about 400 at the second grade.

The concerts were volunteer-led by Perry. Perry volunteered her time and was thankful for the school being open to the idea.

The BCAC also hosts quarterly, drop in workshops for stone carving. They also have music concerts frequently.

Malware

Bell said Wednesday the attack was apparently ransomware in nature, though no demands had been issued yet. The attack was first suspected to be a storage system technical issue, but it was quickly realized that something sinister was in play. Bell said it was not clear if the malware was still spreading internally, but everything with connectivity was shut down.

“We hope that we contained it, and that it’s not spreading outside our system, but it’s possible that it’s still moving around inside our system,” Bell said.

Bell added that cyberattacks are essentially an industry now, a growing concern for governments and companies as well as private citizens. She emphasized that there was no indication that any data was compromised in the attack.

Tillamook County had been ramping up cybersecurity since it hired Laviolette this past year. Bell said Laviolette has been invested in bringing his banking cybersecurity savvy to Tillamook. She noted that with the push to go digital for everything, she still sees value in traditional paper documents and methods, in particular physical voting ballots.

“It’s a mixed bag ... if there was a loss of data, you would certainly wish for hard copies,” Bell said. “I think the lesson is to backup absolutely everything because I think this kind of thing will become more common. There are places in the world where people are just doing this for a living.”

Bell said county officials were discussing whether to pay a ransom when and if a demand was received. She said all options were on the table, but none of them were good. Bell said it would be a case of choosing from the “best of bad options.” She also acknowledged that paying a ransom was no guarantee of a return to normalcy.

Tillamook County Sheriff’s Office experienced effects to its phone system and email, though Interim Sheriff Jim Horton said jail operations and the ability for deputies to respond were not hampered by the cyberattack. Tillamook County Emergency Communications District’s dispatch and 911 services appeared unaffected, though Administrator Doug Kettner said his agency was investigating to further assure the cyberattack had no impact.

County commissioners scheduled another immediate closed session for late Wednesday to discuss what was called a “data security incident.” An emergency open session on the matter was held Thursday morning.

A county-issued statement regarding a cyberattack said computer difficulties with several systems had arisen Wednesday. Information Technology staff immediately launched an investigation and determined there was a malware attack.

County officials said in the statement they would coordinate with law enforcement as well as retain an independent computer forensics provider and legal experts to assist in the investigation. The investigation was in its early stages. The FBI was also contacted.

County officials have apologized for the inconvenience to the public. The statement said there was no indication yet that the personal information of employees or residents has been accessed or misused. The projected cost to regain control of the system was not yet known.

“Tillamook takes the security of the information entrusted to us very seriously. We are taking steps to prevent a similar event from occurring in the future, including strengthening security measures,” the county statement said. “Although we are not at liberty to share many details about this matter at this time, we will provide a further update once the investigation is complete.”

In Thursday morning’s emergency meeting, Laviolette said system outages would continue in the coming days, and additional systems could fail as well, noting that some services that were working early in the attack had later gone down. He later added that it was not confirmed how the malware had entered the system.

An additional emergency meeting of the board of commissioner was slated for 8 a.m. Friday, Jan. 24, at the county courthouse. A closed-door meeting was set for 4 p.m. that day.

In the Friday morning meeting, Laviolette said there was not much additional technical information to share, primarily because contracted professionals had not yet arrived to assist. Arete Incident Response was due at the courthouse later that morning. He was hopeful more details would be available by the end of the day.

“Help is on the way. They’re professionals; they do this for a living,” Laviolette said. “This is not their first rodeo.”

Laviolette said in the days leading up to the Friday morning meeting he received good offers of help from a plethora of individuals and agencies as well as other county governments. He said while nothing had necessarily been turned down, county officials were following the best practices in waiting for the specialists to arrive before deciding whose assistance might be needed.

“As of today, we do not know what type of cyber event we are truly dealing with,” Laviolette said. “We do not know the specifics ... that will come with the professionals’ work.”

County commissioners thanked Laviolette for his diligent efforts to upgrade an old information security system and for his leadership in the wake of the cyberattack. Baertlein said he hoped the incident would be used as a lesson to drive technological improvements.

With county government in crisis mode and reports of misinformation in the community, Tillamook County Emergency Manager Gordon McCraw was named incident commander and public information officer in charge of all communications. McCraw said an incident command team was formed to handle the situation.

To overcome communications issues, McCraw recommended using the emergency alert service Nixle. You can subscribe to the service by texting your zip code to 888777 or by going to Nixle.com and registering. On the website, you can select what type of alerts you receive. Tillamook People’s Utility District also sends alerts through Nixle. Tillamook County Emergency Management established temporary contact methods due to computer difficulties. Emergency Management can be reached at by phone at 281-254-0970 or by email at gordon.mccraw@gmail.com.

The courthouse and other external departments remained open for business. However, the ability to do business electronically was compromised. Tillamook County Circuit Court, being part of the state judicial department, was reportedly unaffected the county problem. The Justice Court also continued to function.

Tillamook County Health Department and Department of Community Development directed patients and customers who could not get through by phone number to use alternative phone numbers, which are provided below.

Tillamook County Health Department was open, although there was no access to electronic medical records. The county statement assured that personal health information was protected. If patients cannot get through on regular phone numbers, please call:

Congressman Kurt Schrader hears local concerns

headlightnews@countrymedia.net

U.S. Rep. Kurt Schrader, Democratic Congressman for Oregon’s Fifth District, met with civic leaders from around Tillamook County this past week to hear local concerns. The meeting was held Thursday, Jan. 23, at Tillamook Bay Community College.

Schrader said the House of Representatives was focused on considering the needs of smaller communities, trying to emphasize that rural and coastal communities require as much or more support than the state’s population centers. He noted efforts to expand and improve broadband internet access for unserved and underserved areas and also a search for bay dredging and other maintenance funding.

“In these smaller communities the water issues are really difficult,” Schrader said. “The Water Resources Development Act is being reauthorized as we speak. After visiting in Lincoln and Tillamook counties we’re going to make sure there’s some smaller community carve-outs.”

The cumbersome nature of writing grant applications was also raised, with weight seeming to go towards larger cities and counties that have more staff, thus more ability to apply for funding. It’s unlikely you would find a full-time grant writer on staff in a rural or coastal community. That work is done by a person who probably has countless other duties such as a city manager.

Dredging was raised a number of times in the meeting with local leaders. Schrader said he understands that dredging is the lifeblood of coastal towns up and down Oregon. He said the issue is critical, but there is often a catch for areas that are too small for federal assistance and too far inland for help from the state.

Tillamook Air Museum’s Hangar B was also a point of concern for the congressman. He plans to work closely with the Port of Tillamook Bay to find resources for refurbishing the aging hangar before it collapses. Schrader said once a prioritized plan from the Port and the community is in hand, he’ll collaborate with state leaders to push for action to preserve the historic site and tourist attraction.

Fire district funding has been a growing problem in Tillamook County. Schrader said people expect the same standard of services and care regardless of the size of a city or county, despite the differences in tax funding bases. He questioned whether training and certification requirements had become overly cumbersome in recent years. He also vowed to continuing pushing back against attempts by the government to tax stipends received by volunteer firefighters.

Rep. Schrader addresses concerns of Tillamook County citizens

headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

Around 80 people attended a town hall for U.S. Rep. Kurt Schrader, representing Oregon’s Fifth Congressional District, on Thursday, Jan. 23, at the Port of Tillamook Bay Officers’ Mess Hall. Schrader answered questions about college affordability, impeachment, and the environment.

Schrader said they passed a budget and got all of the appropriations bills done. They also passed the National Defense Authorization Act. Schrader said he questions some of the military projects and said they are expensive and feels there are other departments that should be looked at, including health care and education. They are working with military colleagues to address issues such as sexual assault.

Another topic Schrader addressed was the price of prescription drugs. Congress passed a bill to negotiate prices.

“It is ridiculous that other countries around the world pay so much less that we do for the same medication,” Schrader said. “It is also wrong that seniors are not allowed to negotiate lower prices and Medicaid.”

A citizen asked if Schrader was familiar with the Waterways Access Permit. He has three kayaks and said through his research, he believes the Access Fee is illegal. He said he has tried to discuss this with the Tillamook Chair. He said this is both a state and federal issue. Schrader said he will have to do more research into this. He had experience with this himself. The U.S. Coast Guard pulled him over when he was kayaking because he did not have the right tags.

The goal is to balance the species issue, Schrader said. The citizen said the Invasive Species Act is already double the original fee. Congress and state legislatures do not write what the fine or fee would be; that is up to the marine board and U.S. Coast Guard.

A citizen asked about student loan recovery.

“We’re working on that,” Schrader said.

Schrader said he is working on trying to push Pell Grants and looking at making them available for career and technical colleges as well. He is working with Senator Elizabeth Warren to refinance loans and going to see if they can get a hearing. If passed, this would make a student loan balance forgiven after 20 years.

A citizen expressed shock and disappointment that President Donald Trump’s impeachment is so important. Is impeachment going to be something we have to deal with every time someone new is in office? Schrader said impeachments are very serious and will not be on a regular basis. He said there are times when you are forced to deal with things you do not want to. Schrader said he believes Trump is overstepping.

A citizen said there has been another rollback on environmental protections and it seems like an afterthought. He asked if there is any hope in congress to do the things needed to preserve the environment. Schrader said water is a top issue in Oregon.

“The current administration does not believe in climate change,” Schrader said.

Schrader said it is important for people to be a part of the process. There have been worries about power plant emissions. The tentative plan is to put power plants to near zero emissions by 2050.

Lady Pirates move to 4-5 in NWL overall

Mike Weber
For The Headlight Herald

After losing six of their first seven games, the much improved Neah-Kah-Nie High girls basketball team has certainly turned things around while enjoying a tremendous amount of success recently. The Lady Pirates (4-5 NWL, 5-19 overall) won four of five Class 2A Northwest League matchups, including a 42-23 road win over the Gaston Greyhounds Jan. 21. Neah-Kah-Nie, which led from start-to-finish, jumped in front 18-8 after one quarter and led 34-14 at halftime. The Pirates were led by junior Kyla Huntley, who had 17 rebounds and scored a season-high 19 points. Pirates senior guard Clover O'Connor also had an impressive performance as she scored a season-high 15 points. It marked Neah-Kah-Nie's first road win this year. Having the momentum of four victories, the Pirates came into a Jan. 23 NWL road matchup against the highly regarded No. 7 ranked Portland Christian Royals (7-2, 14-3) playing with a high confidence level. The younger Pirates (five freshmen, four sophomores) had hopes of getting a win against Royals and were focused on having a better performance than they did in the last matchup between the two squads (a 54-21 home loss Dec. 17). The Pirates, guided by coach

Corey Douma, played tough and trailed by just nine points at 24-15 midway through the third quarter. The more experienced Royals took control from that point on, outscoring the Pirates 10-3 to build a 34-18 advantage after three quarters. The Royals maintained their momentum to hold on for a 44-30 win over the Pirates last Thursday at Portland Christian High School. "It was nice to get some wins, the kids are learning and getting smarter in regards to every aspect of the game and everyone has been working really hard," Donna said "We had some sick kids the last time we played them (Royals) so we had mostly everyone ready to play except Ashlynn Lawrence

(concussion) and we competed very well. I was happy with the way we played, especially with our defensive performance. We just had too many turnovers that created easy baskets for them." After Portland Christian jumped in front 6-0, Neah-Kah-Nie sophomore Emma Miller (17 points) helped put the Pirates on the scoreboard with a layup, making it 6-2 with 4:24 left in the first quarter. "It's always our goal to come into each game and show improvement and we did that tonight," said Miller. "We had a higher confidence level after winning some games recently. We knew it would be a tough game though, but we were going to try our hardest regardless of the situation. It's definitely our goal to reach the district playoffs. Being up near the top of the league standings with such a young team that we have really means a lot for us. We're looking forward to the upcoming games and it's going to be a challenge for us to face some of the stronger teams in the league." Portland Christian took an 8-2 advantage, forcing a Pirates timeout with 3:51 left in the quarter. Neah-Kah-Nie sophomore Jordan White (seven pts.) fired in a three pointer, trimming the margin to 8-5 with 1:52 left on the clock. That was as close as the Pirates would get though for the remainder of the game. Portland Christian built a 13-5 lead by the end of the first quarter and then extended the lead to double digits at 15-5 in the second quarter. Huntley, who scored six points and had a season high 19 rebounds, scored on a jumper in the lane, trimming the margin to 20-11 with 2:46 remaining in the quarter. The Royals scored to take a 22-11 halftime lead. "I actually wasn't able to play (Royals) in the last game we played them because I was sick," said Huntley. "We definitely had some momentum after winning four of five games. After the Nestucca game (a 38-37 win Jan. 15), I've noticed that we've been playing much better defensively and I think we showed that tonight versus Portland Christian. I had a really good game against Gaston and I was trying to play that same type of game again, but they have some taller girls and their post players are very good." PC built a 24-11 third quarter advantage. The Pirates responded as Miller sank two free throws and she later buried a 14-foot jumper from the side to make it 24-15 and force a Royals timeout with 4:23 left in the third. On Saturday, Neah-Kah-Nie faced an even stronger opponent as they met the No. 4 ranked Faith Bible Falcons

Tillamook boys go hard against Philomath

The Cheesemakers were ahead for the vast majority of the game against the Philomath Warriors, coming close to knocking off the No. 1 team in the conference this past Friday.

Free throws were a big part of the night, with a combined 56 foul shots attempted for 11 baskets by each team. The Mooks saw their lead dissipate in the third quarter, going into the fourth with Warriors ahead 28-27.

“I was so proud of our kids’ ability to compete for four quarters,” head coach Johnny Begin said. “The atmosphere in the gym and high-pressure situations we faced down the stretch will pay dividends later in league.”

Trask Veek-Petersen and

Marshall Allen led Tillamook with 12 points each. The boys are currently 7-9 overall with one league-play loss, ranked No. 23 in the conference. Tillamook was slated to meet Astoria at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

Second half woes continue for Pirate boys

Mike Weber
For The Headlight Herald

The Neah-Kah-Nie High Pirate boys basketball team has struggled this year while compiling a 3-12 overall record, including a 1-8 mark in the Class 2A Northwest League. Despite the dismal record, the Pirates have actually had a chance to win in nearly every game this year while holding first half leads.

It was a similar scenario again for the Pirates when they faced the Portland Christian Royals (5-4, 9-9) in a NWL road contest Thursday. The Pirates, guided by coach Tim Gienger, had a golden opportunity to win, as they led 27-20 at halftime and were up 31-30 after three quarters. However, the Royals responded in the fourth, outscoring the Pirates 18-9 to notch a 49-40 victory at Portland Christian.

“Our pattern this year is that we usually lead in the first half and then in the second half, we just can’t put the ball in the basket,” said Gienger. “We’re trying to get that ironed out, but it seems like we just go through long dry spells offensively and we let teams get back into games. We let opponents build a lead and then it’s hard for us to catch up. Tonight was a little better, we were right there and we had a chance to win the game. We’re looking for a breakthrough game where we can get a league win. We’ve had close games with just about every team in our league, but we just couldn’t quite get it done.”

The Pirates did indeed have a breakthrough performance in their following contest as they won 52-44 over the Faith Bible Falcons (1-6, 2-13) on Saturday in Hillsboro, snapping a seven-game losing streak. It marked the third time this year that Neah-Kah-Nie scored 50 points or more and coincidentally, all three games resulted in victories. The Pirates had three players score in double figures, led by senior post Kent Pieper (15 points), senior Destin Donaldson (14 pts.) and junior Eric Loza (10 pts.).

“We finally played well for the entire second half and our defense was very good Saturday against Faith Bible,” said Gienger.

In the matchup against Portland Christian last Thursday, the Pirates started impressively as Pieper, Eric Lambert, Loza and Ben Holm each scored to help Neah-Kah-Nie build a 10-2 lead to force a Portland Christian timeout with 4:19 left in the first quarter.

The Pirates momentum continued as Destin Donaldson and Holm both sank outside jumpers to give Neah-Kah-Nie its largest lead of the game at 14-4 and they led 17-10 at the end of the opening quarter.

The two evenly matched squads traded baskets throughout the second quarter. Loza (10 pts.) scored on three straight offensive possessions to help the Pirates stay in front. He scored on a layup, he sank a jumper and then fired in a buzzer beater to give Neah-Kah-Nie a 27-20 halftime advantage.

“I was playing with a high confidence level and I felt good to be able to drive inside and score some points,” said Loza. “I felt like we had a good chance to win tonight. In most of our games, we shoot well in the first half and then the shots quit falling in the second half and then it seems like we go downhill from there. We’re hoping to change that trend during the remainder of the season and play better in the second half so that we can win some more games.”

Pieper (four pts.) was in foul trouble though with three in the first half and he was whistled for a fourth foul with 5:45 left in the third, so his playing time was limited for the duration of the game because of the unfortunate foul situation. Pieper and Lambert both fouled out, which severely hurt the Pirates chance to win.

Portland Christian overcame the deficit with an 8-0 run at the outset of the second half and took it’s first lead of the game at 28-27, forcing a Pirates timeout with 3:48 left in the third quarter. Neah-Kah-Nie regained the advantage at 29-28 following a basket by Holm (eight pts.) and Loza’s jumper helped the Pirates take a 31-30 lead after three.

Portland Christian had a 7-0 run to take a 37-31 lead midway through the fourth quarter and never trailed again. The Pirates responded to the challenge and fought back valiantly, while hoping to get the win. Donaldson (six pts.) fired in a three-pointer from the corner to trim Portland Christian’s lead to 40-38 with 1:41 left in the game. The Royals then outscored the Pirates 9-2 in the final 90 seconds of the game while sinking a number of free throws to hold on for the win.

“At that point, it kind of boosted my confidence and normally I shoot pretty good, but nothing seemed to be going in for us tonight,” said Donaldson. “When that went in and it trimmed the lead to two points, I felt like it gave us a little more energy, but then things just didn’t work out to well for us after that. It was a really fun game battling back and forth with them and they (Royals) are a pretty good team.

Mychal Kelly, one of four seniors along with Donaldson, Pieper and Lambert, scored four points and freshman Parker Hopkins had two points.

“It has been a tough season with losing so many games, but I feel like we’ve improved after each game,” said Donaldson. “Even though we’re not doing as well as we had hope to, we’re still moving up and getting better game-by-game. We’re hoping to win at least four or five more games by the end of the season. We’re trying to focus on playing a completely solid game and hold the lead for the entire game.”

On Jan. 21, the Pirates played the first of four consecutive road games and they lost 48-35 to the Gaston Greyhounds (3-6, 5-11) at Gaston High School. The Pirates led 24-18 at halftime but then they struggled offensively and scored just 11 in the second half. Lambert led Neah-Kah-Nie in scoring with 14 points. On Monday, the Pirates faced versus the Mannahouse Christian Lions (6-2, 11-6) in Portland and they lost 56-30.

The Pirates play the Vernonia Loggers (2-7, 4-10) in their next home game Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Vernonia won at home 50-43 Jan. 11 in the first contest between the two squads. Neah-Kah-Nie has road games Jan. 30 against the Knappa Loggers (8-1, 16-1) and the Columbia Christian Knights (9-1, 14-4) on Feb. 4. The final portion of the 16-game NWL schedule concludes with four more contest’s including the Feb. 14 season finale at home versus Gaston. The top-six squads from the nine-team NWL advance to district playoffs. NKN is currently in ninth place with seven games remaining.

(6-1, 14-2) in Hillsboro and the Pirates lost 58-31. On Monday, Neah-Kah-Nie played the No. 15 ranked Mannahouse Christian Lions (5-4, 12-5) in Portland and they lost 53-22.

The Pirates meet the No. 12 ranked Vernonia Loggers (9-1, 13-3) in their next home game Wednesday at 6 p.m. The Pirates have road games Jan. 30 against the Knappa Loggers (3-7, 7-11) and Feb. 4 against the Columbia Christian Knights (2-7, 4-12) in Portland. The 16-game NWL schedule concludes with four more remaining contest’s including the season finale at home Feb. 14 against Gaston.

The Pirates have a good opportunity to earn a spot in the upcoming NWL District Playoffs in late February. The top-six squads from the nine-team league earn district playoff berths. Neah-Kah-Nie is currently in fifth place with seven games remaining and is hoping to qualify for districts for a third straight year.

“We’re right in the thick of things and we have such a young team with just two seniors, so we really didn’t know how well we were going to do at the beginning of the season,” said Douma. “We’ve got some good wins under our belts and it’s nice to see that we’re in the middle of the playoff race. It’s a nice position to be in at this point of the season and hopefully we’ll get a few more wins against teams ahead of us in the standings. We have to qualify for districts first, which is our goal, so we’ll just take it one game at a time and see how we do.”

The Pirates have already beaten the three teams (Knappa, Columbia Christian, Gaston) that trail them in the standings, including double digit wins over the Knights and the Greyhounds. Neah-Kah-Nie should have a good chance to notch wins against those three teams when they play them a second time and that would help secure a playoff spot for the Pirates.

Neah-Kah-Nie has enjoyed success against the three teams, while winning 15 of the last 16 games they’ve played against Knappa, Columbia Christian and Gaston over the last three years.

Man, child rescued after getting stuck in snow

A man and his child were rescued after getting stuck in the snow on a logging road.

At around 4:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20, Tillamook 911 received a call from a 39-year-old Portland man who was in the area of Browns Camp, playing in the snow with his 4-year-old son. The caller was on an unknown logging road in deep snow, had gotten his Toyota Tacoma 4X4 stuck and needed assistance.

Deputies responded to the area and located him after searching for about two hours, using descriptions of the area and cell phone signal locations. Neither the man or child were injured and they were provided a courtesy ride to meet family in North Plains, Oregon.

The vehicle was later recovered by a tow company.

Tillamook County Sheriff's Office was assisted by Tillamook County Emergency Communications District, Washington County Sheriff's Office,

Eating well on the road

Mis Carlson-Swanson
Tillamook County Wellness
Advisory Committee Member

Winter is my time for planning for the warmer, longer days of spring and summer. These plans usually include adventure and exploration, breaking the day-to-day routines, and getting back in touch with my free spirit. Destinations near and far pop into my mind, and I begin to dream and form plans. Road Trips...aren't they the best?! Yes, if you have/take time to plan, and the determination to stick to the plan. As I get older, I find that how I eat during a lengthy road trip can make or break the experience. If I don't stick to my plan, I tend to feel tired, sore, and a bit foggy...(Not exactly how you want to feel when you are exploring new places)...

Day one of a road trip usually starts out well... breakfast at home before we hit the road, then drive until the tank gets close to empty. Time to look for a gas station. Oh yeah, and a visit to the restroom, which is usually located at the back of the gas station, requiring us to walk through aisles lined with candy bars, chips, ice cream bars, sodas, energy drinks, and hot dogs spinning on the heating unit, just waiting to be put in a bun and slathered with condiments. And then I remember my plan, and say to myself "Wait, I have my healthy snacks all packed and ready to eat in my cooler in the vehicle", right? Maybe on Day 1, but by Day 2 or 3, that determination can start to waiver a bit, and the bright colors and shiny wrappers of the "not-so-healthy" choices are harder to ignore. You can even begin to taste the salt and sugar, and feel the bubbles on your tongue....WAIT! Ok, maybe it's just me, but my resolve does not typically last past Day 1.

Often, there is a McDonalds somewhere close to the gas station. Whew! A healthy alternative! "WHAT!?" you may be saying. But, yes, it can be true! Many don't realize that you can order "a la carte" off of the menu, and if you use the new self-serve order stands in many McDonald's, you can add and remove condiments and toppings to adjust the level of healthy. Here is my favorite...Side

Salad with a plain grilled chicken breast and choice of a number of dressings. It's cheaper, too!
How about an iHop, or Shari's, or Denny's? Healthy options, right?! Yes, if you are intentional. Side orders are my favorite part of the menu. So many of their meals include huge extras like hash browns, pancakes, or biscuits, which I love, but need to limit or avoid altogether. But once they are in front of me, warm and smelling delicious, it is so hard to resist. I tell myself I will bring them home in a to-go container for my boys to eat, but do they really? So, side orders of the healthy items you have decided are best for you, come out looking and tasting just as yummy, without the less healthy temptations. Red Robin offers unlimited side-salad or fresh-steamed vegetables instead of bottomless fries, for instance, no additional charge. Club soda is often (not always) a free beverage option that provides the satisfaction of bubbles, saving money, and it tastes even better when you add a twist of lime or lemon.

When I remember and stick to these options when I am traveling, I feel energetic, happy, and ready to go, which is exactly what I want to feel when out on an adventure.

The Miro Quartet in Neskowin

The Miro Quartet will present an all Beethoven program when it performs in the Neskowin Chamber Music series on Sunday, Feb. 9 at 3 p.m. at Camp Winema.

The Miro, based in Austin, Texas, is now celebrating 25 years together. Its guiding principle, noted in a quote from its website, is to “pay homage to the legacy of the string quartet while looking forward to the future of chamber music.” Since its formation in 1995, the quartet has been awarded first prize at a number of competitions including the Banff International and the Naumburg Competition. It was the first ensemble to be awarded an Avery Fisher Career Grant.

The Miro, which takes its name from the Spanish artist Joan Miro, is quartet-in-residence at Chamber Music Northwest in Portland and the Orcas

Island Chamber Music Festival in Washington State. Members are committed to music education and give master classes at universities and conservatories throughout the world. Since 2003, they have served as quartet-in-residence at the Butler School of Music at the University of Texas at Austin. Members include Daniel Ching (violin), William Fedkenheuer (violin), John Largess (violinist), and Joshua Gindele (cello). Season tickets for Neskowin Chamber Music are $110; single tickets at the door are $25. For more information, check the website, www.neskowinchambermusic.org or call 503-965-6499. Camp Winema is located three miles north of Neskowin, just off Highway 101.

GARDENING MATTERS

Winter witches or winter witch hazel

In my last column, I talked about the winter interest that is supplied by Hellebores, Sarcococa and Daphne odora. But there are many more shrubs and perennials that we find blooming in the otherwise bleak months of January and February.

One of my favorites is the witch hazel Hamamelis x intermedia ‘Diana.’ Most of the witch hazels bloom with pretty yellow or orange flowers that are lightly scented. The flowers form clusters that remind me of nothing more than shredded crepe paper or coconut flakes. But the ‘Diana’ (named after Princess Diana, so it has been around a while) has a dark red flower. I don’t notice much of a scent on this one, but the flowers are very pretty in their little clusters. The flowers turn a more orange-red in the fall.

I have had my ‘Diana’ for almost 12 years now, and it wasn’t until the winter of 2017 that she really came into her own. Before, I would get a few flower clusters, but now each year she seems to have more and more.

Witch hazel is a deciduous plant that blooms on the bare branches each winter or early spring, depending on the variety. Some varieties like H. mollis, (Chinese witch hazel), can grow to 15 feet. Others top out at 8 to 10 feet. Mine is only at about 6 feet after all these years. Witch hazels have a very open, spreading growth and their branching pattern is what I consider delicate. I could call this a shrub or maybe a small tree, depending on the variety and the way it is pruned. A lot of pruning is not desirable, only to remove crossing branches or suckers. I also like to snip a branch or two to bring inside and scent the house.

As far as placement, these plants prefer full sun or part shade. They like to be protected from the wind, and will do well pretty much wherever rhododendrons are happy. It took me about 5 years of moving poor ‘Diana’ from place to place until she found a spot she liked. It is actually very shady in the summer, but sunny in the winter as it is under the canopy of an alder that, of course, loses its leaves in the fall, allowing ‘Diana’ to have all the winter sun she could want. Witch hazels also like a rich, organic soil, so a side dressing of well-seasoned compost is helpful in the late summer or early fall when the plants are forming the tiniest flower buds for the following spring.

Witch hazels like regular water and so they are a perfect plant for the Northwest. The sunny yellow or dark red flowers are a plus in the dreary days of winter when few other plants are in bloom. Many of the Hamamelis are now grafted onto a different stock, so remove any suckers or branches that start to arise from below the graft. If you can, try to only purchase stock that has been grown on its own root stock. It is pretty easy to tell when they are grafted as the graft will look like a large swelling near the base of the plant.

Gardeners often confuse witch hazel with winter hazel (I certainly have.) as they both have similar leaves. And, in fact, the winter hazels are a genus within the hazel family of Hamamelidaceae. But the flowers of the winter hazel droop down, while the witch hazel spring upward in clumps. Both are nice shrubs or small trees for the garden, both bloom in the late winter or early spring, and both need about the same growing conditions. So, it is a matter of choice as to which one you prefer. While the winter hazels may be a little harder to find in the nurseries, they are becoming gradually more popular. And I understand that the winter hazels make excellent bonsai. This might be a solution if you have a small garden and enjoy working with bonsai trees. Bonsai do need more attention and maintenance than if the winter hazel was placed in the garden, though.

A few years ago, I bought a winter hazel (Corylopsis) from a Portland nursery. Over the years, it has grown into more of a tree than a shrub. It is still only about 5 feet tall, but has a very spreading growth habit, taking up about 10 feet of space around it. The flowers are a very pretty, drooping bell-shape of yellow that will start to bloom in the next week or so. The buds are getting ready to break as I write.

I can’t wait for the winter hazel to bloom as it is placed next to the Sarcococa and Daphne in my garden, so when one of those shrubs stops scenting the air, the others will pick up the slack. It is like a spray of perfume as I enter my gate.

FENCEPOSTS

Congratulations go out to the Garibaldi Portside Bistro for their award of Development Project of the Year at the recent 78th Annual Tillamook Chamber Community Awards Banquet. Dennis and Amanda Cavitt, along with family and friends, have poured many hours of hard work into this labor of love for all to enjoy. Their official Grand Opening is TONIGHT, Jan. 29 with the official ribbon cutting ceremony at 6 p.m. There will be complimentary appetizers from 6 p.m. until 7 p.m. and live music from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. by the band N.E. Daynow. Normally the restaurant closes at 8 p.m., but I have been assured that as long as people are dining, they will remain open. Thanks again to the Cavitt family for bringing this important business to our community. Located at the newly remodeled historic “Troller” restaurant site at 307 Mooring Basin Drive at the Port of Garibaldi, the Portside Bistro’s regular hours are Wednesday through Saturday, from 11:30 until 8ish p.m. Reservations can be made by calling 503-842-9148. Check out their Facebook page for more info about upcoming live music and special events.

The Garibaldi Lions Club is preparing for the 35th Annual Crab Races and we are looking for your help. It takes many hands to put on an event, and we are in need of volunteers this year for the March 14th and 15th weekend. Volunteer perks include free admission and a meal before or after your shift. We will also be canvassing the community to request donations for prizes for the competitions. If you would like to donate or volunteer for the event, you may reach me at 503-317-1533. Volunteer forms will be available online. The proceeds go to supporting the Lions mission of sight and hearing for local needs, as well as other community needs (local food pantry, local Christmas Basket program and Garibaldi grade school).

Tillamook Community Chorus is looking for singers for their spring season. All singers are welcome, no auditions are required, and this begins Thursday, Feb. 6 at the Tillamook High School Choir Room. Registration starts at 6 p.m. There is a $45 fee to join, but you are welcome to come out the first night to try it out for free. Future rehearsals begin that evening from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and continue each Thursday night. For more information, please contact Mary at 503-812-1830. Thanks to Kim Cavatorta for getting the word out through the Fencepost.

There is still time to sign up for the free one-on-one Computer Class at the Garibaldi Library to be held Feb. 7 from noon until 4 p.m. Contact Norma at the Library at 503-322-2100 to reserve your time.

When I worked at the Pentagon in the late 1980s, I saw many people rushing around the hallways with scowls on their faces, so I decided to smile and spread some cheer. Yes, it took many rebuffs before I received a smile or positive response in return but I didn’t give up. Don’t give up on an opportunity to be kind or offer a positive word. We don’t really know the troubles of others and your small gesture may be the only kindness they will receive that day. The Law of Attraction is sure to prevail.

Another change in address for former Cape Meares resident Gloria Languedoc. The assisted living center at Tanasbourne didn't work out, so Gloria has moved to a facility called "Golden Care." Her mailing address is now Gloria Languedoc, Golden Care, 2239 SE 74th Ave., Hillsboro OR, 97123. Margaret Tweelinckx says Gloria would appreciate cards from any of her old Cape Meares friends.

Good news from Karen Walz: Local Tillamook Girl Scout Troop #13020 has adopted Cape Meares beach and will do some beach trash pick-up later

Hebo Women's Book Club met for January last Tuesday at South Tillamook County Library. Joan Wilke led comers in a thought provoking discussion of "Letters from Yellowstone," written by Diane Smith. Besides Joan and me, attendees included Ginger Allen, Melanie Merryman, Rachel Pettit, Madlen Silkwood and Nancy Whitehead. Jan and Madlen brought refreshments. The group unanimously enjoyed this book, which is available in a Book Club Kit from any Branch. I found myself suspending my disbelief quite often as I read, but the setting and an entire story being told through outgoing letters

Hello Bay City.
Great events happening this week:

The new season of the Tillamook Community Choir starts Thursday, Feb. 6 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Tillamook High School choir room. All singers are welcome and there are no auditions. There is a $45 fee to join, but they encourage you to come for free the first night just to try it. For more information, call Mary at (503)812-1830.

You will want to go to the Bay City Methodist Church, not only for the fellowship and a good sermon, but you may get to hear Danielle Hurd and Ben Douglas sing a duet together. It will make you stand up and clap, and shout encore.

Friday, Jan. 31 at 11:30 a.m. the Bay City Booster Club meets at City Hall for potluck and meeting. You do not need to call ahead. All are welcome. Often they have a guest speaker, and this week it is yours

Thursday, Feb. 6 at 6 p.m., the Friends of Bay City and the Oyster Club subcommittee will meet in my home at 7490 Seattle Avenue. We will talk about what it means to be a Friend of Bay City and complete our mission statement. Several volunteers has stepped forward to form this new club.

Other volunteers have come forward to work on the Pearl and Oyster Music Festival. I'm counting on all of them to bring new energy and new ideas to the table, thus making the Pearl and Oyster Music Festival a destination

National Ukulele Day is Feb. 2, 2020. This is a day when uke players all over the country strum their favorite tunes to celebrate. If you are quiet, and really listen, you may hear the gentle strumming of the Salty Strings in our little town. Perhaps you may hear several folks jamming. Now that is a treat to look forward to.

Anne McBride just updated me on what's happening with the Rockaway Beach Library. First, the Rockaway 'Friends of the Library' are having a Mystery Months fundraiser beginning Feb. 1. There will be a sale; Mystery books will be buy one, get one free. If you get there early, the selection will be the best. You can add to your home library or even restock your vacation rental. You know exactly how this works if you read my column regularly, but in case you don't, or have forgotten, all the proceeds from this sale will help pay for building maintenance, utilities and insurance. The donations are really vital to keeping our Rockaway branch going.

On Feb. 13, the library is once again hosting the awesome Art Class by Valerie from 3-4:30 p.m.. This class is "Beaded Bookmarks & Suncatchers." So, what happens in this class is that Valerie will demonstrate the project, then supply you with everything you need to complete your own. She is a great gal and provides a fun and relaxing art experience. The Board of Directors of our library does a great job of making sure our building is safe and welcoming. Please do come by to help support them. The hours of the Rockaway Beach Library are noon to five daily except Saturday they are open for you from 10-3.

The Mookulele Club will meet on Saturday, Feb. 8 at the Tillamook Library at 1 p.m.. If you are new to this fun instrument, come in at least 15 minutes early for beginner lessons. And while your music skills are getting better and better, join the Salty Strings every Wednesday at the Rockaway Beach City Hall at 6 p.m.. Aloha spirit is alive and well on the Oregon coast. Both groups have ukuleles for you to borrow. All are welcome, harmonicas, mandolins, kazoos, and, well, basically, all instruments are welcome. Or, just come and sing with us. Am I winning you over yet?

Another gentle reminder folks. The Meals for Seniors

<http://www.girlscoutsosw.org/en/cookies/find-cookies.html>. If anyone would like to pre-order cookies, they may contact the troop leader to be put in touch with a local Girl Scout by emailing gs.madrone@gmail.com prior to Feb 14, 2020. What a sweetheart deal; we can get treats and a clean beach.

Many of us here in Cape Meares watched the new documentary on Bayocean the other night. The "Lost City of Bayocean" by Oregon Field Guide was beautifully produced, with many pictures of the old "Atlantic City of the West" and interviews with individuals who had first-hand or family knowledge of the events that unfolded there from 1906-1960. Bayocean was a fabulous resort, with a luxury three-story hotel; a natatorium with a heated saltwater pool and wave machine, a dance pavilion, and a movie theater; paved roads, lighted streets and a private rail line; a school, post office and general store. Putting in the north jetty without a matching south jetty caused the ocean currents to change and began a big erosion of the peninsula, ultimately leading to the end of the resort...and the end of many dreams, particularly those of Francis Drake Mitchell and his wife, who devoted their lives to building and then trying to save the city of Bayocean.

One of the individuals interviewed in the documentary, Perry Reeder Jr., had an idyllic childhood on Bayocean. He and his daughter, Sarah (Reeder) MacDonald, recently wrote a book entitled "Bayocean, Memories Beneath the Sand." My husband just finished reading the book (my turn next.) and highly recommends it. He learned new things about Bayocean, such as the fact that looting and vandalism were so widespread near the end that the Army Corps of Engineers razed and burned the empty buildings, then buried the remains 10 feet under the sand. The phrase "the city that fell into the sea" is not completely factual; what is left of the city of Bayocean actually rests beneath the sand, thus the title of the Readers' book.

Many people lost their dreams with Bayocean. We look out our living room window at that undeveloped stretch of land—home now only to bald eagles, deer and elk, coyotes, and the like—and muse about its past and its future.

to make progress on our own needlecraft or sewing projects, are planned for 6 p.m. on January 29; it will move to 4 p.m. starting in February. Mother Goose on the Loose, story time for babies through age three with their caretakers, is slated for 10 a.m. on Saturdays. Teens will create lava lamps starting at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, February 4. The library is located off of Brooten Road on Camp Street in Pacific City.

Taylor Kittell will lead a free Estate Planning Workshop from 10-11:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 1 at the Main Branch of Tillamook County Library. It's located at 1716 Third Street, in Tillamook. The presentation will include: Advance Directives, Guardianships, Power of Attorney, Probate, Trusts and Wills. Since none of us will get out of this world alive, it's wise to take steps now to ensure that one's end of life care and assets are managed as we would have them be.

A few reminders for events previously advertised in this space: Project Homeless Connect, for those experiencing homelessness, runs from 2-5 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29 at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. (In the gymnasium at 2411 5th Street in Tillamook.) Our own Watersheds Council will host a Science Pub starting at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 30 at Pelican Pub in Pacific City. Dorothy Horn, a Phd. Candidate, will discuss "Marine Debris...in our Watersheds..."

Remember too, that "Your Art's Desire: A Celebration of Art, Wine & Chocolate" to benefit Community Arts Project's Art Literacy program in Tillamook County schools is coming up. The gala starts at 6 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 8 at Kiawanda Community Center (located on Cape Kiawanda Drive) in Pacific City. Tickets are $35 at the door.

Greg Cermak will present an astronomy presentation next Saturday. "Earth Impacts by Near Earth ASteroids and Meteors:

The Threat..." is slated for 2 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 8 at the Main Branch of Tillamook County Library (address above). Topics include the Chelyabinsk and Chicxulab events, the near objects threat and the hypothetical asteroid impact exercise at a recent Planetary Defense Conference, among others.

Happy birthday this week to: Evan Carver, Monica Chatelain, Logan Craven, Sarah Dentel, James Eby, Hanna Geil, Finn Hagerty, Kate Hagerty, Amy Beth Hancock, Kyle Howard, Joe Kiser, Bryce McKillip, Stormee McKillip, Beverly Measor, Kathy Murphy, Quinn Slavens, Talisa Thurman and isla Wills.

Tillamook Bay and Rockaway when they received word that atomic bombs had been dropped on Japan and the war was over. The patrol was canceled so they could celebrate. After the war ended the "Old Man", as Pat called his senior officer, arranged for Pat to stay in Tillamook County and complete the final six months of his enlistment by serving as light house keeper at Cape Lookout.

While in the Coast Guard Pat met a "pretty little redhead" who he would end up marrying. He went to work for her family's business, the Edmonds Fish Company of Garibaldi. He would remain there for 30 years.

In the coming weeks you will be hearing more about Pat and his contributions to Tillamook County from Melonie Ferguson in the South County Fenceposts, and in another article in the Headlight Herald.

Listening to Pat, I could tell that he is the kind of man who has learned how to bend in the wind and grow from experiences, all while volunteering and making a difference in other peoples lives and hiscommunity. Well done Pat.

Have a wonderful week, and I'll see you at the Fencepost.

In construing this notice, the masculine gender includes the feminine and the neuter, the singular includes the plural, the word "grantor" includes any successor in interest to the grantor as well as any other person owing an obligation, the performance of which is secured by said trust deed, and the words "trustee" and "beneficiary" include their respective successors in interest, if any. Also, please be advised that pursuant to the terms stated on the Deed of Trust and Note, the beneficiary is allowed to conduct property inspections while property is in default. This shall serve as notice that the beneficiary shall be conducting property inspections on the said referenced property. Without limiting the trustee's disclaimer of representations or warranties, Oregon law requires the trustee to state in this notice that some residential property sold at a trustee's sale may have been used in manufacturing methamphetamines, the chemical components of which are known to be toxic. Prospective purchasers of residential property should be aware of this potential danger before deciding to place a bid for this property at the trustee's sale. The Fair Debt Collection Practice Act requires that we state the following: This is an attempt to collect a debt, and any information obtained will be used for that purpose. If a discharge has been obtained by any party through bankruptcy proceedings: This shall not be construed to be an attempt to collect the outstanding indebtedness or hold you personally liable for the debt. Annual Agency Report for Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 2019

The Tillamook Urban Renewal Agency (TURA) has compiled the agency's Annual Report for the Fiscal Year ending June 30, 2019 in accordance with ORS 457.460. The Annual Report is online at the City website at www.tillamookor.gov under the "Documents" tab and is available for inspection at Tillamook City Hall, Tillamook, OR 97141.

Tax Revenues for the 2018-2019 for TURA were assessed by Tillamook County in the amount of $448,663.01. TURA received $422,224.98 in current taxes and $12,290.95 in prior year taxes. TURA budgeted $405,000 for fiscal year 2018-2019. The funds received were spent on various projects within the district such as, but not limited to, façade improvements, renovations to several buildings in the downtown area, assistance with new commercial construction, various sidewalk projects, and several other private and public projects.

The information below shows the taxing district information. For analysis, each district is listed with the amount of taxes without urban renewal, the amount with urban renewal, and the amount of taxes imposed for Fiscal Year 2018-2019:
