Nestucca High welcomes new principal

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

With a new school year approaching, Emily Chadwick took over the principal position at Nestucca High School earlier this month.

Chadwick brings more than 20 years' experience to the position and said that in her first year she plans to prioritize getting to know the community and establishing relationships.

“Really, I’m coming into this position this year looking to listen and learn and lean into the opportunities that are going to allow me to build the relationships that are needed to do the important work of becoming the very best educational community that we can be,” Chadwick said.

Born and raised in Oregon, Chadwick graduated from Gresham High School before attending Linfield University for her undergraduate studies. After graduating, Chadwick began teaching high school English, where she became interested in how students learn foundational skills. She decided to enroll at Portland State University, where she earned a master’s degree and elementary certification.

From there, Chadwick taught in elementary school before spending time at both the middle and high school levels, applying

Tillamook County Fair a rousing success

STAFF REPORT
Country Media, Inc.

For four days last week, the Tillamook County Fairgrounds became a hive of activity as people from across the county, state and region descended for the Tillamook County Fair.

Held from August 7-10, the fair featured longtime traditions like the Pig N’ Ford races and demolition derby as well as ongoing entertainment from carnival rides, vendors and livestock displays.

The fair kicked off on Wednesday morning with an opening ceremony that officially got the activity underway. Much of the action on Wednesday took place in the 4H/FFA pavilion, as youth showed their animals in preparation for Friday night’s livestock auction.

Pari-mutuel horse racing kicked off in the afternoon before the ten, longstanding Pig N’ Ford franchises took to the track in the evening to delight a packed grandstand. Bobby Wassmer and Ben Salo won the night’s races, punching their ticket to Saturday night’s world championship before A Boy Named Tom performed to cap the night off.

Thursday and Friday saw crowds swell and the carnival featuring rides from Rainier Amusements become increasingly crowded.

In Pig N’ Ford races on Thursday, Mckenzi Wassmer won in the first heat after Ethen Haertel was disqualified and Dillon Walker won the second heat. On Friday, Drew Prince and Chris Hurliman prevailed, claiming the last two spots in the world championship.

On Thursday night, Eagles’ cover band Eagle Eyes finished the evening’s entertainment and on Friday country singer Kameron Marlowe concluded the fair’s concert series.

The world championship race for the Pig N’ Fords took place on Saturday night with Dillon Walker emerging victorious and the week ended to the demolition derby’s symphony of crunching metal.

Man pleads no contest in Nehalem homicide

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

On July 10, William Evro Stetzel, 59, of Nehalem entered a no contest plea to one count of manslaughter in the first degree for the July 9, 2022, killing of Richard Ford in Nehalem.

For the class A felony, Stetzel was sentenced to 16 years in prison, the first ten of which he will serve with no reduction. He will be eligible for release in April 2037.

Events began to unfold on the afternoon of July 8, 2022, when Stetzel and a friend visited Ford’s family cabin in Nehalem to install a new freezer. Stetzel had worked as a handyman for the Ford family for more than two decades, developing a friendship with Richard, so after completing the work, the three shared a beer.

At some point in the evening, Stetzel took his friend home before returning with his dog and continuing to drink with Ford.

As the drinks flowed, Stetzel’s memory became fuzzy, and he later told investigators that he remembered getting into an argument with Ford but that the next thing he remembered was waking up in his bed covered in blood. Stetzel also had a voicemail from Ford, received at 1:13 a.m., in which Ford said that Stetzel had hit him in the head before leaving without his dog and asked him to come back to pick up the pet.

Upon hearing the voicemail, Stetzel, his son and a friend went to Ford’s cabin, where they found Stetzel’s dog in a breezeway and Ford’s body lying in the house, bludgeoned to death.

The trio withdrew to a boat landing down the road, where Stetzel’s son convinced him to call 911, after which they returned to Stetzel’s house to wait for law enforcement officers.

When sheriff’s deputies arrived on the scene, they collected Stetzel’s blood-stained clothing for DNA testing, which revealed the stains to be a mixture of Stetzel and Ford’s blood. Deputies also saw a cut on Stetzel’s hand, scratches on the top of his head and bruising in several areas on his body and arrested him.

At Ford’s cabin, the officers found Ford’s body, as well as a fire poker, which they identified as the murder weapon. The fire poker was also covered in a mixture of Ford and Stetzel’s blood.

Under initial questioning, Stetzel claimed ignorance regarding the killing and theorized that a third party had come into Ford’s house and attacked the pair, killing Ford.

However, as deputies continued to interrogate Stetzel, he admitted that he vaguely recalled that he and Ford had gotten into a fight about “attitude and alcohol,” though he did not elaborate.

Stetzel further admitted that in the middle of a physical altercation, the pair had sat down on Ford’s couch to rest, at which point Stetzel

Nehalem Bay State Park to close for upgrades starting October

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

More than $11 million in upgrades are scheduled to take place at Nehalem Bay State Park between this October and June of next year, Oregon Parks and Recreation Department officials told Manzanita City Council on August 7.

The upgrades will focus on restoring and upgrading existing facilities at the park and will necessitate its closure for the duration of the work. The council also moved forward on selecting the design for a new city logo at the meeting.

Funding for the work at Nehalem Bay State Park is coming from a pot of $50 million in general obligation bonds approved by the Oregon legislature in 2021 to revitalize parks and campgrounds across the state. Work will include upgrading the park’s water main, replacing water and electrical services in the park’s campgrounds, adding a new restroom, renovating nine campsites for improved accessibility, repaving the park’s entry road, connecting a day use restroom to the sewer system and improving equine facilities at the south of the park.

Music is ‘live’ at Kittys Food and Spirits

Joel Baker reminisces about his long career as a musician

Joel Baker, owner of Kitty's Food and Spirits in Downtown Tillamook is a local musician who got his start professionally in 1977 playing gigs for the military first touring Japan with the Pure Gold Show. You can listen to his band and see his drumming prowess most Friday and Saturday nights at his bar and restaurant or you can catch his act at several area Farmer's Markets, or at community events.

Joel reminisced about his days traveling the world with The Pure Gold Show.

"I had worked with them in Reno at a sit down, meaning you sit down and play one casino for an extended period," Baker said. "Five months at the Money Tree Casino playing three shows a night, six nights a week during my 12 years on and off with the Pure Gold Show we toured extensively to Canada, the Northwest Territory, Yukon and about 90 percent overseas tours."

Baker says with the show, he was able to play over 30 military bases in the Philippines, Korea, Guam, Hawaii, Okinawa including eight tours in Japan.

"My greatest honor was to serve every branch of the military," he said. "Some of the bases were over 10,000 men and women down to a base right on the DMZ, North and South Korea."

On one six-month tour in Japan, Baker was issued a Japanese driver's license. "That was necessary because we were performing and touring from one end of the country to another," Baker said. "It's all in the timing in a person's life to have opportunities come to you."

Baker's travels also brought him stateside. He and played in eight Western states with every kind of musical band.

Baker also got opportunities to open for Fog Hat, Pablo Cruz, La Rue, The Doobie Brothers, Kansas and other high-profile bands while living in Redding Calif.

When he is asked where his favorite place he's played, Baker says, "I've been so blessed to play festivals and large arenas," he said. "An Air Force Base on New Year's Eve in the Philippines, another one was the Jazz Festival at Maryhill Museum up the Gorge on the Columbia River. But my favorite was the 4th of July Festival at the Grand Coulee Dam."

"Almost every time I came home from a tour, I would rush over to the Oregon Coast," he said. "I had enough traveling and I move here in 1994."

He landed in Lincoln City and played for eight years at the Chinook Winds Casino and many other places in the area.

"As we all know, if you want to live on the beautiful coast you have to do whatever it takes to make a living," he said. "I was always in the service industry, so I tended bar many years at the Shilo in Lincoln City, I took cooking classes and worked at the Red Lion Thunderbird chain. So when I landed in Tillamook, I tended for another 15-years."

There were no clubs to perform at, so he bought his own. Over the past 24 years Baker has brought in over 250 of his old alumni and new bands from the Portland, Vancouver area well over 80 different bands to Tillamook.

"Thanks to this community for supporting live music," he said. "Through their support, we've been able to keep live music alive."

Baker says that between himself and his wife Dana, they have been able to support live music at Kitty's for over 10 years now.

Currently the Joel Baker band consists of Mike Rivera on guitar and vocals, Baker on drums and vocals and Kerry Klien on bass and vocals.

"Both these musicians are from Las Vegas with over 40-years of experience," Baker said. "I have been very happy to be on drums and vocals next to these very talented musicians, because of their talent, we're able to do a lot of three-part harmonies."

Baker has been playing this summer with Rivera and Klien as a trio but is also bringing in one of Portland's premier horn players to join the group. Pete Moss who plays both tenor and bari sax will join the group on Friday Aug. 16. "Moss is just a delight to hear and watch perform," Baker said. "This puts the icing on the band, you will be in for a real treat."

Pete will also be back at Kitty's on Aug. 31 and Sept 6-7 to join the band. Baker suggests calling ahead for reservations because seating is limited. Kitty's has live music every Friday and Saturday night. Baker said everyone is welcome to come in and listen, dance and enjoy yourself.

"I've been blessed with wonderful employees," he added. "We've tried to create that 'Cheers' atmosphere, God has been very good to me, so after 45 years and over 18,000 gigs at 71 years old, I'm still able to play music, thank you again Tillamook for supporting live music."

Adventist to upgrade Southern Flow Corridor trail; Troxel sworn in

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

Adventist Health received approval from Tillamook's city council to upgrade a section of trail north of its property abutting the Southern Flow Corridor on August 5.

New Police Chief Nick Troxel was also sworn in at the meeting, in a well-attended ceremony.

Adventist Health Marketing and Communication Manager John Hay told the council that Adventist plans to invest over $44,000 into new plantings, signage and a general aesthetic upgrade. The trail that will be improved lies on city property north of a former public works garage and work is expected to be complete by November 30, according to Hay.

Troxel was sworn in at the beginning of the council meeting and addressed the council and assembled members of the Tillamook Police Department after taking his oath.

Troxel said that as chief he would renew the department's commitment to transparency, professionalism and community engagement while working to create a calm, safe, stable and inclusive environment for everyone in the department and community.

"I want to express my gratitude to my team for their dedication and commitment to our community," Troxel said.

The council also declined to support a Tillamook Urban Renewal Agency request to award a grant to the Tillamook Fire District for a new generator. The district's current generator dates to 1943 and a replacement will cost over $188,000.

Tillamook Chamber of Commerce Director Justin Aufdermauer spoke in opposition to the request on behalf of the chamber, arguing that a new generator would not improve property values in Tillamook, which is the urban renewal agency's stated goal. Aufdermauer also said that he did not believe the need was pressing and that other funding sources were available.

The request to award the grant needs the approval of three of four taxing entities whose property taxes fund the urban renewal agency. The board of county commissioners has voted in support of the measure.

Moonlight Madness returns to Tillamook

A bounce house was set up on Second Avenue and businesses stayed open late on August 2, for the annual Moonlight Madness hosted by the Tillamook Revitalization Association.

Bands treated event attendees to free music at the event.

County budget work group forms subcommittees

A working group comprised of Tillamook County’s commissioners, budget committee and department heads assigned members to subcommittees to investigate proposals to close the county’s budget gap on August 5.

Three groups were formed, with one dedicated to investigating cost-cutting measures related to employees, one to examining possibilities for new revenues and one to looking at potential legislative or policy actions.

The meeting began with an update on progress towards seeking voter approval for a 5% increase to the county’s transient lodging tax in the May 2025 elections. Commissioner Mary Faith Bell said that she had met with representatives from each of the county’s seven cities and that a majority of the representatives from each city had voiced support for the plan.

Bell said that when the tax was originally passed by voters in 2014, cities had not been involved in the process, leaving them to play catch up and institute their own rates after voters approved the countywide tax. This time, Bell said that she wanted to work in unison with the cities so that they would be able to raise their taxes concurrently and reap the benefits of increased revenue.

“We want to do it in partnership with the cities, if at all possible,” Bell said.

Commissioner Doug Olson then discussed legislatively mandated services, saying that departments should review Oregon and federal statutes to see which services they were offering that were not required. Staff should then assess the cost of the services against the revenues they generate and consider why they are doing things that aren’t on the list, if they aren’t profitable.

Olson then reviewed the projected revenues and shortfalls, saying that to maintain a general fund ending balance of $10 million, the group needs to find around $23 million in revenue increases or cost savings over the next four years. Olson said that figure represented roughly 17% of the county’s projected general fund budget in the period.

Subcommittee assignments then began, with Olson reviewing the list of proposed revenue boosting or cost cutting measures before asking for volunteers for the subcommittees.

The first group will focus on different proposals to cut county costs by shortening county employees’ work week, either to four-day weeks or six-hour days. Director of Community Development Sarah Absher, Director of Human Resources Jodi Wilson, County Counsel Joel Stevens, Commissioner-Elect Paul Fournier and Commissioner Erin Skaar will form the subcommittee.

Discussion then moved onto revenue-boosting ideas, with Olson and Bell raising two new possibilities not discussed at the group’s previous meeting. Olson broached the subject of installing red light cameras in the county, a possibility that he said he had discussed with a judge, and Bell mentioned the possibility of stopping the county’s fix-it ticket program, which is optional under state law.

Bell also said that she had considered the possibility of a countywide prepared food tax since the last meeting and believed that work towards that should be delayed until after seeking the transient lodging tax increase.

Fournier brought up the possibility of increasing the county’s paid parking offerings, saying that he favored boosting revenues by offering services over cutting costs.

Tillamook County Chief of Staff Rachel Hagerty, Treasurer Shawn Blanchard, Library Director Donald Allgeier and Bell volunteered to form the subcommittee that will investigate straightforward opportunities to grow revenue.

Finally, focus moved to revenue boosting possibilities that would require more substantive legislative or policy shifts by the county.

Absher said that during discussions with members of various communities in the county, the subject of increasing revenues from the large number of transpacific cables that land on Tillamook’s beaches had come up repeatedly. Olson said that Astound Broadband had paid just $2,600 to the county for its cable which is scheduled to land this fall and that the fee had previously been just $1,500 to companies like Meta and Microsoft.

The final subcommittee will consist of Hagerty, Fournier, Olson, Stevens and Sheriff Josh Brown and investigate possible legislative changes, including leasing county land to businesses or instituting a vacant house tax or forming a tourism improvement district.

Measles outbreak in Oregon continues to spread

LYNN TERRY
Oregon Capital Chronicle

The measles outbreak that started in mid-June in Marion County has spread to at least 23 residents in three counties.

And it’s probably not over.

“We continue to see cases, and we have not been able to connect them all, suggesting that there are other cases out there,” said Dr. Paul Cieslak, the Oregon Health Authority’s medical director and top immunologist.

Only one person in the outbreak has been vaccinated and two people have been hospitalized, the health authority said.

Cases of pertussis or whooping cough also are spreading, with seven cases reported last week, bringing the year’s total to more than 400. The virus has infected people in 13 Oregon counties this year.

With the start of the school year looming, the health authority urged parents to get their kids up to date on their vaccinations.

Measles and whooping cough vaccines are required for the nearly 550,000 children attending kindergarten through high school in Oregon, though parents can obtain a non-medical exemption if they watch an online training module or talk to a provider and have them sign a certificate.

Cieslak said the measles vaccine is particularly effective: One dose is 93% effective at preventing an infection and two doses are 97% effective.

The measles virus does not mutate significantly the way other viruses like COVID do, Cieslak said.

In 2000, the World Health Organization said it was eradicated in the U.S. But with foreign travel and unvaccinated people, it’s re-emerged. This is the highest number of cases in Oregon for several years. There was only one case last year and none the previous three years, state data shows.

Oregon has traditionally had among the highest unvaccinated rates in the country. In May the health authority said that nearly 9% of the state’s kindergartners had a nonmedical exemption this year, forgoing at least one required shot. That compares with about 8% in 2023 and almost 7% in 2022, marking the second consecutive yearly increase in the unvaccinated rate.

Besides Oregon, there are nearly 170 measles cases in other states, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The outbreak emerged last month. The Oregon Health Authority reported that an adult in Clackamas County developed a rash on June 11 and that a child subsequently got sick as well.

More cases appeared among unvaccinated children who apparently had not been in contact, health officials said. To date, there are eight cases in Clackamas County, 13 people in Marion County and two in Multnomah County, with 10 younger than 10 years, eight teens and five adults.

The disease is highly infectious. It spreads in the air when someone coughs or sneezes and the viral particles can linger in the air for two hours. Symptoms can begin up to three weeks after exposure and can include flu-like symptoms and a rash that appears on the face and spreads to the rest of the body. Patients can develop ear infections, lung infections and diarrhea. The disease can also cause swelling of the brain and be fatal. One of two of every 1,000 cases are fatal.

Two of the people infected in Oregon have been hospitalized. The health authority did not provide any more information about who they were or how severe their symptoms were or whether they’ve been discharged. Nearly 50% of people with measles across the country have been hospitalized this year, sometimes to prevent them from spreading the virus, the CDC said. Eighty-five percent were not vaccinated.

People who are pregnant and not vaccinated, infants younger than 1 and those with weakened immune systems face the greatest health risk from measles and whooping cough.

Whooping cough is more prevalent than measles, with 10,000 cases reported nationwide before COVID hit. During the pandemic, cases dropped as people tried to avoid respiratory infections. But they’re now on the rise, approaching pre-pandemic levels, the CDC said.

In Oregon, Lane County has had the most cases this year – 123 – followed by 77 in Multnomah County and 57 in Clackamas. Cases peaked this year in May, with 115 reported. That dropped to 92 in June.

Summer EBT Program

STAFF REPORT
Country Media, Inc.

As summer begins to wind down, families have a limited window to secure essential food assistance through the new Summer Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) program.

The program offers $120 per child to help cover grocery costs when school food programs are not as easy to access. With the application deadline quickly approaching on Sept. 2, 2024, it’s crucial for eligible families to act now.

Thousands of families may be unaware that they qualify for this essential benefit. The Oregon Department of Human Services (ODHS) and the Oregon Department of Education (ODE) are urging families to check their eligibility and apply before the deadline. Remember, once benefits are received, you have 122 days to use them.

Most eligible children received their benefits automatically on June 28, 2024, if their households:

- Participate in the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)
 - Participate in Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)
 - Are Oregon Health Plan (Medicaid) members in households with incomes under 185 percent of the Federal Poverty Level
- Children in foster care also automatically received Summer EBT.
- However, families who did not receive benefits automatically, particularly those with children in Head Start programs that participate in the National School Lunch or School Breakfast Programs, should still apply to determine their eligibility.
- Families are encouraged to visit sebt.oregon.gov or contact the Summer EBT Call Center at 833-ORE-SEBT (833-673-7328) to verify their eligibility and apply. ODHS Director Fariborz Pakseresh said, “Making sure children have access to nutritious food throughout the summer is critical. This small action could provide significant support to families in Oregon.”

Since June 28, 2024, more than 329,000 eligible school-aged children have been issued $39.5 million in Summer EBT food benefits. More than 60 percent of families receiving benefits in the initial issuance were able to immediately use benefits on existing Oregon EBT cards; the rest received new cards in July.

“The results of the Summer EBT launch so far have far exceeded our expectations, but we know that there are many more families out there who have children who may be eligible for the $120 Summer EBT benefit,” ODE Director Dr. Charlene Williams said. “We encourage our schools and Summer Meals providers to have flyers on site to raise awareness and get our families the benefits they qualify for.”

Cape Lookout stewardship day; August 14 and 18

There are two dates in August to join us at Cape Lookout. Bay Stewardship Days offer opportunities to give back and work to maintain our natural areas and restore healthy coastal landscapes.

Projects vary and may include:

- Invasive plant removal
- Native plant seed collection
- Restoration planting events
- Beach access improvements
- Trail maintenance
- Plant and wildlife mapping

Activities are designed to accommodate a variety of skill levels. Families are welcome. The specific projects are shared closer to the date of the event.

If possible, we ask participants to provide their own:

- Work gloves

Summer birding on the bay: August 25, Netarts Bay

Join Bird Alliance of Oregon and Friends of Netarts Bay - Watershed, Estuary, Beach, & Sea (WEBS) to observe coastal birds on and near Netarts Bay.

We'll start by learning about the threatened Western Snowy Plover and Plover Patrol program which engages community scientists to monitor nesting snowy plovers along the north coast, including Netarts Spit. We'll then travel to various locations around the bay and surrounding headlands in the hopes of seeing soaring brown pelicans, great blue herons, bald eagles, songbirds, and cormorants.

Details:

- Be prepared to walk up to 1-2 miles to and from observation points.
- Participants will need to provide their own transportation between locations and may need to purchase a day-use permit at the state park. The specific route and locations will be shared at the start of the program. Carpooling is encouraged.
- Questions: Contact director@netartsbaywebs.com
- Registration is required for this free event. Learn more at: <https://www.netartsbay-webs.org/evenats>

Cost: There is no cost to attend this program. Tax-exempt donations to Netarts Bay WEBS to enable programs like this are encouraged, but not required.

Oregon Coast Children's Theatre prepares for 35th anniversary

As its 35th anniversary approaches in 2025, the Oregon Coast Children's Theatre and Art Center is kicking off extensive fundraising efforts early this month with its annual Rummage Sale and Flea Market on August 16 and 17.

Founded in Tillamook County in 1995, the Oregon Coast Children's Theatre and Art Center is aiming to raise $25,000 over the next two years to support restoration of the Fairview Grange and $200,000 to support its programs for the next two years. In addition to offering fine art and theatre programs at Fairview Grange, the children's theatre also offers youth the opportunity to tour the region.

The Fairview Grange, which has been home to the children's theatre since 2021, is also celebrating an anniversary in 2025, marking its 130th year in operation. In conjunction with the children's theatre, the grange is seeking corporate, nonprofit or individual support from around the community and across the nation.

Tillamook County and Regional donors can send checks or money orders to Molly Sappington c/o OCCT 35th Fund P.O. Box 283 Oceanside, Oregon 97134 or contact Mr. Lawrence Adrian, Artistic Director and founder at 503-801-0603, or by e-mail at occt.youthartprograms@gmail.com.

Visit the organization's brand new website at oregon-coastchildrenstheatre.org for info about the charity's history and programs and follow them on Instagram at oregoncoast-youtharts for the latest.

The charity wants to thank the youth, businesses, donors, and supporters of Tillamook County and our region for helping us reach this milestone in Oregon Cultural History. Thanks for helping us keep alive the fine and performing arts for our children.

Tillamook County Library will host the Original Practice Shakespeare Festival at Maxwell Library Park adjacent to the Tillamook Main Library. There will be two performances. Romeo and Juliet will be performed on August 30th at 7 PM. Comedie of Errors will be performed on August 31st at 3PM. OPS Fest brings no-cost repertory Shakespeare to parks and venues in Oregon. The company uses the original practice techniques of Elizabethan England: limited rehearsal, scrolls in hand, audience interaction, and an onstage prompter. This is their 16th season of bringing Shakespeare to people in the parks.

This program is generously sponsored by the Tillamook County Library Foundation and the Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts. We look forward to two days of fun and theater in the park. This event is free of charge. The audience is welcome to arrive during the hour before to watch the pre-game song, dance, & fight rehearsals. Attendees are welcome to bring blankets and make themselves comfortable in the park. The library will also provide chairs.

TBCC CONNECTIONS

A busy Summer: TBCC Summer highlights and opportunities

DR. PAUL JARRELL

TBCC President

The summer has been busy at Tillamook Bay Community College (TBCC). On June 21, TBCC hosted the groundbreaking ceremony for the Healthcare Education Building. As supportive community members, many of you attended to celebrate along with County Commissioner Mary Faith Bell, Adventist Health Tillamook’s President, Eric Swanson, former TBCC President, Ross Tomlin, and dedicated staff and faculty members from TBCC. Thank you to all who attended. The Healthcare Education Building will benefit all of Tillamook County, and it felt good to share the excitement.

TBCC’s campus will continue to change over the year due to construction. During the Tillamook County Fair, parking will function as usual, but after the fair, the entrance to TBCC’s main parking lot will move from Marolf Loop Rd. to Third St near the fairgrounds. Construction will raise noise levels on campus as well. Please be cautious when being on campus and be safe.

Speaking of the fair, the TBCC Foundation hosted its third annual raffle for the Career-to-Career Scholarship. This year, the prize was a Solo Stove smokeless firepit and a camping care package with firewood, camp chairs, mugs, and a s’mores bundle. The Career-to-Career Scholarship covers tuition for any Tillamook County Resident who graduated or earned their GED five years before applying.

Adding to all the summer excitement, applications for the 2026 nursing cohort at TBCC are now open. Nursing students at TBCC can expect to take classes that focus on care in acute and non-acute settings, nursing fundamentals, pharmacology, and more. When students complete the program, they are ready to take their NCLEX-RN exam and earn licensure in Oregon. To apply to the nursing program visit tillamookbaycc.edu/nursing. Applications close October 5 at 5 p.m.

The bay will be loaded with tuna fisherman this weekend. That’s because this week marks the 19th Annual Oregon Tuna Classic here along Tillamook Bay. The two-day celebration is put on to help fight hunger in our area communities.

Registration will be closed by the time this is published, but for those who didn’t register and still want to partake in the festivities, want not. There is a Saturday night dinner, hosted by Ducks Unlimited, that is open to the public where an auction, raffle, and the award ceremony take place.

For more information, please visit <https://www.oregontunaclassic.org/>

Speaking of events, for those who partake, the list of vendors announced by the Port of Garibaldi Seafood and Spirits Festival is impressive, and growing, with announcements seemingly daily.

If you haven’t checked out the Port of Garibaldi Seafood and Spirits Festival Facebook page, I’d make it a point to see it.

Also of note, the festival is looking for volunteers to help make their second annual event even better than last year. Vendor assistance, tickets and more. “Swag bag” for those who volunteer.

Shifts would reportedly ideally be three hours and volunteers would have to be at least 21 years old

As a reminder, the festival takes place along the north shore at the Port of Garibaldi event tent on September 13 and 14.

For those who are interested, call Claudia at (503) 322-3292 or email her at claudia@portofgaribaldi.org.

She’s speeding into the final month of summer, all clutch, no brake. She’s everybody’s favorite local librarian, June Ekborg: “Looking for some fun things to do while enjoying the sunny days of August? We have some new take and makes for kids at the Garibaldi Branch Library. Hint: They can keep cool with their creation. We also have fun “library of things” options, like croquet, bocce ball, badminton, ukuleles, binoculars, telescopes and more.

“Want to get the most out of your outdoor time? Check out our grilling and BBQ books, gardening books, hiking and adventure books, foraging books, bird and plant identification books... We could go on and on.

“Prefer online resources? We have those too. All Tillamook County Library branches are here to help you make the most of what’s left of summer.”

I had the opportunity to sit down with City Manager Jake Boone and further map out how the next two quarters were going to look in planning, especially with respect to House Bill 406b and the restrictive new FEMA regulations.

Like y’all, the most I knew about CM Boone going into the meeting was from Editor Chappell’s interview last week. I learned a few things in there. It’s a great read if you haven’t already seen it.

Regarding the sit down with CM Boone, the take-away I’d most like to share was the way he intuitively kept our financial situation in mind. He did so during our Planning Commission meeting last Monday, and again in the sit-down Commission Secretary Sheldon and I had with him on Thursday. It was something he spoke of as if from years of experience, he knew of their significance.

In essence, we would say something like, “we can do this and this,” and add, with a dash of country charm, “Once we get the audits done.”

“I like this guy,” I replied during our planning meeting, and thought again during the sit-down.

And I think most of y’all will like him, too.

Lastly, as to the audits, it sounds like 2021 and 2022 are nearing completion, and we can finally be cautiously optimistic. Finally.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Enjoy your oyster while protecting where it came from

SUBMITTED BY FRIENDS OF TILLAMOOK BAY

With events on the horizon like the Bay City Pearl and Oyster Festival (August 24 and 25), and National Estuaries Week (September 21 through 28), it is a good time to appreciate what a treasure we have in Tillamook Bay and its associated estuaries.

While enjoying the rich taste of the ocean when we savor a fresh local oyster, it is interesting to delve into the symbiotic relationship between what you are eating and the estuary from whence it came. A myriad of studies have uncovered complex interdependencies between oysters and surrounding eelgrass beds growing within the estuary.

As filter feeders, oysters remove sediment from the water and increase its clarity, which could make it easier for eelgrass to photosynthesize. The physical structure of the man-made racks or of the natural reefs they grow on break incoming waves stabilizing the bay bottom which decreases the physical stress on the plants. Some studies suggest that oysters could even inhibit Eelgrass Wasting Disease by eating the Labyrinthula zosterae, the pathogenic protist that causes the disease.

On the other hand, eelgrass beds take up carbon dioxide which in turn decreases the acidity of the surrounding water. Thirty percent of atmospheric carbon dioxide emissions are absorbed by oceans. That carbon makes ocean waters more acidic, weakening the shells of oysters. Particularly affected are the young oyster “spat” whose weakened shell material leaves them vulnerable to disease and predation.

With such a delicate and beneficial relationship between oysters and eelgrass wouldn’t you think eelgrass would be a protected species? After all, in addition to benefiting the growth of oysters, eelgrass beds transform barren mudflats into a rich web of animal activity. Microscopic zooplankton feed on the plants, while juvenile salmon feed on the zooplankton. Pacific herring lay eggs on the leaves, and young Dungeness crab seek refuge between the stems. Underground, rootlike rhizomes oxygenate the soil, attracting clams and snails.

Unfortunately, our own State Department of Agriculture, the agency managing the leases issued to oyster farming operations in Tillamook Bay, are turning a blind eye to the harrowing and dredging of the eelgrass beds. You can see evidence of this destruction washing up on local beaches: miles of piles of green eelgrass with roots attached. Most oyster farmers cultivate and harvest by hand and are not in competition with the grass, but one operation is being allowed to use mechanized methods of ground preparation and harvest. How long can this continuous raking and dredging of the eelgrass go on before it disappears? Ecologists are worried about the loss of eelgrass, and not just out of concern for the plant itself. The disappearance of eelgrass can collapse entire ecosystems.

So, what can you do to help protect the abundance you enjoy from our bay? Before you bite into that juicy oyster, ask where it was sourced. Was it raised by hand or by mechanized aquaculture? Write your local state legislators and your State Department of Agriculture with your support for a ban on mechanized oyster farming. Together we can make a difference in ensuring our government agencies are accountable in managing our natural resources in a sustainable way.

We did it. The Cape Meares Community Association (CMCA) is pleased to announce that we have completed our end of a complicated land deal to preserve our watershed. CMCA purchased land from a private party, added land that had been given to us by Stimson Lumber Co. some years back, and then sold the total acreage to The Conservation Fund (TCF). TCF is acting as a bridge buyer, with the ultimate buyer being the Cape Meares Wildlife Refuge. The Wildlife Refuge is a federal entity and will need a couple of years to receive federal approval for a boundary expansion—adding about 200 acres to its existing 137 acres—and to confirm funding for the purchase from TCF. There will likely be a public hearing this fall for public input regarding the expansion, and CMCA hopes a good turnout by community members will help push the project forward. Protecting our watershed in perpetuity is a major achievement for this small community and involved complex negotiations, fund-raising, appraisals, working with environmental groups and governmental agencies, and more. Beverly Stein, president of CMCA, calls us “the little community that could.” This undertaking protects our water source and maintains the old growth forest surrounding our community, a benefit to us now and a legacy for generations to come. Hats off to the core members of the Cape Meares Watershed Conservancy Project—Beverly Stein, Simone Goldfeder and Miriam Fultz—and to all the others who helped bring this plan to fruition. A community celebration of this monumental achievement will be Aug. 27 at 4 p.m. in the Barbara Bennett Community Center. I was visiting with Cape Meares resident Peggy Lindquist before Tai Ji class, and she told me she had just finished with “Grand Camp.” What is Grand Camp? It’s a private group of grandmothers and grandfathers who put together a fantastic week of summer camp at the beach for their grandchildren. Leslie Kay from Oceanside and her childhood friend Debra McLean started the group, and Peggy and others soon joined in. The grandparents hold the camp in Oceanside, a gorgeous setting, and the surrounding area during a minus tide series each summer. Grand Camp activities are a mix of exploring the wonders of the sea and doing arts and crafts. This year, about 15 grandchildren went on a tide pool treasure hunt, hiked the Netarts Spit and Sitka Sedge, clammed and crabbed, collected seaweed and pressed it in an herbarium press to make framed art, and made bubble wands and hula-a-hoops to play with on the beach. Their calendar was also filled with wood-working, tie-dying t-shirts, learning origami, making a longhouse, water coloring postcards, painting rocks and shells, and canning pickles. There were campfires with s’mores, sing-alongs, ice cream from the Nestucca Creamery, and a final seafood-centric potluck in Cape Meares. Super fun. Are you inspired? Feel free to copy the idea; set up your own summer camp for your and your friends’ grandchildren. Have you seen the flyer promoting the Cape Meares art show? Sculptures, pottery, black-and-white photos, paintings, and more—you won’t want to miss it! Saturday, Aug. 31, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Barbara Bennett Community Center.

Visitors to South Tillamook County lost their dog over 4th of July weekend. She had last been seen three miles up Irish Road. The area is remote, off the electrical grid and out of range for cell service and wireless internet. The missing pup, “Meg,” who is a French Bulldog, had her photo on Pacific City’s Facebook page. With a Frenchie in my own extended family, my heart went out to her owners. The pups are a costly investment, and coyotes and other predators could do her harm. She might also have been hungry, thirsty and cold.

Katie Lane, who lives with her family on Irish

Road, spotted the pup some weeks after she went missing. Katie was able to lure the little dog close enough to contain her. The owners fetched Meg promptly to be reunited happily ever after. Hats off to Katie for a job well done. A friend from metro Portland visited last weekend. She and I had lunch at the Beach Walk Restaurant in Pacific City the day she left for home. It was my first visit to the restaurant since the change in ownership and the morphing of “Beach Wok” to “Beach Walk.” The restaurant has a large and varied menu, but we both landed on the same entrée, an Asian salad with grilled chicken and dressing on the side. The salads were enormous with delightfully fresh ingredients. Service was excellent. I succumbed to the temptation of mudslide pie which we shared for dessert. I will definitely repeat the experience.

Remember that a harm reduction syringe exchange happens from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. on second Wednesdays (August 14) at our own Hebo Fire Hall. The address is 30710 U.S. Highway 101 in Hebo. The service is offered at the same time on four Wednesdays a month. On first and third Wednesdays go to Ivy Avenue Wellness Center, at 11th and Ivy in Tillamook. Fourth Wednesday exchanges happen at the Upper parking lot of North County Food Bank, 278 Rowe Street in Wheeler. The Nestucca Valley Artisans are pleased to present their 30th annual Artisans Festival this weekend. Hours are 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Saturday, August 17 and Sunday, August 18 at Kiawanda Community Center. The address is 34600 Cape Kiwanda Drive Pacific City, Oregon. The free event features 22 local Artisans and Artists showing a variety of art forms and offering them for sale. Nestucca Valley School District is gearing up for the 2024-2025 academic year which starts immediately following the Labor Day holiday next month. Links for preschool or kindergarten registration are present on their website, as are school supply lists for kindergarten through eighth grade. Office staff returns to the schools the second week of August. Watch this space for updates (regarding registration for elementary and high school students, sports physicals and perhaps more) after that. There is a burn ban in effect in South Tillamook County. We are to do no open burning in piles or barrels. On August 6, Sarah Wilson of SSW Consulting gave an update on the strategic plan that her firm is developing for the City of Rockaway Beach. The plan originated on June 11, with a retreat where city government leaders developed the key parts of the plan. At the city council meeting the next day, councilors and Mayor McNeilly were enthusiastic about the vision for such a plan. The workshop identified five categories for developing the strategic plan: city organization, recreation, economic opportunity, resiliency and community connection. These categories were chosen to promote Rockaway Beach history, preserve the hometown feel as part of our community identity, balance quality of life for residents and tourists, and strengthen specific features such as walkability and character. From the beginning, the strategic plan included a process for obtaining input and guidance from the community. That process began in June with a survey available from the city hall website through a link on the home page, or by browsing to <https://corb.us/strategicplan>. You can also obtain a paper copy of the resident-oriented survey from the visitors center in the historic Chamber Caboose at the Wayside, or from Simply Charming, 130 Hwy 101 North. Open-ended questions include our thoughts on the three most important things that Rockaway Beach should focus on for the next five years. Housing and affordability questions follow, including what respondents would like to see the city do to change or improve housing here.

ROCKAWAY BEACH
sfisher71@yahoo.com

Safety is an important consideration, as is satisfaction with the level and quality of services provided by the city. Suggestions for change and improvement, opportunities for community engagement, and avenues of communication from the city to residents are also part of the survey. Other questions involve city services, quality of life, and support for local businesses and industry. The survey closes with an opportunity to sign up for the city newsletter. Visitors have a different set of questions, beginning with asking what you like most about visiting Rockaway Beach. The visitors’ survey also focuses on lodging and housing, dining options, and a general question about the favorite place they visited and why. As part of the overall timeline for developing the plan, the city has devoted the months of July and August to community engagement as part of the strategic plan development process. So far it has been very successful. “Nearly 700 people have filled out the survey,” said Wilson at the August presentation. She added that this level of support is “almost unprecedented” in her experience. In September, SSW will review the strategic plan and present it at a town hall. The date for that town hall will be announced on the city Web site and in emails from the city (as well as here, of course). The process at that time will involve focus groups through which community members can undertake in-depth discussion about specific areas of interest. If you have a specific area of interest, or simply wish to explore existing focus groups, send email to RockawayBeach@Strategic-Plan.org. You can also message that email address to start a neighborhood or community group to make your voices heard or to get involved in implementing part of the strategic plan that concerns you. Once the town hall and focus group input is received, SSW and the city expect to roll out the draft version of the plan in October 2024. This will allow a further opportunity for residents and government alike to fine-tune the projects and goals for the five-year plan. Wilson expects the final plan by the first of the year. One question Wilson addressed is the upcoming Rockaway Beach elections. In her experience with other cities, having a plan with the kind of broad community support we have shown so far helps newly elected officials start their terms with a clear understanding of the city’s long-term goals and values. On a tastier note, the Meals for Seniors program is holding their complimentary Ice Cream Social on Saturday, August 17, from 1—3 p.m., at St. Mary By The Sea, 275 S. Pacific. This is their way of thanking the community for supporting their important program throughout the year.

NAN DEVLIN
Executive Director, Tillamook Coast Visitors Association

When county residents approved a ballot measure in November 2013 to implement a transient lodging tax (TLT), the primary intention was to help fund the repair of county roads, which at the time were rated the worst in the state. And because the county was late in implementing a lodging tax, the funds were subject to the 2003 ORS 320.300 state law that lodging tax be subject to a 70/30 split. That means that 30% of the collected tax could be used for anything the county. The County commissioners chose to use the 30% for road repair. The remaining 70% must be used for tourism-related facilities and/or tourism promotion. Both happened, and has continued to be the focus ever since TLT was first collected in 2014. The goal was to get as much of the 70% back into communities as quickly as possible through grants and investments. What the county may not have realized at the time is it was on a road not taken before in the state – community-based tourism. What is that? It’s part of a three-tier tourism policy.

Sustainable tourism

Sustainable tourism is a

Nan Devlin

strategic approach involving three pillars, defined by the United Nations World Tourism Organization in the early 1990s, as people, place and profit. This means including community in planning tourism (people), respecting environment and stewardship (place), and enhancing year-round economic vitality (profit).

Civic tourism

Civic tourism focuses on community culture, needs and benefits. For instance, as has happened in towns along the Oregon Coast, do you build massive, multi-story resorts along the beachfront, one that changes the entire culture of the town as well as the views? Or do you respect the culture of that beach town and build facilities important to the people, such as connecting trails? In other words, it’s working with the tourism industry to create what people want in their community.

Destination management

Destination management is the way to put sustainable and civic tourism into practice. It brings together government agencies, businesses, land use organizations, nonprofits, community groups and tourism to develop a plan, prioritize projects and take action. The community planning workshops we’ve conducted in seven communities helps TCVA identify projects that can be funded with either TLT grants or other sources. Last spring, I taught a class in community planning to students in the Tourism Administration master’s program at The George Washington University in Washington DC. The director of the program, Dr. Cevat Tosun, said, “I’ve been searching for a destination that is committed to community-based tourism. I finally found it on the Tillamook Coast.” You can thank the Tillamook County commissioners, from when the TLT started in 2014 to those in office now, for continuing on the promise of respecting and giving back to the community through tourism: people, place and profit.

STAFF REPORT

As part of ongoing efforts to build an 82-mile trail linking Tillamook with Banks, a Getting Boots on the Ground event will take place at the Tillamook Creamery’s Red Barn on August 18, from 2-5 p.m.

Organized by the Salmonberry Trail Foundation and local partners, including Tillamook Coast Visitors Association, the event will be geared at educating community members on the trail’s history and opportunities to get involved with its construction.

Conceiver more than 15 years ago, the Salmonberry Trail was envisioned as a way to repurpose the Port of Tillamook Bay’s rail line, which fell into disuse after a major storm in 2007 caused more than $40 million in damage.

After a lull in forward momentum during the Coronavirus pandemic, progress has picked up over the last two years, with rail-clearing efforts beginning in Washington County and grant applications submitted for several segments.

As envisioned, the trail would help to offer safe transportation alternatives, connect communities and provide accessible outdoor experiences while supporting community health and local businesses.

Urban upgrades project in Garibaldi starts this week

Oregon Department of Transportation

We’re working on upgrading U.S. 101 through downtown Garibaldi. These upgrades will help make the area safer and more accessible for all, whether you drive, ride, walk or roll.

When construction starts next week, you can expect:

- Crews working Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- Occasional nighttime work as needed.
- Sidewalk closures with pedestrian detours as needed.
- Lane closures with flaggers helping direct traffic as needed.
- Noise and delays.
- Businesses in the project area to remain open.

We estimate finishing this project in Fall 2025. Our schedules may change, please visit Trip-Check.com for the most up to date information on road closures and traffic impacts.

As part of this project, we’re:

- Repaving the road and applying new striping.
- Creating new bus stop pull out areas.
- Improving water drainage.
- Building new sidewalks between 1st Street and 11th Street along U.S. 101.

During construction, expect:

- Constructing new ADA curb ramps at the rail crossings on 3rd Street and 7th Street.
- Enhancing street signs to make it easier to know where you’re going through downtown.

Businesses to remain open.

- Dust, debris and construction noise.

OBITUARIES

Richard Allen Biggs
March 10, 1955 ~ July 30, 2024 away on July 30, 2024 after a lengthy battle with Alzheimer’s Disease.

Richard was born to Boyd and Sylvia Biggs on March 10, 1955 in Tillamook, Oregon. Richard graduated from Tillamook High School in 1973 and attended Oregon College of Education where he earned an Associate’s Degree in Music.

Richards’ biggest passion in life was music. An avid drum player, he spent countless hours perfecting his ability. He played with many bands in Reno, Nashville, and Los Angeles. After he returned to Tillamook in the early 90’s, he continued sharing his love of drums by teaching and playing in the worship band at the Tillamook church of the Nazarene. Richard was a consummate performer and loved to entertain. In addition to the drums, he was a magician and enjoyed performing magic shows for the library and various community organizations.

Richard worked as an employment Specialist/Job Coach at Marie Mills Center, Inc. for over 20 years and retired in 2019.

Richard is proceeded in death by his parents; Boyd and Sylvia Biggs, and his older brother; James “Jim” Biggs.

He is survived by his wife; Christy Nyseth, stepsons; Cody (Jennifer) and Austin (Vashti) Brown and two beautiful grandsons; Hudson and Asher.

At Richard’s request, there will be no service. Donations can be made in his name to the Tillamook High School band program.

Ryan Weber promoted to business development officer, branch manager at Oregon Coast Bank

With ten years’ expertise in the financial industry, Weber is focused on helping community businesses thrive

This year, Oregon Coast Bank (OCB) promoted Ryan Weber to Business Development Officer and Branch Manager, where he is focused on helping his community thrive.

Weber started out in 2014 as a teller at a major bank in Tillamook, where he was promoted to Loan Officer, Assistant Branch Manager, and finally Branch Manager. Next he was hired by a leading regional bank in Oregon City, then returned home to Tillamook in 2020. This January, Weber joined the Oregon Coast Bank team as Business Development Officer. Within five months he was promoted to Business Development Officer and Branch Manager, where he now oversees the bank’s Tillamook branch operations, supports his team’s career growth, and serves both consumer and business customers.

“I learned very quickly that banking is an industry where the amount of work and passion you put in and the commitment you make will invest back in you tenfold,” Weber said.

In his role as Business Development Officer, Weber enjoys helping startups grow from a nascent idea to an established business, partnering with owners through the transitions, having clear and honest discussions with them, and helping them pivot.

“I’ve always had a passion for helping people and being involved in my community, and banking is an avenue where I can take those passions and use it to help people in a way that has a really substantial impact on their life,” Weber said.

Weber is a fourth-generation Tillamook resident, born and raised in the area. Along with two beloved French bulldogs, Weber has three nephews he loves dearly and enjoys spending time with. He also enjoys baking, cooking, and watching reality TV shows.

that really makes them stand apart is their true dedication to the community. We just want to see our communities thrive.”

Oregon Coast Bank is the only bank built by and for people on the coast. It was founded when 115 coastal families pooled their resources to build a locally owned and operated bank; now its assets exceed $400M. For decades, OCB has been serving coastal communities, keeping dollars local, and helping businesses succeed.

PLEASE DON'T POST ON UTILITY POLES

A utility pole may seem like the perfect place to post a notice, however, it creates a serious safety hazard. Nails, tacks, or staples used to attach objects to poles can damage a lineworker's safety equipment as they climb. Puncturing wooden poles to post objects could cause a pole to degrade more quickly, which reduces pole stability and increases the risk of a pole falling over if struck by a vehicle or during a severe weather event.

Tami Owens promoted to AVP branch manager at Oregon Coast Bank

Recent promotion recognizes Owens’ 18 years of expertise in serving Oregon’s coastal communities

This year Oregon Coast Bank (OCB) promoted Tami Owens to Assistant Vice President (AVP) Branch Manager and Loan Officer, recognizing her 18 years’ expertise in serving the bank’s coastal communities.

Since 2006, Owens has worked for OCB in Lincoln City, Tillamook, and Pacific City. During that time she served as Operations Supervisor in Pacific City for 14 years, helped launch the new branch in Tillamook, then returned to Pacific City as Operations Supervisor, Manager, Branch Manager, and now AVP Branch Manager. Her most recent promotion reflects the years, commitment, and knowledge she has built with the bank.

In her role at OCB, Owens values her ability to meet unique needs that customers would find difficult to meet elsewhere through local lending, strong relationships, and responsive, hands-on service. Rather than looking only at the numbers, Owens gets to know her customers and problem-solves with them. “We look at you and respect you as a person,” Owens said. “You’re not put in a box.”

Owens has lived in Oregon for over 30 years, since 1993, and enjoys the spirit of community she has found in Pacific City. “I’m literally in love with our area, because of the sense of family we have,” Owens said. “The sense of community. We’re here for each other, good or bad. Our branch is a hub of our community.”

Oregon Coast Bank is the only bank built by and for people on the coast. It was founded when 115 coastal families pooled their resources to build a locally owned and operated bank; now its assets exceed $400M. For decades, OCB has been serving coastal communities, keeping dollars local, and helping businesses succeed.

Bay State Park to close for upgrades starting October

Tracy Johnson, a senior project manager at Oregon Parks and Recreation, appeared at the meeting and discussed the decision to close the park for the duration of the work. Johnson said that the project team had investigated the possibility of leaving part of the park open during the work, but due to the limited roads in the area decided it would not be possible to safely allow public access during the project.

Johnson also said that an outside firm has done extensive archaeological surveying of the site and been retained for monitoring throughout the project.

Efforts to update Manzanita's logo are being undertaken in conjunction with a Tillamook Coast Visitors Association led initiative to revamp the city's wayfinding signage.

Stephen Schlott from Partners in Design, the firm doing the design work on the logo, appeared at the meeting and presented four preliminary options for the logo.

Each option incorporated Neah Kah Nie Mountain, the ocean and beach, with one taking a more impressionistic approach, while the other three varied slightly in their color palette and inclusion of local flora and fauna.

After Schlott reviewed the designs and showed them in a variety of different settings, including on signage, in an official seal and on merchandise, the councilors discussed their preferences.

All councilors gravitated towards a common design, featuring the beach and mountain, a manzanita bush and bird soaring above in a semi-circular frame. Councilors decided to proceed with that logo option and to survey the public about which bird should be included in the logo.

grabbed a metal object and hit Ford over the head two times. Stetzel claimed that when he had left Ford's residence, he believed Ford was alive.

Stetzel was indicted on one count of murder in the second degree and Tillamook District Attorney Aubrey Olson began to work with investigators to build a case.

Possessing the murder weapon, Stetzel's clothing and other objects from Ford's cabin covered in both men's blood put the prosecution in a strong position to start. Further evidence included grainy security camera footage from between the men's dwellings showing what investigators believed to be Stetzel's truck heading to Ford's cabin after 7 p.m. by himself and not returning homewards until close to 2 a.m. Several neighbors also said that they had heard arguing coming from Ford's cabin and Ford's phone showed a failed call to 911 at 1:18 a.m.

But, according to Olson, there were several factors complicating a prosecution for murder in the second degree, which requires prosecutors prove a defendant meant to cause the death of a victim.

Chief among these was Stetzel's lack of memory of the events of the evening, which several experts found to be genuine. Olson said that investigators could not determine how intoxicated Stetzel had been at the time of the assault because he'd kept drinking after returning to his house and that the resulting uncertainty could have left the door open to a self-defense claim.

Olson also said that the lack of eyewitnesses to the crime or apparent motive could prove impediments before a jury. "It helps to have a motive for jurors to understand what was the mental state," Olson said.

Those challenges, in concert with the riskiness and expense of jury trials, led Olson to prioritize a plea agreement. Given the facts of the case, Olson and Stetzel's lawyers agreed that a charge of manslaughter in the first degree, defined as one person recklessly causing the death of another, fit the facts of the case.

Owing to Stetzel's lack of memory of the events, Olson, in consultation with the victim's family, agreed to accept a no contest plea, meaning that Stetzel admitted the prosecution could prove his guilt but that he did not admit to committing the crime. "Victim representatives were willing to accept that as well for the reason that he was not able to remember exactly what happened," Olson said. Stetzel will not be eligible for good-behavior reductions on the first ten years of his 16-year sentence, but will be for the last six, giving him an earliest possible release date in just under 13 years on April 26, 2037. Stetzel is currently being housed by the Oregon Department of Corrections at the Coffee Creek Intake Center.

In addition to his period of incarceration, Stetzel will also be subject to three years of post-prison supervision and was ordered to pay $7,799.74 to National Commercial Services Inc. and $4,038.50 to the Oregon Department of Justice's victim compensation fund.

Tillamook High golf team hosts junior golf camp

STAFF REPORT
Country Media, Inc.

Tillamook High School's golf team hosted a camp for younger golfers at the Mook at Alderbrook on July 30 and 31, culminating with a tournament on August 1. The camp drew 55 youngsters between the ages of six and 14, with 18 winning trophies for their performance in the tournament. Tillamook Golf Coach Johnny Begin said that it was exciting to see the junior golfers in action and praised high school golfers and their parents for helping to put on a fun clinic and tournament. Begin also thanked the Mook at Alderbrook for hosting the event.

the skills and theories she had learned at each stop. "I was an elementary teacher for a while and became curious about how those skills I was learning would apply to a secondary environment and had the opportunity to do that, which was really exciting work," Chadwick said, "because what I found is great teaching is great teaching, no matter what the level." After more than a decade and a half in the classroom, Chadwick transitioned to administration in 2021, becoming principal of Antonia Crater Elementary School in Newberg. The position at Nestucca High School became available earlier this summer, when Chad Holloway, who had led career education training at the school left to become superintendent of the Rainier School District. This led Nestucca Principal Ken Richwine to move to a new position in the district, in which he will coordinate mentorship, instructional coaching and professional development for staff. Chadwick said that when she looked into the position she was attracted to the district's strong culture of planning, specifically citing staff recruitment and retention efforts driven by a 2017 strategic plan and a more student-focused plan adopted earlier this year. "Just the work that's happening in this district right now is really the kind of stuff I'm excited about as an educator," Chadwick said. Additionally, Chadwick has spent most of her career in rural settings and said that aspect of the Nestucca position had appealed to her and was already proving a seamless transition. "I have worked most of my career in rural schools and so that's really something that is important to me," Chadwick said. "Small schools are where my heart is, and this just was a really great fit. I've already fallen in love with the area, the staff, I've received such a warm welcome, it's just a really great fit for me." As she begins in the position, introducing herself to and getting to know community members will be Chadwick's top priority. She said that she has already begun to meet with district staff as they return from summer vacation and plans to meet with parent and student groups and host a meet and greet once the school year begins. Chadwick said that she plans to spend this year learning the school's systems, analyzing available data and identifying strengths and opportunities for improvement. "I'm not coming in with any preconceived agenda or anything other than to be the best possible leader for our school and partner for peers that I can be," Chadwick said.

Public Annual Notice: Destruction of Special Education Records

Former Special Education Students and/or Parents/Guardians

Students age 27 or older (born prior to 1997)

OR Students who moved prior to 2018

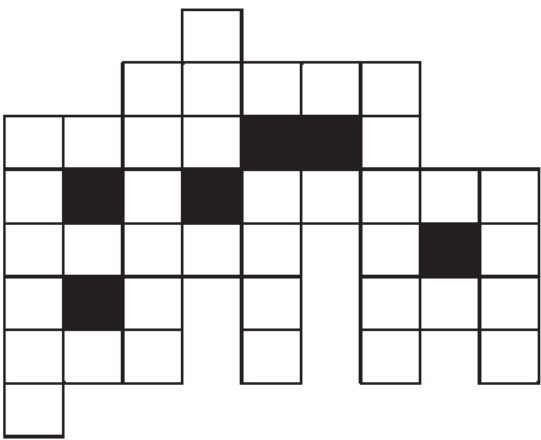

The Neah-Kah-Nie School District would like to inform parents/guardians and former students of the intent to dispose of Special Education records for former students who are no longer receiving Special Education services. Special Education Records are required to be retained until the student reaches age 21 or 5 years after the conclusion of Special Ed services, whichever is longer, as per OAR 166-400-0060. Individual Special Education Records collected by the Neah-Kah-Nie School District may include the identification, evaluation, educational placement, or the provision of Special Education in the district. The records are no longer useful to the District, but may be useful to the student or parent(s)/guardian(s) for other services (social security benefits, rehabilitation services, college entrance, etc.).

Please contact Karen Wheeler, Special Education Secretary, 503-355-3516 PRIOR TO October 30, 2024 if you wish to maintain this information for your personal records.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.

United Paws' Kittens of the Week:

Romo & Bilya

Romo is a handsome, domestic medium hair, black tabby kitten with piercing topaz eyes. He loves to be cuddled and carried around, and once Romo feels safe, you'll hear the rumble of his mighty purr across the room. Paper bags & ribbon wands are his favorites, as well as playing with his more rambunctious sister, Bilya.

Bilya is a domestic short hair, black and brown tabby who has gorgeous exotic markings on her soft coat. She may appear shy at first, but she warms up quickly and will want to hang out with you; she'll be your lapcat when you're on your laptop! She is petite but is packed with energy. Bilya loves to "hunt," crouching down to hide, then jumps out, flying, and "attacks" the toy, her prey. She is curious and wants to investigate everything, thoroughly, and it's even more fun when her brother Romo joins her for lots of kitten antics.

Both cats are litter box trained. They eat wet food and some crunchies. They are about 3 months old, fixed, vaccinated, and ready to be chipped with their forever address. They can be adopted separately or together. We hope they can go to their new forever home together. Contact United Paws for adoption info. Email: unitedpawshelp@gmail.com or call (503) 842-5663. You can also visit our website for more info: www.unitedpaws.wordpress.com.
