Live video feed catches theft in progress

Hilary Dorsey
headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

On Sunday, July 21, Tillamook 911 received a call about a burglary in progress. The victim, who lived near MP 10 of the Wilson River Highway reported that he was in Tillamook but that he could see on a remote camera that an unknown individual was attempting to kick in the door to his shop. He was also able to give a description of the individual and the involved vehicle.

When Sheriff's Deputies arrived at the residence, they cleared the area and upon his arrival, spoke with the owner who was able to provide additional information. The vehicle identified in the security camera footage was observed by law enforcement a short time later turning east onto Keening Creek near MP 17. The vehicle, a silver Dodge Durango, was stopped in the day use area of Cedar Butte and the driver, later identified as Jeffery Metzger, 42 years old from Portland, who matched the individual in the security footage, was arrested. Also located in the vehicle was drug paraphernalia and methamphetamines. Passengers in the car included Amber White, 36, also from Portland, with her 6-year-old son.

Metzger was arrested and lodged at the Tillamook County Jail. Charges for him included alleged: Violation of Probation, Criminal Mischief III, Criminal Trespass II, Reckless Endangering, Burglary II, and Unlawful Possession Methamphetamine.

Amber White was cited for alleged reckless endangering and released on scene.

HB 3309 allows public structures to be built in tsunami zones

Hilary Dorsey
headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

On June 25, Oregon Governor Kate Brown signed House Bill 3309 into law. This law repeals the restriction that new essential facilities and new special occupancy structures may not be constructed in tsunami inundation zones. It also repeals the requirement that State Department of Geology and Mineral Industries (DOGAMI) Board adopt tsunami inundation zone parameters. The law overturns a 1995 prohibition on constructing new public facilities within the tsunami-inundation zone.

When the law goes into effect on January 1, 2020, municipalities will be able to build schools, hospitals, prisons, other high-occupancy buildings, firehouses, and police stations in areas that will be destroyed if a tsunami strikes.

According to DOGAMI's Interim Legislative Coordinator, Robert Houston, HB 3309 removes the Senator Betsy Johnson has been busy. The Legislative Session ended at the end of June. Senator Johnson is getting reintegrated into the District and is busy with meetings, events, and public appearances. Senator Johnson is also one of three writing the budget for the state. She will also have meetings in Astoria that will span for a couple of days.

Johnson was able to attend the June Dairy Parade and was thankful for this. The capitol had been closed, which allowed her to attend the event instead of working in Salem. Johnson also attended the Garibaldi Days parade on Saturday, July 27.

Johnson says that this past Legislative Session was very difficult and unlike any others. Seasoned lobbyists and staff said they never attended a session like this. The political landscape has changed, she says. She saw evidence in this with protests for House Bill 3063 and House Bill 2020. House Bill 3063 removes the ability of a parent to decline required immunizations against restrictable diseases on behalf of a child for reason other than the child's indicated medical diagnosis. House Bill 2020 would introduce a statewide cap and trade system to reduce carbon emissions.

Hundreds of log trucks came down to the capitol with Timber Unity to protest House Bill 2020. For House

Multiple agencies react to manure spill at Port's digester operation

Hilary Dorsey
headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

On Monday, July 22 the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and the Oregon Department of Agriculture (ODA) received notification from the Oregon Emergency Response System (OERS) that a release occurred from the Regenis anaerobic digester, at the Port of Tillamook Bay. First Strike Environmental responded and has been on site since noon on July 22.

According to a release from DEQ, upon further investigation, it was discovered that approximately 300,000 gallons of partially digested manure, digestate, was released and travelled from the digester to Anderson Creek. There is a 4-foot berm surrounding the digester with two entrances. According to Andrea Cantu-Schomus, Director of Communications for the ODA, the Port of Tillamook Bay bulldozed the entrances closed to contain the digestate.

According to Michele Bradley, General Manager of the Port of Tillamook Bay (POTB), "the bulk of the manure was contained on the digesters," she told the Headlight Herald. "Manure that was at the digester made it into the system - the POTB does not know how much, but there was 6 inches of standing manure in portions of the digester slab area that was then pushed and recycled into the digester, lessening the impact of what might have made it into the stormwater system."

Bradley could not confirm how much that may have been.

"The POTB does not have a total gallon number on what might have made it into the stormwater system," she said. "It was tank two, which is a finishing tank of the bay. The manure came from an overflow tank after a technical malfunction. The Port is almost 6 miles via waterway to Tillamook bay. It is not a source of drinking water."

The POTB is the owner of the tank and is responsible for the Stormwater system via a DEQ General Permit, so it is in charge of all stormwater discharge within the industrial park.

"There has been testing from the DEQ, ODA, and Oregon Fish and Wildlife, among others," Bradley said. "A vacuum truck was brought to the location and has been sucking water out of the bay. The POTB doesn't know the impact of the downstream yet but DEQ tested on Tuesday, July 23."

The POTB's stormwater system was built by the Navy when they built the Naval Air Station for WWII. It includes groundwater as well. The Port has a settling pond near the outfall and before Highway 101 that holds millions of gallons of water. From there, it travels under the highway via Anderson Creek, joins with South Prairie Creek, and enters the Tillamook River, then into Tillamook Bay.

"DEQ and ODA have taken and will continue to take samples from various locations in and around the site. The analysis of the samples is expected soon." Cantu-Schomus said. "Because the material is digestate and now raw sewage, there are no restrictions for shellfish operators or recreational harvesters in Tillamook Bay at this time." As sampling results are completed, ODA will decide whether to issue any restrictions. ODA has reached out to all producers in the area to share information about the release of the digestate.

According to the release, results of water samples taken from Tillamook Bay indicate there was no impact on water quality in the bay from the release of treated manure

Rockaway’s newly appointed Mayor talks future plans, events and goals

headlightreporter@countrymedia.net

Mayor Sue Wilson was appointed mayor of Rockaway Beach at the May 8 city council meeting by a vote of the council. Mayor Wilson has plans for the small town, which include keeping the feel of a small town. Since she was appointed mayor, she has learned a lot and plans to do more as her time as mayor.

Wilson moved to Rockaway Beach in 2005. In 2007, she entered politics. She was elected to the council and ultimately ran for reelection four years later for the next term. She was subsequently voted president of the council, which is the person who steps up to lead the meeting when the mayor is absent. This helped Wilson step into the role of mayor.

“There is a learning curve,” said Wilson. “I’m learning more and more every day.”

There are always two sides to everyone’s story, says Wilson. She likes to look for the reasoning behind people’s opinions and decisions. If a council member abstains from voting, she always asks them why.

Wilson says that she acts as a referee at times. She can’t use her personal opinions to make decisions. She has to make decisions for the people. She has to remain neutral. The only time the mayor is allowed to vote is if there is a tie. Wilson hasn’t had to do a swing vote yet.

The mayor position will be up for reelection in November 2020. The prior mayor finished about half of her term before Wilson took over.

Wilson mentions some events coming up in the town. There will be the kite festival at Rockaway Beach Wayside in August. It is a chamber of commerce sponsored event and the city will be 100 percent behind it.

One of the city official’s major concerns is the Wayside’s parking. People park RV’s and trailers and think it is an appropriate place to park. Wilson says they are going to be dealing with this issue with signage in the near future.

There is a concern of children dashing out into the street and parking in general. Parking in Rockaway Beach is limited. The town has one parking lot which can’t be accessed by vehicles coming from the south. Wilson’s hope for the parking lot, is for people to be able to park for an hour or so, enjoy the beach, and leave so others can find a parking space. The city isn’t able to manufacture any more parking because the space for it isn’t available.

“We think we manage our resources well. There is always room for improvement no matter where you live or what you do,” said Wilson.

The council passed an ordinance in 2016, indicating that no one would be able to request usage of the Wayside three weekends of the year. These holidays are Labor Day, Memorial Day, and the Fourth of July.

“We want to give people a place to be,” said Wilson.

People go to Rockaway Beach for the Fourth of July from the north and south. The train from Garibaldi this year was packed. Wilson thinks the train ride was a great idea because people didn’t have to worry about the parking situation and could even stay on the train to watch fireworks if they wished.

At the end of her time as mayor, Wilson wants to believe that she made a difference. One of her major goals is the completion of the Nature Preserve Trail. The Walkway just had its grand opening on June 15. A grant from the Department of Land Conservancy and Development paid for a deck to be built around the giant Western Red Cedar, which helps protect the tree and its roots.

Working with the department heads is Wilson’s favorite part about being the mayor. She likes being on the ground floor on making decisions. She meets with the City Manager the week before a meeting so that everything will be ready for the next meeting.

The next election for mayor is in November 2020. Wilson isn’t sure if she will run for reelection or not. She owns a business in the town and is just beginning a new adventure with her daughter: a waffle food truck that will serve different variations of waffles. She will be serving these at the Tillamook County Fair this year.

prohibition on construction of certain essential facilities and special occupancy structures in the tsunami inundation zone. Decisions on locating new essential facilities and special occupancy structures within the tsunami zone occurs at the local community level based on community needs.

The coasts of Oregon, Washington, and Northern California are exposed to tsunamis from distant earthquakes (such as the March 11, 2011 Tohoku, Japan tsunami) and local earthquake events. According to Houston, the greatest risk to Northwest coastal communities is from very large, locally generated tsunamis produced by an earthquake (magnitude 8-9+) occurring offshore the coast of Oregon and Washington on the Cascadia subduction zone. DOGAMI has mapped the zones that would be inundated by a tsunami. Within the next 50 years, there is a 15-18 percent of a full margin rupture along the Oregon Coast and a 43-45 percent of a partial rupture along the southern Oregon Coast.

There are several sources available to Oregonians to prepare for a tsunami. DOGAMI’s Tsunami

Clearinghouse provides tsunami preparedness information for coastal residents, coastal visitors, boaters, kids and educators, community planners and scientists. Oregon Office of Emergency Management provides similar tsunami preparedness information that individuals, business and community members can use to strengthen resiliency. Local county emergency managers are available and provide information to help enhance community’s preparedness for an emergency.

According to Houston, HB 3309 was a decision made by the legislature to restore flexibility, while ensuring that coastal communities remain safe. Passage of the bill could ultimately provide local coastal communities with an alternative path to improve public safety and resiliency, that may include adoption of the new ASCE 7-16 (Minimum Design Loads and Associated Criteria for Buildings and Other Structures) standard for constructing building within the tsunami inundation zone. Additionally, HB 3309 facilitates continued economic vitality of local coastal communities by linking essential services and the needs of the community together, said Houston.

Johnson

Bill 3063, people used social media to organize people for protest. Sen. Johnson says that people who were once passive are now more engaged. More people are also shifting to nonpartisan. People feel that they need to be involved or they could be collateral damage.

Johnson attended a community event on Thursday, June 26 that was held by the Tillamook County Democrats at Tillamook Bay Community College at 5:30 p.m. This event was the Tillamook County Democrats Political Pie Party. As part of their mission to support and elect Democrats, they invited Democrats to their special meeting. They had pies fresh from Grateful Bread Bakery, and had presentations, questions, and answers from Senator Johnson and Arnie Roblan, the two State Senators for Tillamook County, along with two State Representatives, one of them being David Gomborg.

Johnson met with President Tomlin of Tillamook Bay Community College before the Political Pie Party.

Sen. Johnson is scheduled to have a meeting with Linda Kozlowski from the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industries (DOGAMI). Kozlowski is one of five members of the Governing Board, who sets agency policy and oversees general operations, and adopts a strategic plan every six years to guide DOGAMI’s mission and objectives.

In response to Recall Kate Brown, Sen. Johnson says that “Recall is a serious undertaking” and has to be for valid reasons. Johnson doesn’t think the recall will be successful. Recall proponents have until October 14 to submit just over 280,000 signatures. Johnson says that a recall is pretty extreme, and that she doesn’t know the specifics of the complaint with the governor.

Sen Johnson says that she voted for the plastic bag ban to keep the consistency of the bag ban across the state. She supports the grocery industry, and although she doesn’t agree with the 5-cent charge on bags, she felt that voting for the ban was the right choice.

Sen. Johnson also has to deal with some constituent issues, such as issues with water wells. Johnson does a lot of rule writing. She serves over 130,000 people and often has people come directly to her about issues. She is proud of the constituent services they offer.

For the rest of the summer, Sen. Johnson will be busy with fairs, auctions, and regattas. Johnson buys food items from the auctions and donates them to the Food Bank. She is also working with craft distillers and the wine industry. She is working with OLCC on those issues.

One of the important issues that Sen. Johnson is focusing on is any moderation to House Bill 2020. She doesn’t know if there can be a moderation, but she remains hopeful.

There will be a short session in August. Sen. Johnson said the budget will need attention. The Legislative Session will be back in session six months.

Sen. Johnson said that she has seen about 40 issues that could be on the ballot, but not all of them will make it. She said that she saw 35 petitions for election filed with the Secretary of State and that it is possible that hopefully are out getting signatures now.

Modeling predicts blue whales’ coastal foraging behavior, aiding population management efforts

Michelle Klampe
Oregon State University

Scientists can now predict where and when blue whales are most likely to be foraging for food in the California Current Ecosystem, providing new insight that could aid in the management of the endangered population in light of climate change and blue whale mortality due to ship strikes, a new study shows.

The statistical model used for the predictions combines long-term satellite tracking data of the whales’ movement patterns with environmental data such as ocean temperatures and depth, which helps researchers understand how climate variations might impact blue whales over time from a larger “ecosystem” view of the population.

“Most management decisions up to now have been based on locations where the whales tend to be found,” said Daniel Palacios who holds the Endowed Faculty in Whale Habitats position at Oregon State University’s Marine Mammal Institute and is lead author of the study.

“But it’s not just where the whales are, but also the activity – are they actually eating there or simply moving through – that matters. This model can tell us which areas are the most important for actual foraging.”

The findings were published today in the journal “Movement Ecology.”

Blue whales can grow 70 to 90 feet long and weigh 200,000 to 300,000 pounds, though their diet is primarily krill - tiny shrimp-like creatures less than two inches in length. They are listed as endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act and the International Union for Conservation of Nature’s Red List.

An estimated 1,600 of the world’s 10,000 blue whales, known as the North Pacific population, spend time in the waters off the West Coast of the Americas. The North Pacific blue whale population can travel from the Gulf of Alaska to an area near the equator known as the Costa Rica Dome. The majority spend the summer and fall in the waters off the U.S. West Coast.

The California Current Ecosystem is the span of waters off the West Coast of North America extending roughly from the border with Canada at the north to Baja California, Mexico, at the south. Steady winds during spring and summer fuel a rich and biologically productive ecosystem. The study focused only on U.S. waters within this ecosystem.

The researchers’ goal for the study was to better understand the blue whale behavior in the context of this ecosystem by examining the relationship between feeding behavior and ocean conditions during the feeding season.

Palacios and colleagues used long-term satellite tracking data from 72 tagged blue whales as well as ocean condition data from remote sensing during the same period, 1998 to 2008. Little was known about the blue whale until the 1990s, when Bruce Mate, director of OSU’s Marine Mammal Institute, pioneered the satellite tracking studies that produced a wealth of data not previously available.

The data used in the foraging study included several years of cool, productive ocean conditions as well as a couple of warm, low-productivity years, during which food was less likely to be plentiful.

The researchers found that blue whales were more likely to exhibit foraging behavior in areas known from earlier studies for hosting large whale aggregations, providing an improved understanding of the relationship between environmental conditions and whale habitat use.

“The same environmental parameters – water temperature, depth, abundance of phytoplankton - that drive hotspots of whale aggregation also drive where foraging behavior is more likely to occur,” Palacios said. “While this was not necessarily surprising, it was good to be able to demonstrate that we can predict whale behavioral states, as this helps inform management in terms of not just what areas are used more often by the whales, but also what they do once they get there.”

They also found that whales were less likely to exhibit foraging behavior when they were further away from the coastline. The primary foraging hotspots are found in a few locations along the coast, where krill aggregations are typically most dense and persistent.

The study also supported findings from another recent paper by Palacios and colleagues that showed that blue whales rely on long-term memory to find the best places to forage, and return to them year after year. That makes them susceptible to climatic disruptions to their prey base, as the whales may take some time before they abandon their traditional foraging sites.

Improved understanding of the species-environment relationship, through an ecosystem view of whale behavior, can give researchers a better understanding of how climate change might impact whale feeding, Palacios said.

The study also could help with population management decisions. North Pacific blue whales tend to aggregate in three primary areas: Point Conception and the Santa Barbara Channel in southern California; around the Gulf of Farallones in central California; and between Cape Mendocino and Cape Blanco in northern California and southern Oregon.

Two of those hotspots are in areas of intense commercial shipping traffic near Los Angeles and San Francisco. Blue whale mortality due to ship strikes is a growing concern.

“If there are some areas along the coast that are more biologically important for the whales, based on intensified foraging activity, that’s important for management agencies to know, compared to areas where the whales are just passing through,” Palacios said.

The researchers’ next step is to look more closely at how whales’ behavior shifts during years when ocean conditions are unfavorable for food production.

“How long will it take blue whales to abandon their historic feeding grounds if the food is no longer there?” Palacios said. “If they do respond to environmental changes, how do we predict that change long-term?”

Other researchers on the study include Bruce Mate and Ladd Irvine of OSU’s Marine Mammal Institute; Helen Bailey of the University of Maryland; and Elizabeth Becker, Steven Bograd, Monica DeAngelis, Karin Forney and Elliott Hazen of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our President cares for veterans

I feel obligated to talk about my positive experiences with V.A. healthcare, since there is so much negative stuff out there. I have a service connected disability, and ALL of my experiences with the former Choice Program, now Mission Act, have been outstanding. I have had two potentially life saving procedures and all necessary follow-up care using this program, and all it took was a telephone call to pre-authorize it. I have also gotten all my routine (and urgent) care here in Tillamook. All my meds are provided by the V.A. pharmacy at a very reasonable cost, and all necessary diagnostic and preventive procedures are provided as well. I even got a letter from the V.A. saying that they had no record of me having received an important vaccination, and urged me to get it. I then got it here in Tillamook, and they covered it. People who say this administration is not caring for veterans are dead wrong, and I'm living proof. It is clear to me that this President cares for veterans, and I am very grateful for it.

CHAMBER CHATTER

Saying goodbye to Alex and hello to housing solutions

Justin Aufdermauer
Executive Director

Over the last nine months the Chamber has been fortunate to play a role in helping tackle the housing crisis within the City of Tillamook. We applied for and were accepted into the RARE program (a division of AmeriCorps) and with that came our newest staff member, Alexander Jonas.

Alex came to us as a recent graduate from Florida State where he studied political science and international affairs with a focus on economics. He was relocated to Tillamook to serve as our Housing Policy & Development Coordinator.

In this role, having Alex in this role at the Chamber has allowed us to make a housing impact greater than we could ever imagine.

When we set out with this program our goal was to help make various policy changes to assist developers, but we have done so much more and Alex will have a mark on Tillamook for many years to come.

Alex was able to make great strides to help the City improve their development process. He collaborated closely with the city to put together what is essentially a System Development Charges (SDC) financing plan, which they adopted earlier this summer. This plan allows developers to finance their SDCs instead of paying them all up front. SDCs can amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars for multi-family housing developments and are typically paid in full before a building is even occupied. By deferring these costs a few years (but not waving them), this would alleviate the financial frontload for the developer without undercutting the needed long-term funds for the City. And, since the City may collect interest during the deferral period, it would theoretically equate to more long-term revenue than had the SDCs been charged upfront.

Garibaldi has had success with a similar model, as well as other Oregon cities that Alex was able to pull data from in helping draft the policy for the City of Tillamook.

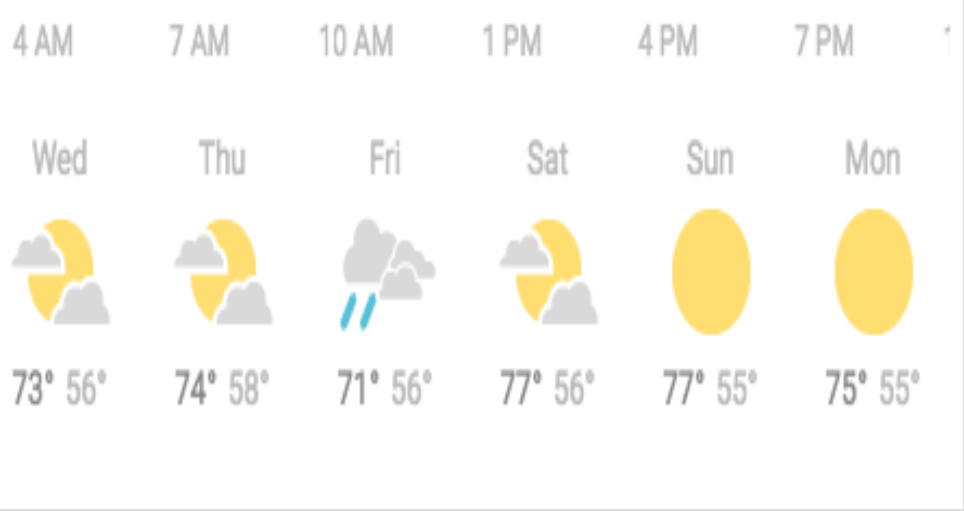

To put his stake in the ground, Alex drafted a $200,000 Oregon Main Street Revitalization Grant to build four market-rate apartments above Lisa Griener's Oregon Coast Dance Studio. This is a competitive statewide grant awarded to downtown areas in Oregon in need of economic development, and Lisa's project was awarded the grant. The current project timeline estimates that the renovation will begin next Summer, with a targeted end date around the beginning of 2021.

As if that wasn't enough, having this housing program in the Chamber and its connection to the Tillamook County Board of Realtors, we were asked to assist in finding available property for a Oregon developer looking to build 50-100 market-rate units within the City. Though grinding to find property and with the City's help with a rezone - always hate to count my blessings too early - but as of a phone call received just last week it looks like Tillamook should be getting another 73 unit apartment complex within the next year.

Needless to say, Alex's time has been well spent here at the Chamber. What you can be sure of is that because of the willingness of the Chamber Board of Directors to venture into our economic crisis of housing - the funding put forward by the Tillamook County Board of REALTORS, Pacific Seafood and other generous donors - Coupled with Alex's hard work - Tillamook will have a much different housing landscape in a very short amount of time. Alex is about to transition from a Seminole to a Duck as he has decided to stay in Oregon to pursue his Masters Degree at the University of Oregon - that's a big deal that college football fans everywhere will understand. Be sure to stop in to the Chamber HQ and wish him well before he goes.

OBITUARIES

Rob Rissel

Bob Rissel was born in San Francisco on July 26th, 1930 of immigrant parents. His mother Lily Nicolson immigrated from Wick, Scotland and his father from Bern, Switzerland. Bob grew up in Pebble Beach, California where his father was chef at the Del Monte Lodge. He began playing golf in Pebble Beach at the age of 6 and was a caddie during high school. He graduated from Carmel High School in 1948 and kept in contact with his classmates through any class reunions. He was able to attend his 70th class reunion with his whole family in 2018. Bob attended the University of California and then embarked on many exciting careers that led him in many directions. He set up a chain of restaurants for Continental Trailways in the 50's. He traveled all over small towns in the south and in his spare time took up flying. He was hired to fly the oil pipeline in the Pan Handle of Texas and did crop dusting in Texas and California. Bob moved to Jamaica in 1954 to manage the hotel San Souci for his godfather Frank Brandstetter where he had a plane to bring in supplies from Cuba and Florida. Bob continued his career in the hotel business when moving back to the California. He managed hotels on the Monterey Peninsula, including the Del Monte Lodge, beach and Tennis club, Ahwahnee Hotel in Yosemite and Berkley Marriott. Bob would probably say one of his most exciting opportunities of a lifetime was being selected to join the planning committee for the 1960 Olympic Games. He was Assistant director of the Olympic Village a Squaw Valley which involved organizing the housing and feeding of the athletes for the 8th Winter Olympic Games. After the games he managed the University of California Alum Center at Lake Tahoe. Bob was an avid golfer, skier and sailor. Bob's transition to Oregon took place in 1973 when he and Sally bought Pacific City Builders Supply from Sally's parents.

Bob was an active businessman and served on the Tillamook County Planning Commission, Pacific City Sewer and Water Board and Pacific City Chamber of Commerce. Aviation and flying was the love of his life. Bob flew and all kinds of private aircraft and loved the availability of having an airport within walking distance in Pacific City. After retirement, Bob was a docent for 10 years at the Evergreen Aviation Museum where he was able to share his incredible knowledge of aviation and history with visitors. Carl Enlow Young

Carl Enlow Young, age 79, passed peacefully into the arms of Jesus on the morning of July 7th, 2019 in Tillamook, Oregon. Carl was born July 10th, 1939 in Portland, Oregon to Harry and Dorothy Young, and was one of four children. He was part of the first graduating class of Wilson High School and soon-after joined the United States Air Force, serving from 1959-61 in Chicksands, England. While there, he met and married his first wife, Edith Dutson. They were married seven years and had two daughters, Toni and Natalie. After his military service, Carl briefly worked for Greyhound in Portland, and during that time met and married Linda Spickerman. They were married 51 years and had a daughter, Starlee. Carl worked in the printing industry for 23 years, and later as a mail carrier until his retirement in 2001. Carl's hobbies over the years included nature photography, woodworking, rock hounding, and fishing. He took thousands of photos, often pulling the car over to capture a beautiful tree or flower he spotted along the road. His woodworking ranged from small, detailed Christmas ornaments to large pieces of furniture including a dining table with chairs, credenza, coffee tables, and side tables, all of which we still enjoy today. Linda and Carl loved to travel; backpacking, road trips, church missions, and cruises. In 2002, they moved from Portland to Oceanside, Oregon. Carl loved spending time with his family and socializing with friends over coffee. He and Linda took long walks on the beach with their dog, and he read for hours in his window nook. He found humor in everyday life and shared that with everyone. Carl is survived by his wife Linda, daughters Toni, Natalie, and Starlee, sister Jean, 8 grandchildren,

6 great-grandchildren, and other family. A celebration of life was held at 11am on Saturday, July 13th at the Tillamook Nazarene Church. 2611 3rd Street, 97141. Hampton Lumber partners with Girls Build to bring new camp to Tillamook

Hampton Lumber, a fourth-generation, family-owned wood products manufacturer and forestland owner, is partnering with Portland-based nonprofit Girls Build to help girls build confidence and curiosity at a week-long summer camp for girls in Tillamook, Oregon this August. This marks the second year of Hampton Lumber's partnership with Girls Build. Last year, Hampton Lumber provided support to bring the camp to Warrenton, Oregon. The camp was such a success that Hampton offered to help bring it back to Warrenton this August and bring an additional camp to Tillamook. Both locations are home to a Hampton Lumber sawmill. Girls Build camps, with support from sponsors including Hampton Lumber, provide opportunities for 8-14 year-old girls to learn the fundamentals of building, including carpentry, plumbing, electricity, concrete and sheet metal from female instructors. Hampton's support of Girls Build showcases both the company's commitment to community and its efforts to create good job opportunities for young people in the trades. "Camps like Girls Build help build skills and confidence and shed light on opportunities in the trades, where there is a disproportionate lack of women," said Steve Zika, CEO at Hampton Lumber. "Our involvement is a small way we help bring greater gender equity and forward-thinking practices to the industry at-large. We are excited to be able to support expansion of this camp to other coastal communities." "Hampton's sponsorship of two weeks of camp is critical in our expansion to reach girls who love and put to use our programming," said Katie Hughes, Executive Director at Girls Build. "We were beyond excited when Hampton offered to sponsor a camp in Tillamook, and can't wait to meet and teach the campers in the area." The Tillamook Girls Build camp will take place August 5-9, 2019 at Tillamook Junior High School. The Warrenton camp at Warrenton Grade School runs from August 19-23. For more information email Girls Build at info@girlsbuild.org or visit www.girlsbuild.org.

waste at the Regenis facility. As a result, analysts with the Oregon Department of Agriculture shellfish and food safety programs have determined that the release does not pose a health risk and no action is required by shellfish harvesters. Water samples taken from the Regenis outfall pipe at Anderson Creek did show elevated levels of e coli, but downstream tests did not show elevated e coli levels. The Oregon Department of Environmental Quality is working with the Port of Tillamook Bay on ways to further contain the contaminated water at the outfall. The ODA will continue to monitor water quality in the bay by taking additional samples and testing for potential contamination.

Tillamook County Community Health Centers announce grand opening and ribbon cutting event

The Tillamook County Community Health Centers invites the public to join them and tour their newest health center at the Ribbon Cutting Ceremony from 2-4 p.m. on Wednesday, August 7 at Tillamook Bay Community College. Please RSVP to Donna Gigoux at dgigoux@co.tillamook.or.us. The new mobile health center is built on a new Winnebago chassis and is the result of more than 4,000 man hours of custom work between Winnebago and ADI Mobile Health in Tualatin. The highly customized van was funded by a variety of grants, including U.S. Health Resources & Services Administration, Columbia Pacific CCO, CareOregon Dental and Oregon Health Authority. Columbia Pacific CCO also provides for much of the cost of staffing the van for the first year. “This is an exciting new resource for the resident of Tillamook County,” said Tillamook County Community Health Centers (TCCHC) administrator, Marlene Putman, in a press release. “It’s the collaboration of many partners and resources and provides for alternative access to care. This van can be used in schools, clinics, churches, and community centers to provide much-needed care.” THHC has been a Federally Qualified Health Center since 1994, providing medical, dental, behavioral, and public health services. “We have a fantastic team at our Health Centers, which serves all of Tillamook County,” said Putman.

Pelican Brewing releases Jamaicito, a Mojito-inspired lager

The next brew in Pelican’s cocktail-influenced collection pays homage to the head brewer’s Hispanic roots and memories of summertime flavors of hibiscus, lime and mint Pacific City, Oregon (July 29, 2019)—Pelican Brewing Company announces the next in the Lone Pelican cocktail collection of beers with the release of Jamaicito, a Mojito-inspired lager. Brewed with hibiscus, mint and lime, Jamaicito takes summertime refreshment to a whole new level. The light, crisp new brew is available now in 22 oz. bottles and on draft at Pelican and other participating watering holes.

While Jamaicito is influenced by the popular Mojito cocktail, Pelican’s head brewer Jason Schleich also pays homage to his Hispanic roots and memories of summertime flavors inherent in a Spanish hibiscus tea called Jamaica. Take one look at Jamaicito’s hot pink hibiscus color and you’ll know Pelican’s spin on this thirst-quenching delight is not your average light lager.

“When I got the nod to create the recipe for our summer cocktail-inspired beer I thought of Jamaica, the Spanish hibiscus tea I’ve enjoyed since my childhood—hibiscus has a lot of interesting tannin and tart notes to explore for a very different realm of flavor,” said Schleich. “A lot of beers are so hop-centric right now and I thought it would be interesting to experiment with a unique blend of hibiscus, mint and lime flavors to create a summertime beer with a completely new flavor profile and out-of-the-ordinary character.”

With clean, noble hops and classic lager malt as the basis, Pelican layered an infusion of hibiscus flowers, aromatic mint and tangy lime. Let the aromas of citrus zest, floral hops and hibiscus blossoms float serenely over a clean, biscuity malt foundation. Then, take in the herbaceous mint flavors that combine beautifully with lime tartness and an ever so light sweet aftertaste. With a finish that is effervescent and refreshing, Jamaicito will leave you feeling in the pink!

“Jamaicito is a terrific example of taking flavors inspired by a cocktail and integrating them into a beer—not disguising beer as a cocktail or vice versa but really exploring the elements of flavor of a cocktail and integrating those into this delicious beer,” says Darron Welch, founding brewmaster at Pelican Brewing Company. “We spent a lot of energy making sure that the level of lime was right ‘in the pocket’—not too strong or too weak—and balanced that flavor with mint and hibiscus, which really makes for a gorgeous ruby color and a super refreshing beer. We’ve intentionally designed Jamaicito with a lower alcohol level perfect for summer weather.”

When Pelican Brewing Company launched the Lone Pelican Small Batch Series its intention was to introduce limited-production beers that explore new techniques, ingredients and under-represented styles. As part of that limited production small batch series, Pelican this year turns its award-winning talents to crafting an entirely different segment of beer: meet Pelican’s bold Cocktail Collection.

Like the lone pelican flying independently from the flock, this small batch series flies in the face of convention. The Lone Pelican Series takes traditional beer styles and ingredients and reimagines them to demonstrate the vast spectrum of flavor experiences possible in this wonderful beverage.

Like all Pelican beers, Jamaicito is born at the beach by a team of award-winning craft beer makers known for brewing styles of beer that they themselves love to drink. Cheers!

Headlight Herald ‘Reader Photos of the Week’

Since we’ve been getting so many great ‘Reader Photos of the Week’ submissions, we decided to run two this week. This photo (top) was captured by Denise Doyle in Pacific City of two bucks playing on the hillside. Do you have a camera and an eye for beauty? Send us your photos to editor@orcoastnews.com

Tillamook County Community Health Centers announce ribbon cutting event

Last year, Marlene Putman, administrator, Tillamook County Community Health Centers (TCCHC), had a glint in her eye and a very big idea. This idea was fueled by the vision of the patient driven Community Health Council and their a passion for improving patient access. Today, she is proud to announce a new member of the team that arrived by special delivery earlier this month.

“We are so proud to announce our new team member, which has yet to be named. But she came in at a whopping 22,000 lbs. She is 39 feet long and 12 ½ feet tall.” Said Putman. “And she’s a real beauty. I know that everyone who meets her will really love her.”

“We are very proud to announce the arrival of our new mobile community health center,” said Putman. “And we can’t wait to get her ready to start delivering dental, physical and mental health care to Tillamook County.

Please join us and tour our newest health center at the Ribbon Cutting Ceremony from 2 -- 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 7, 2019, at Tillamook Bay Community College, 4301 Third St., Tillamook.

The new mobile health center is built on a new Winnebago chassis and is the result of more than 4,000 man hours of custom work between Winnebago and ADI Mobile Health in Tualatin. The highly customized van was funded by a variety of grants, including U.S. Health Resources & Services Administration, Columbia Pacific CCO, CareOregon Dental and Oregon Health Authority. Columbia Pacific CCO also provides for much of the cost of staffing the van for the first year.

“This is an exciting new resource for the residents of Tillamook County,” Putman continued. “It’s the collaboration of many partners and resources, and provides for alternative access to care. This van can be used in schools, clinics, churches and community centers to provide much-needed care.”

TCCHC has been a Federally Qualified Health Center since 1994, providing medical, dental, behavioral and public health services. “We have a fantastic team at our Health Centers, which serves all of Tillamook County.” Said Putman. TCCHC is also the proud convener and backbone organization for the nationally recognized Tillamook County Wellness.

GARDENING MATTERS

On using natives

CARLA ALBRIGHT

In my last column I talked about some shrubs that I have found to be helpful in my own garden to set a tone and act as the bones of the garden. This week, I want to tell you about some lovely native plants that can also be used as background plants for the flower beds.

Knowing how aggressive some of our native plants can be (think salal and horse-tails), I have chosen several native shrubs that are well-mannered and will stay put—for the most part—where they are planted.

The first shrub to consider is the Buttonbush (Cephalanthus occidentalis). These are good alternatives to the invasive butterfly bushes, and can get to be quite large at six to ten feet tall and wide. This shrub likes moist soil but, once established, will tolerate a wide range of moisture and soil conditions. It does like rich soil in full sun to partial shade and will grow quite quickly to ten feet. But it also tolerates heavy pruning to keep it under control. It blooms throughout the summer months with fuzzy white globes of sweetly-scented flowers. Butterflies flock to enjoy its pollen. The glossy green oval foliage turns yellow in the fall, with clusters of dried “nutlets” staying all winter. The irregular winter silhouette can be quite attractive and foliage will emerge in late spring. This is when it can be reshaped and dead growth removed.

I am also taken with the Ceanothus thyrsiflorus, also known as wild lilac or Blue Blossom. In fact, it is one of the favorite shrubs in my garden. Considered to be a native of California and Southern Oregon, I still consider it native to our area as it does so well and can be commonly found. In spring and early summer, it puts out masses of deep blue flowers that float like clouds above the dark green foliage. Ceanothus flowers are said to be fragrant, but I can’t say I have noticed this in the one I have. This plant is an evergreen shrub, but it, too, gets quite large at four to twelve feet high and wide. It tolerates drought once established and blooms for an extended period of time.

Ceanothus can be used as a specimen plant, as a hedge, or—when lower branches are pruned—as a tree in a small garden. The height can be easily controlled by pruning the crown but take the old stems down to main branches within the crown to encourage nice growth.

A plant I was surprised to see on the invasive list for the Pacific Northwest is the Cotoneaster. In fact, it is con-

FENCEPOSTS

You might have noticed a vehicle sitting by Cape Meares Lake, day after day, and a gentleman with black, curly hair. Who is he, and what fishing luck has he had? He's Rholen Dougherty, the husband of Trish Dougherty; she used to own Lighthouse Property Management. Formerly from Netarts, they have now retired to Bay City— but Rholen still comes to his favorite fishing spot, Cape Meares Lake, two or three times a week. He has caught many a trout there, the biggest being 21 inches. While he and Trish enjoy eating fish on occasion, they give most of his catch away to friends and neighbors. It's nice to know our lake has such a dedicated fan. A man who possibly had contaminated a reservoir supplying water to Oceanside was taken into custody. As a precaution, Oceanside-Cape Meares Water District completely emptied and flushed the Oceanside system, leaving some Oceanside residents using only bottled water for nearly a week. Fortunately, the water tank serving Cape Meares has a different source and we were unaffected. Still, it brings to mind that disaster preparedness efforts are not only for earthquakes and tsunamis. Other emergencies—water problems, power outages, house or forest fires, contagious diseases—can and do occur. Have enough water on hand to provide a gallon a day per person to use for drinking and washing, plus additional water for flushing toilets. Store lots of canned food in your pantry. Keep flashlights, lanterns and extra batteries on hand. And, in Cape Meares, know who your emergency preparedness neighborhood captain is. If you don't, find out by contacting Kathy Burke at 503-369-2055. Some sad news to report: Bob Yoltan, a part-time resident of Cape Meares for many years, recently passed away. Bob, an optometric physician retired from teaching at Pacific University, was an active participant in disaster preparation efforts for Cape Meares. He took wilderness medicine and CERT (community emergency response team) courses. He taught eye care at local emergency management workshops and was a trained ham radio operator. Bob was a well-respected member of the Cape Meares community; he will be missed. Our condolences to his family. Peaceworks Art Annex in Netarts was the site of a recent art show featuring eight artists, including Ciel Downing from Cape Meares. The artists used a variety of mediums—stained glass, cameras, wood, alcohol inks, acrylics, wax, and paper—to create their beautiful works of art, many of seascapes or coastal wildlife. Two guitarists provided a mellow music background and hors d'oeuvres were served as attendees mingled and admired the intriguing exhibits. More than 100 individuals, including a number from Cape Meares, turned out for the event. The owner of the Peaceworks art studio, Tam Hulburt, says additional art shows are planned for later in the summer; visit Peaceworks Art Annex's Facebook page for more information. The osprey fledglings on 7th St. are getting ready to leave their nest! The Klobases reported seeing the little chicks jump up and down and flutter their wings. Anytime now...

Thanks to Melanie Merryman for looking after my little dog Maggie, at home last week while I vacationed. I traveled with Elise and Logan Morrow (my daughter and fourteen year old grandson, of Prineville) to Fresno California for this year's National Parks trip. We visited Sequoia and King's Canyon early in the week where we posed for photos under the biggest trees I've ever encountered. We also spent two days in Yosemite, where a highlight was climbing to the base of El Capitan. There's a snapshot of our three hands on the Dawn Wall that I'll cherish as long as I live. Congratulations to

Joy Neufeld, of Cloverdale, for reaching her weight loss goal with TOPS (Taking off Pounds Sensibly). Joy is the first member of our young chapter to reach KOPS (keeping off pounds sensibly) status and a great example to the rest of us. That is probably why she was recently elected Chapter Leader for a term starting next month. TOPS weighs in at 4:30 p.m. weekly on Mondays in the fireside room at Kiwanda Community Center, 34600 Kiwanda Drive, Pacific City. All are welcome and the first meeting is free. Free events at South Tillamook County Library this week include Mr. Fantastic for children's story time at 3 p.m. on Wednesday. Bring a sewing or needlecraft project for fiber Friday at 2 p.m. on Friday. No programs are scheduled during the fair week, August 510; plan to visit Tillamook County Library at the Fair. South Tillamook County Library is located on Camp Street in Pacific City. A free collection of household hazardous waste is planned from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. sharp on Saturday in Tillamook. Take items (and clean blocks of white Styrofoam) to Tillamook Transfer Station, 1315 Ekloff Road. For a list of acceptable trash, go to co.tillamook.or.us/gov/solidwaste or call 503-815-3975. I promised to be in touch with word of a memorial service for Merrienne Hoffman. Unfortunately, the event is imminent as we go to press and happening in Oakland, California. There isn't time for us to make a trip. However, the family has suggested a memorial donation in lieu of flowers, which is a fine way to honor our friend. The suggested beneficiary is Nestucca Valley Community Alliance. We can mail a check to P.O. Box 253, Pacific City, OR 97135. Be sure to enclose a note specifying that the donation is in memory of Merrienne. An earthquake west of Newport last month motivates me to continue steps towards disaster preparedness each week. I'm sharing my progress in this space; we can prepare together for the coming "big one." Do you have sturdy slippers, a flashlight and an extra set of eyeglasses stored under your bed? It will be easier to navigate debris in the dark aftermath of a nighttime disaster or power outage if we do. I'll check that I am up to speed on these tasks myself before I write again. Happy birthday this week to: Tacy Bennett, Lena Cabral, Reese Carver, Sara Christiansen, Emma Cross, Tawnya Dimmitt, Amy Elder, Jack Hagerty, Tammy Heitsman, Joshua Hopkins, Spencer Hurlman, Jodi Liddicoat, Damon McGee, Wally Nelson, Zachary Porter, Bill Rock, Hadley Schildan, Clint Sisco, Gary Smith, Emma Upright and Tom Woodard.

I have a quick note to you about my brother. He is a fighter, but right now desperately needs your prayers. So far he had been winning his battle with pancreatic cancer, but the setbacks now are quite unsettling. Thank you.

ROCKAWAY BEACH
SUGAR BROSIOUS
503-653-1449
sugarsugarusa@netscape.net

National Night Out Against Crime is Tuesday, August 6th from 5-7pm. It will be located at the Rockaway Beach City Hall, at 276 Hwy 101 S. This is a community-building campaign; that promotes police-community partnerships and it is also a great way to meet your neighbors. Folks are doing this all over the nation. What a great event. Be sure to join them! Another great way to meet others in our community is the Meals for Seniors program. The plus of this program is the yummy nutritional meals. The meals are every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at St. Mary's Hall. Lunch is at 11:30 sharp! And while I am still talking about it, volunteers are always welcome if you are looking to serve our wonderful community. And, this program is non-profit. The Rockaway Beach Park

the attendants are volunteers. Our community is really busy in the summer. I don't get to learn about all that is coming up in our town. So, if you have an interesting story, birthday or celebration that you would like to share, feel free to email or text me. Be sure to mention it is for the fencepost column. Sometimes I am not sure. Once in a while I answer a ringing phone too! Speaking of birthdays, I want to wish my good friend, Sue Wilson a wonderful birthday. Happy birthday Sue! I wish we could get together more, I truly think the world of you. Thank you to all of you that clean up our town and beaches when you are walking about. It does not go unnoticed and it is appreciated. You are awesome! I love that you don't just sit and complain, but you are actually happily doing something about it. Thank you. "Let's let out more string on our kites!" The 43rd Rockaway Beach Kite and Art Festival is almost here. This year it is August 2nd -August 4th. Be sure to stop by the Wayside and check it out! I have a little history for those that don't know it. Our Wayside, not so long ago, was the location of Rockaway's natatorium. This was a heated saltwater pool that was located in a two-story building. This building was finished in 1926 and had a wading pool, diving boards and a fountain with warm saltwater. Folks could watch the swimmers from the second floor, which was adjacent to a bowling alley. Over the years, things changed, and in 1967 it was replaced with our Rockaway Beach Wayside. It may be a simple name, but there is a whole lot of history behind that name. So, as you stroll through the festival, don't forget all the history of our "Rockaway Beach Wayside." The Bay City Arts Center has a concert on Saturday, August 3rd at 7:30pm. Amanda Stanaway will be performing. Amanda is the proprietor of Mana's Kitchen and an accomplished Ukulele/Guitarist/Singer. What is better than supporting local talent! Presale tickets are $10, and available at the Bay City Arts Center and at Mana's Kitchen at 5535 Hayes Oyster Drive, Bay City. You can also purchase tickets at the door for $12. This will be an awesome evening to spend with family and friends. Mr. Bill of the Mookulele Group will be having lessons and a jam on Thursday, August 1st. Beginner lessons start at 12:30 and the jam session at 1pm. Join them at the Garibaldi Library! They have ukes for you to borrow too! And, lastly, there will be new CERT Classes offered in the fall. I will update you as I receive the information. "People who are secure in themselves don't put others down. They lift them up. (Let's learn to work well with others.)" That's Rockaway Beach, "Sugar Coated!"

sidered invasive in the states surrounding the Great Lakes and California, too. Instead, try the Pinemat Manzanita (Arctosaphylos nevadensis) which is considered native from British Columbia south to California. This shrub is good to use as a groundcover as it grows one to two feet tall and two to six feet wide. It produces pink, waxy flowers in the spring that develop into red-brown berries that often stay on the plant through the winter. The oval, leathery green leaves are held upright on the plant, and hide the mahogany-colored stems. This makes a great weed-free groundcover, or cascade it over a wall. It also helps with erosion control.

Pinemat Manzanita prefers well-drained soil, even sandy or loamy soil. It does like full sun to part shade. Although it is heat and drought tolerant, ample summer moisture helps it grow better. And while it may take a few years to fully establish, it is worth the wait. A larger, more impressive Manzanita is the Arctostaphylos Columbiana or Hairy Manzanita. This Manzanita forms tight mounds of six to ten feet tall and wide with foliage all the way to the ground. This is an evergreen shrub with small, hairy elliptical leaves of a blue-green color. Terminal clusters of white or pale pink flowers that are bell-shaped are quite showy. They turn to bright red berries that last into winter. This Manzanita can be used as a hedge, screen or specimen plant and is good for erosion control. They like moist, sandy soil (loamy is okay, too) and should be planted in full sun to light shade. You won't have to prune this one very often, as the crown stays nice and tight. But do keep this one deeply watered to keep this tough and adaptive plant happy. There are, of course, some other very nice native shrubs used easily in most gardens. Ninebark (Physocarpus opulifolius), for example, has some unusual bark that makes it a year-round shrub of interest in the garden. Easy to grow as well. The American Beautyberry (Callicarpa americana) and Twinberry (Lonicera involucrata) are two more I can name that do well on the coast, are lovely in the garden and uncomplicated to grow. And once again I say, "So many plants, so little garden space!" PS Don't forget to enter something in the County Fair next Monday.

PUBLIC NOTICE

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS (RFP)

The City of Tillamook is requesting competitive proposals from qualified, experienced, and motivated engineering firms licensed in the State of Oregon for the “City of Tillamook Sewage Collection System Study” (Study). The Study will help identify and provide recommendations to eliminate significant inflow and infiltration (I/I) sources within the City’s collection system.

The City of Tillamook has a sewer collection system consisting of approximately 20 miles of sanitary sewer pipes, 5 pump stations and approximately 60 privately-owned individual septic tank effluent (STEP) systems.

The purpose of the Study is to develop an inflow/infiltration analysis that details the extent of the inflow/infiltration and provides a cost-effective analysis that compares the costs of correcting the inflow/infiltration to the costs of transportation and treatment of the inflow/infiltration.

Proposers must follow the directions stated within the Request For Proposals (RFP) which can be found on the City website at www.tillamookor.gov. The City follows a qualification-based selection (QBS) process. All proposals must be made in the format outlined in this RFP.

Written response to this RFP must be submitted in one unbound and four bound copies with a digital PDF copy no later than 2:00 p.m. PST on Tuesday, August 27, 2019 to Tillamook City Hall, Attention: Liane Welch, City Engineer, 2211 3rd Street, Suite A Tillamook, Oregon 97141.

DON'T YOU WANT TO TAKE ME HOME?

Meet Laney

Laney was the last kitten to come around when socializing, and as reserved as she was to start, she is as affectionate now! Laney loves to pet you with her body, weaving back and forth for attention, purring all the while! She does well with kids! No dogs in foster home, but should be good with slow introduction. Laney is packed full of love to give, loves to sleep on her people and will sleep with you at night if allowed. Laney is part of a litter of 4, and is ready for her new forever.

Adoption fees range from $75-100

United Paws is not a shelter, and most of our cats and kittens are in foster homes getting ready to be in your home!
