First Salmonberry Trail segment to open in October

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

After ten years of building community partnerships, planning and fundraising, the first half mile of the Salmonberry Trail will open in Wheeler on October 7. Salmonberry Trail Foundation (STF) Executive Director Caroline Fitchett said that the segment should be followed by a segment in Washington County in 2027, and another in Rockaway Beach in the near future, and that other projects are coming into focus along the path of the trail as more communities buy into the vision.

“What’s so exciting about it though is that all these community partners see a value in the Salmonberry Trail,” Fitchett said, “and so they’re willing to extend themselves a little bit further than normal to be able to help make it happen as a partner.”

The Wheeler trail will run half a mile through downtown and will eventually extend north to Bott’s Marsh. The path will feature a gravel surface and be located to the north of the train tracks. Work is underway on a memorandum of understanding with the City of Wheeler and the Oregon Coast Scenic Railroad (OCSR) to establish a maintenance plan for the segment of trail and designs are being finalized.

Staff at the foundation are referring to the Wheeler segment as the demonstration trail, as it will not only be the first segment of the 82-mile trail to open but will also be collocated next to the OCSR’s trains, helping to establish best practices for other segments in Tillamook County that will need to share space with the railroad.

Next up for trail segments will be the catalyst loop in Washington

Fitchett said that the foundation is still working with Washington County on permitting, which they hope to complete by the end of this year, which would allow construc-

Oregon State Senator Suzanne Weber

Weber explains her focus in long session

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

Oregon State Senator Suzanne Weber has been spending much of her time during the long session concentrating on issues facing Oregon’s schools and transportation network.

Weber said that she and other members of the Joint Committee on Transportation are still working to get a handle on funding shortfalls at the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) and that she is a fan of certain aspects of Governor Tina Kotek’s education accountability plan but wants more details.

“It’s a real aggressive acknowledgement of problems that we have in education and there are some really good things in it,” Weber said, “and there are some things that you know, of course, I question, and I think there are some things that haven’t been included in it.”

As a member of the education committee, Weber has been involved in discussions about Kotek’s proposal, which would add new metrics to the state’s student success measurements and allow the state to direct spending of portions of districts’ funding if they failed to meet success goals repeatedly.

Weber said that she liked that the state was taking a comprehensive look at the system but said that she had questions about testing requirements and how administrators would be involved in accountability efforts and would like to see more details about those issues. “I’m not seeing the details in the broad picture regarding it and that’s what I’d like to see,” Weber said.

Weber also said that it was important to her that teachers be honored for their contributions and that she was supportive of other bills being advanced to help address the issue of chronic absenteeism.

On the transportation front, Weber said that even after two months in session, the joint transportation committee is still working to get a handle on the issues facing ODOT.

Twice a week, the committee is holding two-hour evening sessions with updates from the agency’s director and staff members, and Weber said that the sessions have been eye-opening.

“We walk out of those meetings after listening to the director and the members and you just shake your head,” Weber said, “like how

Rockaway Beach draft Source Water Protection Plan presented

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

After most of a year’s work, contractors from GSI Water Solutions Incorporated presented a draft of a Source Water Protection Plan for Rockaway Beach’s drinking watershed at a town hall on March 18.

Suzanne De Szoek and Mikaela Clarke, from GSI Water Solutions, discussed the plan’s background and the resulting document, which sets forth strategies to address potential threats to the city’s drinking water supply and secure it into the future.

De Szoek kicked off the town hall with a brief presentation on the plan, which is aimed at creating the Jetty Creek watershed whence the city’s drinking water is sourced. Oregon’s Department of Environmental Quality performed a source water assessment on the watershed in 2016 and the city applied to the Oregon Health Authority for a grant in 2023 to build on that work with a source water protection plan.

After being selected for the grant, the city contracted with GSI Water Solutions to complete the plan, with work beginning in the summer of 2024. De Szoek said that the committee had worked hard to solicit public input for the plan, including through multiple public meetings, an advisory committee and stakeholder work group.

The plan includes sections identifying and prioritizing risks in the watershed to the quality and quantity of water available to the city, strategies to reduce, mitigate or eliminate those risks, implementation plans for those strategies and contingency plans for securing the water source.

Clarke then discussed the risks facing the watershed, which were primarily posed by natural factors or forestry hazards. These risks include climate change, droughts and low water flows, erodible soils, landslides and earthquakes for natural factors, all of which Clarke said were relatively high risk, and clearcut harvests and pesticide spraying for forestry hazards.

De Szoek then pivoted into the strategies for protecting the watershed, which were divided into six groups.

Critical area protection strategies include the ongoing efforts by the city to either purchase the watershed or place it into conservation easements, either of which would allow the forest to be managed for water quality and quantity goals versus those of timber harvest.

Data collection and monitoring strategies would include testing of water quality and quantity to give a better understanding of the risks facing the watershed.

Watershed restoration activities would aim to enhance the watershed’s retention capabilities by increasing riparian buffers and removing invasive plants.

Work to control sedimentation and erosion would help to address high turbidity in Jetty Creek.

Integrating water plans with emergency and other city plans would help the city to be better prepared for disasters and the impacts of climate change.

Strategizing to improve communications will help to better engage landowners and other stakeholders in the protection process.

Water conservation measures will help to reduce the demand on the watershed by encouraging citizens to conserve the resource and helping to prevent loss by prevent-

OPRD hosts Manzanita beach driving public hearing

WILL CHAPPELL
Headlight Editor

As part of its rulemaking process, the Oregon Department of Parks and Recreation hosted a virtual town hall to gather public feedback on a proposed ban on beach driving in the City of Manzanita on March 24.

At the hearing, Oregon Parks and Recreation Department (OPRD) staffer Katie Gauthier and Manzanita Councilor Jerry Spegman discussed the proposed ban and a handful of commenters weighed in.

Currently, the beach in Manzanita is open to vehicle traffic between October 1 and May 30, between the hours of 7 a.m. and 12 a.m. for any vehicle and at any time for boat launching.

Spegman said that this state of affairs had been a concern in the community for at least the five years he has served as a city councilor, but that it was only recently the council became aware they could request a change in the rule.

The provision allowing driving on the beach was adopted at some point in the early 1990s, according to Spegman, and in the intervening years, circumstances in the town have changed, altering the safety calculus of having cars on the beach.

Spegman said that off-season tourism for various holidays and major weather events has significantly increased since the 1990s and that the full-time population of the city is older and more physically limited than in most cities across the state. Spegman said that the increase in population and demographics of the city created situations where residents felt unsafe on the beach because of cars, leading to the request for a change.

While the beach-driving allowance serves the purpose of giving mobility challenged individuals access to the beach, Spegman pointed out that OPRD issued permits to allow for similar access and that the town was home to a beach wheelchair from the nonprofit Da-vid's Chair.

Spegman also highlighted that Manzanita's council had discussed the requested driving ban during at least five meetings and that 40 written public comments had come in in favor of the ban, with only around 15 opposed. The principal opposition, accounting for 12 of the comments opposed to the change, came from citizens concerned about the impact on dory boats. In response to these concerns, Spegman said that he had reached out to the president of the Pacific City Dorymen's Association and confirmed that there was little or no dory activity happening on the Manzanita beach.

Ultimately, Spegman said that the council had made the request to try to address careless and dangerous vehicle usage, which while only perpetrated by a small group has caused issues.

Gauthier said that public comment on the issue would be accepted until April 7, and that the Oregon Parks and Recreation Commission would address the proposal at either their April or June meeting.

Following the presentation, four public commenters weighed in, with a Manzanita police officer speaking in support of the ban saying that there was a small group of people driving irresponsibly on the beach and causing issues. Two other commenters spoke in favor of the proposal, citing its positive environmental impacts, while one, who harvests driftwood on the beach, voiced his opposition.

Senators Starr and Weber Introduce SB 1201

Last week, Senator Bruce Starr (R-Dundee) and Senator Suzanne Weber (R-Tillamook) introduced Senate Bill 1201, a proposal to direct the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) to conduct a feasibility study on the potential construction of a new Columbia River bridge west of the Interstate 5 bridges. This critical first step will assess whether this major infrastructure investment would alleviate congestion in the Portland metro area.

“An additional bridge over the Columbia River connecting Washington and Columbia counties to Clark County and I-5 west of Vancouver is exactly the investment that needs a full review,” stated Senator Starr, vice-chair of the Joint Transportation Committee. “As leaders charged with developing transportation policy for the state, Senator Weber and I understand big challenges require forward thinking and addressing the future needs of our state. This bill is the first step in what will likely be a lengthy process.”

“This bridge would not only ease traffic for millions of Oregonians, but it would provide a lasting, multi-generational solution that will benefit our families and economy for years to come,” said Senator Weber, who also serves on the Joint Transportation Committee.

SB 1201 mandates that ODOT complete the study and submit a report to the Joint Committee on Transportation by September 15, 2026. The study will assess the feasibility and utility of constructing a bridge that would potentially steer I-5 traffic away from downtown Portland. The new bridge would be an extension of State Route 127 (Cornelius Pass Road) across State Highway 30 and connect with I-5 in Washington.

With the strategies for addressing the risks laid out, De Szoek moved on to the implementation portion of the plan, which was broken into three phases, the first of which is focused on data collection, establishing partnerships and addressing high-priority risks.

In this phase, De Szoek said the plan included the city continuing work on planning for acquisition or conservation easements for the watershed and developing a forest stewardship plan in relation to the critical area protection strategies.

For data collection, the plan recommends the city inventory its existing data and perform detailed risk analyses of critical areas in the watershed, partnering with outside organizations for technical assistance, if needed.

Work should begin on restoration of high-priority areas in the watershed, as well as projects for sediment and erosion control, which should be supported by geotechnical studies, as needed.

De Szoek said that the city should also prioritize working on updating its emergency and master plans to account for the source water protection plan in the first phase and continue its communication and conservation efforts.

The second and third phases of the implementation plan include longer-term goals, with the acquisition of the watershed incorporated in the second phase.

In addition to these elements, the plan also includes a prioritization list for water usage, an action checklist for emergency response and four stages of conservation for situations when water curtailment is necessary.

The plan will cover a 20-year period and will need to be approved by the city council before the Oregon

tion to begin in 2026, and the trail to open at some point in 2027.

Two other sections of trail, both in Tillamook County, are also in the planning stages: the 2.6-mile Rockaway Beach section and one at the Tillamook Creamery.

The Rockaway Beach path, which will run from Washington Street on the south end of the city to Neah-Kah-Nie High School at the north, is currently through 30% of the design phase. The city government now has an application into the Oregon Department of Transportation for a grant to complete design and construct the trail.

The section by the Tillamook Creamery, whose initial planning was supported by a grant from the Tillamook County Creamery Association will run north on Latimer Road but has been bogged down in a wetland delineation review by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for several years, and Fitchett said she has no timeline for a decision.

In addition to these in-progress trails, Fitchett said that she is also in discussions with leaders from Bay City about constructing a section of the trail between the city's pier and the Kilchis Point Reserve south of the city.

Fitchett said that she has also spoken with officials from Garibaldi, who are busy with other projects but expressed interest in future involvement, and Manzanita and Nehalem, who said they would like to see a trail spur extended to connect their communities.

As for the sections of trail outside of cities, more questions and challenges loom.

In the so-called river and canyons sections, between Wheeler and L.L. Stub Stewart State Park through the coastal range, major infrastructure projects to repair bridges and trusses damaged in the 2007 storm that brought commercial operations to a halt will be needed. Fitchett said that these projects would require state or federal funding and drove the estimated per-mile cost for the trail to $1 million.

Outside of those sections, there are also two notable choke points in Tillamook County, at the curve on Highway 101 right before Barview Jetty and as the railroad tracks run on a berm across Smith Lake just north of Barview Jetty. Fitchett said that building new infrastructure to accommodate the trail in these locations would also cost millions of dollars and said that there might be a solution where pedestrians could walk along the tracks with a gate to prevent access when a train approached.

For now, Fitchett said that the foundation is focusing on completing sections of trail where community partners are available. “There’s so many miles to work on that we are trying to work on the miles that have community partners that want to build it with us,” Fitchett said, “so that we have a partnership on the planning, partnership on the construction and then a partnership on the maintenance and operating of that segment.”

With work ramping up in Tillamook County, there are also increasing opportunities for residents to get involved. Fitchett said that the foundation will be hosting hikes on the trail in conjunction with Tillamook County Wellness this summer as they did last year and are planning to begin offering volunteer opportunities to remove invasive species and clear the tracks, as they have in Washington County.

Fitchett said that citizens interested in supporting the project could also reach out to elected officials to share their enthusiasm, noting that a group of Tillamook County residents had done just that by visiting the capitol last month to speak with legislators.

Weber said that ODOT projects were consistently running with huge overages and that one of the issues that staffers had identified for this was their bookkeeping software being inadequate, though it has recently been updated. The other issues facing the agency mainly relate to its revenue, Weber said, with electric and more fuel-efficient vehicles constricting the growth of gas tax revenues.

With more information still coming in, Weber said that the committee had not started to set forth a policy agenda and would wait until the hearings were complete. “We are not gravitating towards anything currently because we’re waiting for the whole picture,” Weber said.

Another proposal before the transportation committee is the possible institution of a tire tax, which Weber said she had reservations about. Weber worried that the proposed tax would negatively impact low- and fixed-income residents and questioned the plan to use the revenue for public transit projects.

“One issue that has come forward is what everyone has heard of and that’s the tire tax. That is very contentious because that tire tax is not going to go towards our roads, it’s going to go towards mass transit and bike routes and things like that and trains,” Weber said. “All are great ideas, but it doesn’t address the existing issues.”

FENCEPOSTS

The time has changed for the final presentation in the “Aging with Grace” series for Cape Meare-sians. The session will now be held from 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 5, at the Barbara Ben-nett Community Center. The topic is “Caring for Each Other After Death: Final Disposition and Ceremony Options.” Holly Pruett, funeral celebrant and community death educator, will ex-plain various choices in funeral options, from traditional burial and cremation to green burial and human composting. She will also share examples of conventional and innovative memorial cere-monies. Please join us for the last session in this important series.

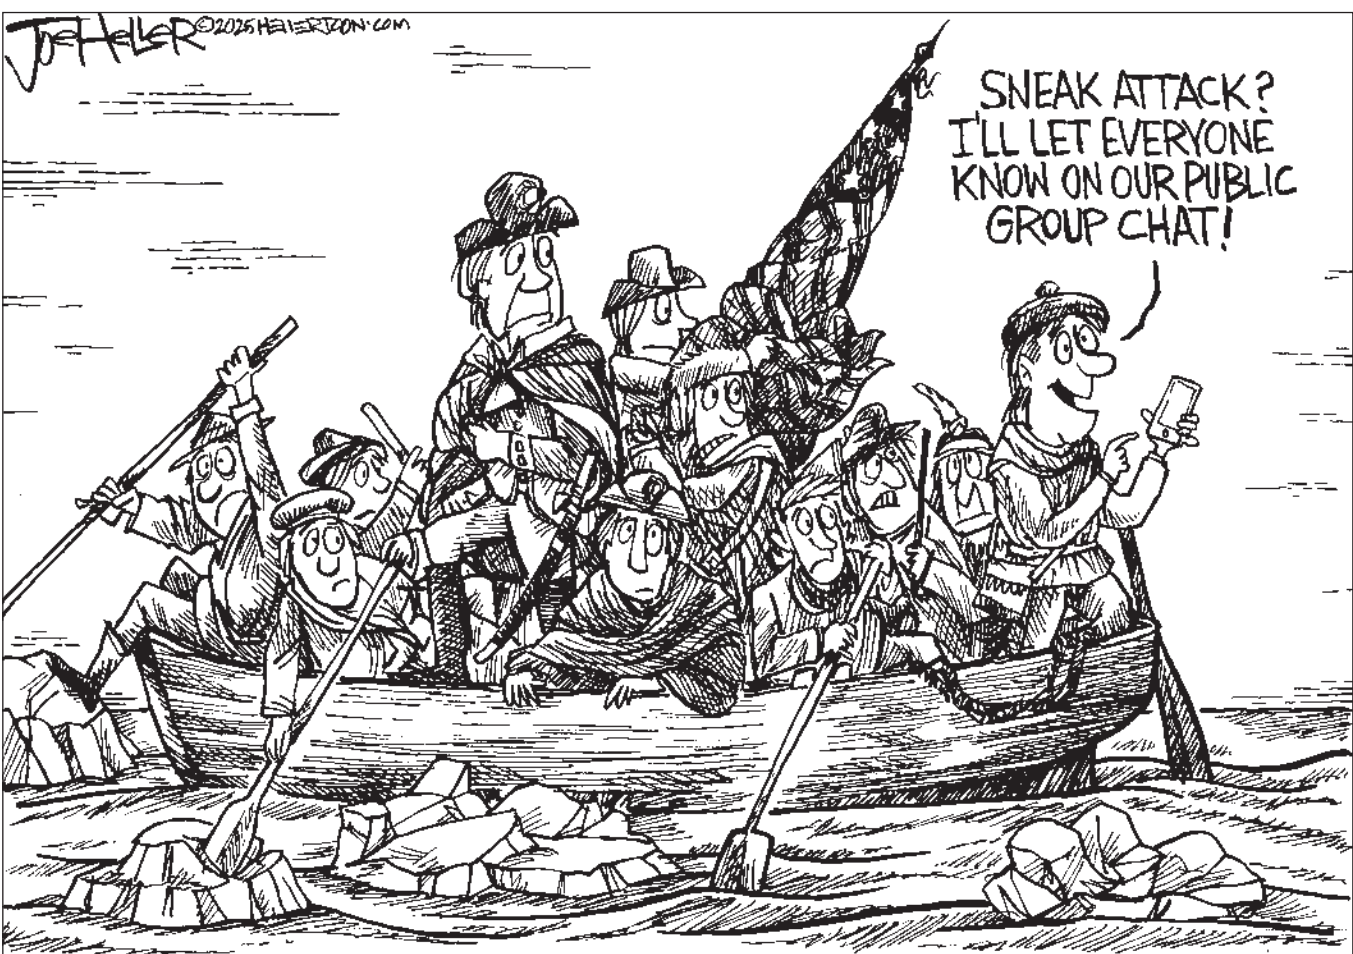

The Cape Meares Communi-ty Association’s (CMCA’s) annual meeting and banquet will be held Saturday, May 17, at 6 p.m. at the community center. Board members for 2025-2027 will be elect-ed at this meeting. There are currently 12 members on the CMCA board; however, the associa-tion’s bylaws allow for 15. If you are interested in joining the board, please contact Bev Stein at steinbeverly@gmail.com by April 10 to learn more.

Great news from our emergency preparedness team, the Cape Meares Emergency Volunteer Corps (CMEVC). CMCA was awarded a Tilla-mook County PUD grant to buy medical supplies for our disaster preparedness sheds. Many thanks to Miriam Fultz of Cape Meares, who led the charge on this effort. Kathy Burke, head of CMEVC, will be purchasing the new supplies and divid-ing them up among the sheds. CMEVC continues to be one of the leaders among Oregon coastal communi-ties in prepar-ing for emergencies, including the anticipated megathrust earthquake and its subse-quent tsunami waves. Spring break in Cape Meares got off to a wonderful start. A group of nine people hustled out to clean up our beach. Primavera, a recent graduate from Clackamas Com-munity College (CCC) who is interested in oceanography, or-ganized the effort to honor her mentor at CCC. A local contact at Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition helped Primavera accomplish this goal. Recent storms had swept in a lot of debris, so the group had quite a haul, including a tire, part of a mini-fridge, and a yellow speed bump. Fortunately, the rain held off during their clean-up. Many thanks to this awe-some crew.

We had our own spring breakers here, the Steen tsunami (our son and his three children, ages 22 months, 5 and 7—Mommy had to stay home and work). We looked for agates and built sand cas-tles, had a tea party, played board games, ate ice cream cones at the Creamery and fed the geese at the Blue Heron, created our own sundaes back home, vis-ited the pirate castle up by the Klobases’, made Easter cards, read books, conducted science experiments, and feasted on seafood (clams, crab, salmon, and tuna) and Grandma’s chocolate chip cookies. What a fun time we all had.

Looking for a great spring outing? Salty Raven is having a grand opening of its new store in Asto-ria on April 5 from 11 a.m.–6 p.m. This is the third re-tail storefront for Cape Meares artist Seasons Kaz Sparks, the owner of Salty Raven; her other two stores are in Tillamook and Cannon Beach. Salty Raven shops feature colorful apparel and home décor with Seasons’s signature coastal de-signs, from sea creatures to seascapes. The grand opening will feature some surprises and special deals on glassware/tote combos and free wine, so mosey on up to 1033 Marine Dr. in Astoria to join in the celebratory events on April 5. You may also shop online at saltyraven.net anytime. Con-gratulations to Seasons on Salty Raven’s expansion.

LETTERS TO T HE EDITOR

Defend Social Security

I was born here in Til-lamook a long time ago, and now live where I lived in the late 1930’s.

Much about the human condition has changed over the decades. In 1937-40 there were many people “on the road”, walking. Sleeping under bridges, or in a barn, if they were able to get away with it. Our house was about 300 yards from Highway 101. People would come to our door, asking for food. “Just a sandwich. Or any-thing”. Often, they would ask if they could work.

These were mostly good people who were jobless or had fallen through the cracks in our system. And the cracks in our system were numerous and wide. We did not have unemploy-ment benefits or any sort of food assistance. The unem-ployment rate was 14-19%. Our Social Security program had recently begun, but any payments for retirees were very small. Many were not covered by any program. My grandmother began teaching in Iowa in 1885 and retired here from Red Clover School in 1939 and had no retirement income.

Many of the people com-ing to the door were old.

Old, poor, and on the road. In Tillamook, a number of older people lived in two old hotels on First Street, between Main and Stillwell. One of these older men, Mr. Chamberlain, would very often hitch-hike out to our house and offer to do odd jobs...for his lunch.

Things are so much better now for almost all of us older people. Many of us have worked where we could participate in a retirement program; most of us paid into Social Security. Section 8 housing is available for some, and food assistance programs are a blessing for many. Our school breakfast and lunch programs improve both health and learning.

Some of these programs have already gone away in states in the Middle-West and South. Others, includ-ing Social Security, are under attack. Musk consid-ers Social Security to be a Ponzi Scheme. What?! I paid into it for most of the time from 1951-2020, first at the cheese factory and last as a substitute teacher. What is the end game for the oligarchs?

Funding cut impacts

Some news about how the Republican Administra-tion funding cuts to the US Department of Agriculture (USDA), and cuts to Soil and Water Conservation Districts (SWCD) are af-fecting Oregon farmers and ranchers is beginning to trickle in. Same goes for tariffs. The funding cuts that are happening at the federal level are and will continue to impact us here in Oregon.

For example, the funding freeze on USDA commodity purchases is resulting in truckloads of food that would have gone to hungry families and seniors who need the food, ultimately not getting it. This funding freeze can eventually affect foods available at Food Banks and for Meals on Wheels programs. Soil and Water Conservation District’s funding freezes mean grants already made for conserva-tion projects are or can stop, such as one grant funding freeze in Yamhill County to help farmers and ranchers preserve land. Another ex-ample is a grant made last year by the US Economic Development Administra-tion to develop year-round farmers markets in the Willamette Valley is in limbo.

Chapul Farms in Mc-Minnville received a $3.9 million USDA grant after Russia invaded Ukraine as part of the Department’s strategy to produce more fertilizer in the US and not import it from Russia. That grant is in limbo too. The Oregon Association of Nurseries, the industry association represent-ing Oregon’s $1.2 billion dollar nursery industry is already seeing the impacts of tariffs including can-cellations from Canadian customers who buy about 10% of Oregon’s exported plants. Farmers in Oregon and across the country depend on NOAA weather forecasts. NOAA is also on the Republican Administra-tion’s chopping block too. We need to ask questions and continue to reach out to our Members of Congress and our community leaders and local elected officials about the impacts of federal funding program and grant freezes are currently hap-pening in our community and could be affected in the future.

In a recent conversation with Mayor Charles McNeilly, we discussed the upcoming code changes required by SB 406. Enacted in 2023, SB 406 requires jurisdictions in Tillamook County to comply with state rules to allow middle housing. Middle housing fits between detached single-family homes at one end, and mid-rise housing on the other. On February 26, Cascadia Partners gave a presentation, listing duplex, triplex and fourplex construction as well as townhomes and “cottage cluster” style housing. The chief advantage of middle housing is to make it easier for people to live where they work, by expanding the range of affordable homes in towns and cities throughout Tillamook County. Affordable housing was mentioned in a number of initiatives during last year’s Strategic Plan development

in Rockaway Beach. Many people cited the challenge for workers here to pay for housing close to work and schools. In Rockaway Beach, current residential zoning laws allow for single-family homes, duplexes and townhomes. SB 406 gives some flexibility in how revised zoning laws can address the specific characteristics of middle housing. Key considerations for expanding middle housing are size and density regulations, as well as garage and driveway standards. The issue of size restrictions breaks down as follows: Middle housing without size restrictions allows more flexibility to build units of any size, as long as standards for setbacks, height limits and lot coverage are met.

Establishing size limits would result in smaller units, which in turn could provide more affordable housing. Furthermore, smaller buildings could be more compatible with existing single-family homes in a neighborhood. An interesting idea that’s been floated is permitting detached duplex and other multiplex constructions. The typical duplex is a single structure comprising two separate dwelling units with individual entries, but on a single foundation or footprint. Typically referred to as “attached buildings” on a single lot, multiplex housing is the familiar layout common to municipalities in many counties. The new zoning laws consider establishing what would be detached duplexes without a common wall, similar to single-family homes but with smaller easements or setbacks between them. Each unit, according to the Cascadia Partners presentation, would remain the same size whether attached or detached, but builders and property owners would have more choices as to layout and construction. One key benefit is that this could permit construction on sloping ground. Traditional duplexes typically require the full foundation to include both (or all, for 3- or 4-plex construction) units being contiguous on a single foundation. Detached construction would allow for multiple standalone residences on lots which, due to slope or other issues, would not support a single foundation large enough for the number of units. The Cascadia Partners presentation asserted that detached housing allows for less complex building code requirements, when compared with attached units, as well as adding flexibility to site planning. Detached housing also makes it easier to preserve existing single-family homes on the site, as well as more opportunity to preserve trees. Finally, detached housing could create more opportunities for home ownership. In opposition to detached housing, Cascadia pointed out that having multiple detached homes on the same site is uncommon today. This could mean that such construction is viewed as incompatible with existing neighborhoods. Furthermore, detached housing is generally less energy efficient than building attached units, due to temperature loss through multiple external walls and windows. Adopting driveway and garage standards also poses questions. With design standards, the homes and landscaping are the key visual elements; furthermore, the standards can be designed to make it safer for pedestrians and to be more compatible with existing, historic homes and businesses. On the other hand, some standards could complicate designs and lead to less on-site parking. Proceeding without modified standards could lead to more parking, more flexibility, and better alignment with existing code. Conversely, garages and driveways can dominate the street view and could affect safety and walkability for pedestrians, an important consideration for visitors and residents alike. SB 406 is required to be implemented by June 30, 2025. If you have questions or concerns, Mayor McNeilly recommended attending planning commission meetings, which take place on the third Thursday of the month in City Hall, 276 Highway 101, at 5 p.m.

Screen Today for a Healthy Tomorrow

Colorectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer-related deaths among men, but it is also one of the most preventable with regular health screenings. A screening test is used to look for a disease when a person doesn’t have any symptoms. According to the US Preventive Services Task Force, adults should receive their first screening for colorectal cancer soon after turning 45 and then continue screening on regular intervals. If you have a family history of colorectal cancer, talk to your doctor sooner. They can help you decide which type of test would be best for you. Health screenings are a covered benefit for most insurance plans, including Oregon Health Plan.

CARLA ALBRIGHT

Here we are, officially in Spring and the Spring bloomers have started to show some color. Daffodils, tulips, witch hazel and camellias are well underway to make our lives more colorful.

But in addition to plants sprouting as a sure sign of spring, the 2025 Class of Master Gardeners has wrapped up their lessons and are ready to go out into the public to address questions and problems that gardeners might have. And the Tillamook County Master Gardener Association has a couple of things to help non-Master Gardeners make better use of their garden spaces.

First is a series of classes on April 12, 2025, that will offer subjects such as backyard birding, using plant ID apps, composting in cold weather, home greenhouses and cooking with herbs. The classes will be held from 9-10:30 a.m. or 10:40-12:10 p.m. and are taught by Tillamook Master Gardeners. Cost is $10 per class, and you can even bring a soil sample for a free pH test. Call OSU Extension Office for more information at 503.842.3433 or at: <https://beav.es/NJC>. The Spring Classes won't have walk-in capabilities so please pre-register at that link.

Secondly, if you have wanted to put in a vegetable garden or learn how to make your current garden better, consider the free, 3-part Seed to Supper classes to be held at the OSU Extension Office on April 15, 22, and 29, 2025. The classes run from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in two modules each of the three days. Each module will have a lecture and discussion period as well as hands-on activities.

I was pleased to learn that Oregon State University was instrumental in developing this program in 2007 in conjunction with the Oregon Food Bank. A form of this program is now used across the United States. Originally seen as a way to target individuals with food insecurity to help them become more self-sufficient on a limited budget, it has now evolved to include anyone who needs the tools to grow their own food successfully. The Food Bank started overseeing the administration of Seed to Supper, with the Master Gardeners doing the educational aspects. Now the MG's have geared the program to individual areas and have taken over the entire program.

The classes will cover a variety of areas from finding the best place to put your veggie patch, preparing the soil, how to best support the garden during the growing season, and Integrated pest management best practices.

Space is limited, so registration is required. Go to: <https://beav.es/N3y> and fill out the online form. Alternatively, call the OSU Extension Office at the number above.

The Master Gardeners' Plant Clinics will be staffed soon with experienced Master Gardeners as well as the new class of apprentices. And mark May 3rd on your calendars for the Tillamook Master Gardener's Annual Plant Sale at the Fairgrounds Horse Arena. Doors open at 9:00 a.m. and the sale finishes at 1 p.m. There are many vegetable starts including tomatoes, lettuces and squash as well as annuals and ornamental perennials and biennials. There will also be a wide variety of vendors coming to the sale this year. It's always a fun day.

With grocery store prices skyrocketing, maybe this is the year to grow some fresh vegetables yourself. It would be nice to go to your backyard for the fixings for your salad rather than the grocery store.

Joan Petty
Sept. 5, 1931 - Feb. 4, 2025

Heaven welcomed its newest pianist with the recent passing of Joan Petty. Joan was born in Tillamook on September 5, 1931, to August and Dorothy Boquist. She joined big brother Clarence (Bub) and spent her childhood on her family's farm. Joan passed away on February 4, 2025, surrounded by her children.

Joan had three loves – Jesus, her family, and her music. It was through her music that Joan was perhaps best known within the Tillamook community – and where she truly came alive. Joan discovered her passion for music at the tender age of three, playing tunes on her grandmother Boquist's piano by ear. Her musical journey began in earnest at five, when Grandma B passed and left her piano to Joan.

Joan's musical talent was undeniable. As an elementary school student, Joan quickly became the go-to accompanist for plays and musical events at the Maple Leaf school. Her dedication to music continued through high school, where she accompanied almost everyone in the choir and even taught piano to younger students.

After high school, Joan attended the University of Oregon, but her studies were cut short by her father's passing. She returned home and began teaching piano, a vocation that would bring her immense joy and fulfillment for decades. Joan's move to Texas in 1954 saw her playing the organ at church and teaching piano to numerous students.

Returning to Oregon in 1967, Joan continued to share her love of music with others. Over the next 58 years, Joan would go on to play for Idaville Bible and Bethel Baptist churches and accompany many talented musicians through Monday Musical; TAPA; Starlight Academy; Tillamook High School musicals; the Tillamook Community Chorus; Stardust Trio; Chocolate Mousse; Four by Grace Quartet with her eldest son, Gary; and countless funerals, weddings, and community events. Joan also taught ~1,200 students, including her daughter Denise and several grandchildren, and played at Carnegie Hall. It was a joy to see Joan still musically active at the time of her death.

Joan passed her musical talent (and boisterous laugh!) to several family members – and some of her happiest musical memories were the times she accompanied her children and grandchildren.

Joan is survived by her children, Gary Petty (Sue), Ron Petty (Margaret), and Denise Harvey (Greg); grandchildren Donna Petty-Phillips (Joe), Amy Leger (Jason), Matthew Petty (Kelsey), Pamela Jones, Alena Harvey, and Jennifer Trout (Casey); nine great-grandchildren; four great-great-grandchildren; and dozens of friends she loved like family.

Joan's family will host an open Celebration of Life on Saturday, April 26, 11:30 AM at the First Christian Church. Reception to follow.

Your presence would be greatly appreciated in lieu of flowers.

Steven Wayne Morris
May 28, 1968 - March 12, 2025

Steven Wayne Morris, aka 'Uncle Gumby', was born May 28th, 1968 to Sharon Perkins Burdick. He passed away unexpectedly, but peacefully March 12th, 2025 at his home in Tillamook Oregon, where he had spent most of his life.

Some of Steve's hobbies were fishing, gardening, rock hunting, but his favorite hobby was being a Dad and a Papa. He loved working with his hands and was always willing to lend a helping hand when needed. That is why he became a handyman. Everyone that knew Steve personally knows what a great loss this has been. He was one of the kindest, most caring, loving, and hardest working gentlemen there ever was. He truly had a 'heart of gold'.

Steve is preceded in death by his father, Frank Perkins.

He is survived by his mother, Sharon Perkins Burdick; his daughter, Leah Moose (Anthony Moose); granddaughters, Ember and Hali Moose; his sister, Terri Lancaster (Jimmy Lancaster); brothers, Donny Morris (Joanna Morris) and Mike Wert (Wendy White); nephews, Jacob Morris (Erin Savage) and Cooper Morris; great-nephew, Dasan Morris including many other extended family members, and a large community of friends.

Steve will be greatly missed by so many people, and we thank you for all your love and support during this time.

A Celebration of Life will be held this summer at the Swiss Hall in Tillamook, Oregon. Mark your calendars for June 7, 2025 at 2pm. It will be a potluck (main course provided), so please bring a side dish, and your favorite memory of Steve to share.

FENCEPOSTS

Happy April Fool’s Day. Hope someone played a joke for you.

Readers may be wondering why I haven’t written a column in a while. I have just returned from a month-long trip to England, which is where I was born and grew up, primarily to visit my 93-year-old mother. She still lives on her own, and although she is physically somewhat frail, mentally she’s very sharp. She lives in a small, very vibrant village in Dorset in the south-west of England. It’s about 4 miles to the beach from the village. They have a village hall which is basically a community center, with lots of activities such as community lunches, exercise classes, and movie and game nights. I always enjoy being there, spending time with my mother and seeing old friends. Wild swimming is very popular in England, and when I’m there I always go with a couple of friends. It’s cold in the English Channel, but it’s very exhilarating. We only stay in the water about nine or ten minutes, but it makes you feel great the rest of the day. I’d love to be able to do it here, but our ocean is just too wild and not safe. A friend stayed at my house while I was gone and took care of the house and my very naughty cat. It’s nice to be home and back in my own bed.

Happy birthday wishes go out to Verletta Dupuis, who recently celebrated her 93rd birthday.

There are some fun activities coming up in April at the Bay City Arts Center. For those who enjoy music, set your calendar for April 17th at 7 p.m. Amanda Stanaway and Stan Cassell will be performing gusty folk music. Doors open at 6:30, cost is $20, and $10 for students. April 19th from 10 a.m.

to 3 p.m. an Intro to Stained Glass course will be held. The class will be taught by William Reichle, and all materials will be included. Cost is $60. For tuition assistance-mail baycityartscenter@gmail.com. Wednesday evenings is the weekly open art night from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. so come on down and bring your projects and socialize and get creative.

The annual State of the City will be held on Saturday, April 26 at City Hall beginning at 2 p.m. This is always a fun event, with lots of food, displays and information about our town and a great place to meet and visit with your neighbors and find out what’s happening in Bay City.

Mook baseball off to hot start with 5 win streak

By Mike Weber
For The Headlight Herald

The Tillamook High Cheesemakers (5-1) have had a great start to their OSAA Class 4A baseball season with a five-game win streak propelling the team to an impressive No. 4 ranking. The Cheesemakers played in the Oregon Coast Invitational Tournament last week in Newport and they won three nonleague games, capped by a 5-3 victory Mar. 26 over the Stayton High Eagles (0-3). The Mooks, guided by fifth-year Coach Matt Strang, also won 18-11 over the Marshfield High Pirates (0-4) and 6-4 over the sixth-ranked Molalla High Indians (2-2) in a Mar. 25 double-header.

“This is the best start to a season that we’ve had since I’ve been the head coach,” said Strang. “We have a very good team that has a lot of talent. Our season opener (a 12-0 loss to Newport on Mar. 17) was a tough game and we were a little nervous with first game jitters. Since then, we’ve played a lot better and we’re playing with a high confidence level now. We’re hitting the ball well; we’re scoring lots of runs and the team is playing really good defense too.” The Mooks are much improved from a year ago when then had a 4-8 Cowapa League record (9-14 overall) and finished in third place in the five team standings. The Mooks qualified for an OSAA Play-In matchup, which they lost

8-0 to the Gladstone High Gladiators on May 17, 2024, to end their season. This year’s squad is led by a quartet of returning Cowapa All-League players in juniors Jakoby Goss and Josh Manns, and sophomores Kevin Hurliman and Wrigley Percy. The Mooks are going to be a contender for the league title this year along with the defending state and league champion Scappoose High Indians (2-3). Scappoose is an experienced squad with 13 players returning from last year’s state championship team. “Josh is a really good team leader and Jakoby, Kevin and Wrigley are real hard working guys who are not quite as vocal, but they lead by example,” said Strang. “Jakoby has been almost automatic in getting hits at nearly every at-bat and he’s just hitting great.” Percy, the Mooks top pitcher, had seven strikeouts and allowed just one hit in four and one third innings in 15-0 win over Madras Mar. 21. In the win over Molalla, Percy had 10 strikeouts and threw a five-hitter in a solid complete game performance to help lead the Mooks to the victory. Percy has allowed a total of just six hits, and he has a 2.03 earned run average. In the win over Stayton, Hurliman had an outstanding performance on the mound as well in pitching a one-hitter with five strikeouts. Goss has been a solid relief pitcher too, coming in late to close out games and help the Mooks pull out victories. Goss is the Mooks top hitter with an impressive .696 batting average and he has three triples, four doubles and 14 RBI. Junior Peyton Troxel is another offensive leader with a batting average of .353 and he’s scored a total of eight runs. Percy is also batting solidly with a .333 average. The Mooks have a team batting average of .314 and they’ve amassed a total of 50 hits and 36 strikeouts. Sophomore catcher Vincent Maciel has been leading the Mooks defense too with his solid performance behind the plate. “We have some guys who didn’t hit very good last year who have improved and stepped up and are hitting much better this season, including Peyton and Wrigley,” said Strang, who is hoping to lead the Mooks to the state playoffs for the first time since 2022. “With the talent we have, we know that we’re a top 10 team, we expect to reach the playoffs and I feel like we can have a good run in the postseason.” The Mooks will be seeking to extend their win streak Thursday in a 4:30 p.m. nonleague home game versus the Class 3A Banks High Braves (1-1). They’ll follow that contest with another nonleague game Saturday at 2 p.m. against the La Grande High Tigers at Philomath High School. The Mooks start their 12-game Cowapa League schedule April 8 on the road against the St. Helens High Lions (3-3).
