New moniker flying high at Air Museum Blimp built by TBCC Welding class new marquee

Staff

Last Wednesday, Port employees along with the staff of William Wallace Welding and Burden's Towing and Crane service placed a blimp replica on the same poll the displayed for the past 25-years, a US Navy A-4 SKYhawk. The blimp was designed by draftsman Rachael Voss and build and welded by TBCC's welding class headed by Ron Carlborn.

For 25 years a United States Navy A-4 Skyhawk aircraft on the corner of Hwy 101 and Long Prairie Road has greeted travelers and residents on their way into Tillamook, standing guard over the city.

Due to Navy requests along with the plane needing some work, it was time to come up with another moniker that would replace the Skyhawk.

"It's in fairly poor shape," said Rita Welch, The Tillamook Air Museum Director. Welch has been advocating to take the plane down for the last few years.

"It's not sustainable and it's not meeting the museum's mission," she said. "We want to bring it in inside, clean it up, and put it on display properly where it can educate people about Naval aircraft during the Vietnam War era."

The A-4 Skyhawk was put up in 1997 much to the dismay of the Navy, which owns the aircraft and several others in the museum. The Navy has said in order for it to stay on display outside it has to be painted to their specifications and properly taken care of.

"The cost associated with keeping it maintained while it's still on the stick is just too high," Welch said, "whereas if it was inside the museum we can display it properly, appease the Navy, and meet our mission of preservation and education."

Originally, the Port of Tillamook Bay Board of Commissioners contemplated replacing it with another aircraft, however Welch said the only reason the A-4 Skyhawk has lasted this long is because it's a Navy aircraft made out of metal. Replacing it with a civil aircraft would likely deteriorate in a few years. Its replacement would have to be something iconic, would last and have significance to the Air Museum.

That's when Welch pitched the idea of replacing it with a 3-D metal rendering of a K-Class Blimp – a symbolic reminder of Naval Air Station Tillamook and its heritage as a WWII dirigible hangar that served and protected the community.

Luckily, Welch knew just who to talk to in order to get the ball rolling.

"I knew Tillamook Bay Community College had a welding program, and I thought, what a great project for them to work on," she said. "This is something that people will see for years to come as they drive into Tillamook, and it will be something these welding students created and get to be proud of. TBCC is a backdrop to this community and one of our other goals with this project was the chance to highlight the great work that they are doing."

Ron Carlborn, the Welding Technology faculty at TBCC, jumped at the idea. His students have been steadily working on fabricating the metal rendering

Oregon's Unemployment Rate Holds Steady at 3.5% in July

Staff

Oregon's unemployment rate was 3.5% in July, unchanged from 3.5%, as revised, in June. The U.S. unemployment rate was also 3.5% in July. Oregon's unemployment rate has tracked very closely with the national unemployment rate for the past two years, with both rates declining rapidly during May 2020 through early 2022 as the economies recovered. Over the past five months, unemployment rates for the U.S. and Oregon have averaged 3.6%, near record lows dating back almost 50 years.

The labor market is tight, and many people have gotten back to work. Over the past two years, Oregon's labor force participation rate rose rapidly. The share of the population 16 and older that is either employed or unemployed reached 63.5% in July, its highest rate in a decade.

In Oregon, nonfarm payroll employment grew by 4,200 in July, following gains averaging 6,300 jobs in the prior eight months. Monthly gains in July were largest in leisure and hospitality (+1,500 jobs), other services (+1,400), manufacturing (+1,300), and private educational services (+1,300). Retail trade (-700 jobs) was the only major industry that shed a substantial number of jobs.

As of July, Oregon has regained 94% of jobs lost at the onset of the pandemic. The U.S. has regained 100%. Oregon's private sector is close to a full jobs recovery, having regained 99% of pandemic recession losses. However, Oregon's government sector has only regained 49% of the jobs it lost during March through June 2020.

Professional and technical services was one of the fastest growing industries over the past two years. It added 1,900 jobs in July and has grown by 10,400 jobs since February

Tillamook Swiss Centennial slated for Nov. 5 at county fairgrounds

One hundred years ago in 1922, a group of Swiss families formed the Tillamook Swiss Society. They wanted to honor their cultural heritage and settlement in Tillamook County. The families celebrated each year with traditional dances, music and food, and have continued as a community nonprofit.

This year the celebration is a very special centennial event, to be held Saturday, Nov. 5 at the Tillamook Fairgrounds. Activities start at 10:30am with the Fun Run Check-in, and keep going until 11pm. Highlights include the Lederhosen 5K Fun Run; Corn Hole tournament; Crowned Schwingfest; Stein-tossen; axe throwing; Little Swiss Contest; and Swiss music and dance throughout the day, with a Swiss Stomp at 7pm.

Also making an appearance is 4th generation dairy farmer, Derrick Josi, known around the world as TDF Honest Farming, and the 2022 Tillamook June Dairy Ambassador Court – all coming from Tillamook Swiss Pioneer families. And the Tillamook County Quilt Guild opens at noon with the Tidal Treasures

Quilt Show celebrating 100 years of quilting and raffle. Holly the Trolley will provide free shuttle service around the fairgrounds from 12:30 to 6pm, thanks to the Tillamook County Transportation District.

COVID-19 forecast raises flu concern

ERIK ROBINSON
Herald Guest Article

A vigorous return of influenza may outpace COVID-19 in driving hospitalizations in Oregon over the fall and winter, according to the latest statewide biweekly forecast from Oregon Health & Science University (OHSU).

The latest forecast continues to show a steady decline in the number of hospitalized patients with COVID-19 in Oregon.

Pressing concern

A total of 253 people were hospitalized with COVID-19 as of Sept. 14, with the OHSU forecast projecting the number continuing to decline through the end of October, until

With ‘Sew Little Time,’ go quilt shopping

Chelsea Yarnell
Guest Contributor

Colorful fabrics, quilt examples, and sewing supplies line the aisles of Tillamook’s newest quilting store.

In Debbie Fox’s converted garage, she’s created a quilters oasis.

“I love quilts and I love fabric,” Fox said. “I had wanted to do an online store, but when BJ’s Fabric & Quilts closed in Cloverdale, I thought we needed a brick and mortar store. People are excited because it is at my house so we’re able to keep our prices down.”

Fox opened ‘Sew Little Time’ this summer selling fabric, patterns, completed quilts, and other quilted projects in her 1,200-square foot space.

“I personally like to shop for fabric in person,” Fox said. “I like to see it and feel it. I like to put something together from nothing and have a beautiful, finished product when you’re done.”

I wanted to share that love with other people.”

Fox knows what it’s like to be a new quilter and hopes to assist those who wish to learn how to quilt.

“I really try to focus our kits on beginning quilters,” Fox said. “That was something that was really hard for me when I was first starting out: it was really hard to figure out what fabrics go together. We can break down the steps for customers. I think that encourages people to see that they can do it.”

Fox will also start offering classes this fall centered around creating quilted Christmas gifts such as table toppers and bucket hats.

“A lot of people want to know how to quilt, but don’t know how,” Fox said. “They have a sewing machine in the closet, but don’t know how to thread it.”

If that sounds familiar, Fox encourages those who are interested in learning a new skill to reach out via Facebook or stop by the shop for class information. Class sizes will be limited to five people to allow for personalized instruction.

Sew Little Time is located at 10075 S. Prairie Rd., Tillamook. Open Tuesday-Saturday, 10 am – 4 pm.

picking up again in November as immunity wanes and people increasingly gather indoors, according to OHSU’s Senior Media Specialist Erik Robinson.

The new forecast raises a more pressing concern about influenza — a virus that has been all but absent for the past two and a half years.

“Your flu vaccine is extremely important this year — and certainly more than it has been in the last two years, when we had virtually no flu that was circulating,” OHSU Office of Advanced Analytics Director Peter Graven said. “The flu is probably going to be at least as important this year as COVID.”

Graven cites relatively high rates of influenza starting early in some areas of the Southern Hemisphere, where influenza typically circulates in their winter months, from April to October.

The public’s willingness to wear masks, limit indoor gatherings and take other public health measures limited the spread of COVID-19 over the past two and a half years, according to OHSU School of Medicine Professor of Pediatrics Dr. Dawn Nolt.

All of those public health measures also minimized the circulation of flu.

However, Nolt said the lack of exposure to influenza over the past two years also means that the immune system lacks practice in fighting off the influenza virus. This, in turn, portends a potentially vigorous flu season when the virus begins circulating this fall and winter.

“In normal years, lots of people are exposed to the flu, which provides a natural boost to their immune response,” she said. “We haven’t seen much flu at all in the past three years. That makes it really important to get yourself vaccinated against flu this season.”

Flu vaccines are widely available at pharmacies and health care systems across the region.

In addition to the availability of the flu vaccine, the new bivalent booster vaccine against COVID-19 arrived in Oregon last week, targeting the BA.4 and BA.5 variants along with the original strain of the SARS-CoV-2 virus that causes COVID-19. The current number of COVID-19 cases is far below the 1,178 people hospitalized with COVID-19 during the peak of the delta wave on Sept. 1, 2021.

Nolt encourages people to get both the COVID-19 booster and annual flu shot as soon as they’re eligible and the shots are available.

School district advisory School district officials are encouraging parents not to send their children to school if they have any of these symptoms:

- Fever greater than 100 degrees. Students may return to school only if their temperatures have been consistently below 100 degrees by mouth for at least 24 hours.
- Vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Chills
- Fatigue, discomfort, weakness, or muscle aches
- Congested or wet cough

2020. Over the past 12 months, architectural and engineering services added 1,700 jobs, or 9.4%, which was the highest growth rate of the component industries within professional and technical services.

Retail trade has inched downward since late last year. In July, it dropped to 209,000 jobs, which is back to where it was in late 2016. Over the past 12 months, the weakest retail trade sectors were building material and garden supply stores (-1,700 jobs) and general merchandise stores (-2,400 jobs).

of building a new life for their families and creating a community,” said Julie Hurliman, a 4th generation Tillamook Swiss and the Community and Industry Programs Manager for Tillamook Coast Visitors Association. “With their hard work, collaboration and resilience, they laid the foundation for the area’s cheese making business — now a nationally known brand. I’m thrilled to be able to celebrate the cultural bonds of our community.”

The Centennial is a community sponsored event, thanks to Werner Gourmet Meat Snacks Company, Tillamook Creamery, Fibre Federal Credit Union, Pelican Brewing, Jenck Farms, Tillamook People’s Utility District, Rosenberg Builders Supply, Oregon Coast Bank, Umpqua Bank, Tillamook

YMCA, Northwest Dance Academy, TP Freight Lines, Tillamook Trashers, Tillamook Swiss Society, and Tillamook Coast Visitors Association.

Admission to the event is free; food and beverages are available onsite for purchase. There are fees for the Fun Run, Corn Hole tournament and axe-throwing.

Lederhosen Fun Run, Schwingfest competition, Corn hole tournament, Pioneer quilt show, music, dancing, good beer and Swiss-style food makes the day a celebration of cultural heritage you will not want to miss.

of a blimp for the last few months, and anticipate having it completed by the end of spring.

“This is a pretty significant project for us,” Carlborn said. “It’s a fantastic feeling to get to work on something that will have such an impact on our community. It’s a wonderful town and it’s been very good to me, so this feels like a way that I can give back. And at the same time, we get to show off a little because we are showing the whole community that this is what our welding students are capable of.”

Welch added that she was drawn to the idea of a blimp because the museum is housed in one of the last remaining WWII blimp hangars in the country, and the only one open to the public. The blimp measures 25 feet long, and six feet in diameter.

Several of Carlborn’s stick and mig welding students have been working on the blimp project in some capacity for the last two years when Welch originally approached them with the idea.

“The plane is so iconic, to replace it with this blimp is going to be a really big deal,” said Morgan Waldhart, a second-year welding student.

While the Port of Tillamook Bay is aware there will be some community heart burn regarding the plane coming down, the Port Commissioners are in agreement that it is what’s best for the plane and the museum.

“Bringing it down was not an easy decision,” said Port of Tillamook Bay Commissioner Sierra Lauder. “It’s been on our radar for a long time, but the struggle has been finding something equally iconic to replace it with and there couldn’t be a better outcome than what we’ve put together... And while we’ve anticipated that the community might not be overly enthusiastic about this decision, what we’re seeing instead is that people who have some affiliation with the military are coming forward and saying they really understand that the plane in its current location is not particularly respectful. So it’s been nice to hear from those veterans who recognize this move as being a way to actively honor that plane and its history.”

“The number one thing to keep in mind is that we are here for education and preservation,” Welch added. “So we are choosing to be the best stewards we can be of the aircraft.”

Welch said the A-4 Skyhawk will be on display immediately after it comes down while they refurbish it. “We have rehabbed several planes at this point, so I am confident we can do a good job in house that will please the Navy,” she said. “And it will be exciting for people to get to see it up close for the first time.”

The project is being partially funded through Visit Tillamook Coast.

What a way to mark a milestone! It was Kevin Burke’s 70th birthday, and he put his stamp on the occasion by catching a gorgeous, bright hatchery Chinook from the Memaloose pool. Hatchery salmon are few and far between; a good half-dozen wild salmon had to be released in Tillamook Bay on the same morning that Kevin caught his birthday fish. May the fishing gods continue to be with you, Kev, as you enter this next decade.

Merrie Ziady recently shared some aerial pictures retired pilot friends of hers had taken of Cape Meares. How fun to see those! More houses than I expected, but it is true that building has stepped up here in the past few years. You will be glad to know Cape Meares looks just as great from above as it does from the ground.

It was disappointing that the Memaloose boat launch did not get dredged during the permissible summer time frame. Permits had been obtained, but so late that a contractor was unable to be retained for that time period. The county hopes to get the job done over the winter, but it is sure far more difficult then, given periodic flooding and nighttime instead of day-time minus tides (the ramp is most accessible for dredging during ultra-low tides). The good news is that there are plans to improve the parking lot. Temporary restriping was just completed; it will be followed by permanent striping and a sealant after the dredging project has been completed. We and all the other fisherfolk are looking forward to the start and finish of this much-needed maintenance of the Memaloose boat launch, which serves both the local populace and tourists to our county.

A small but vocal group from Cape Meares traveled to Seattle for the PAC 12-Big 10 matchup between the Washington Huskies and the Michigan State Spartans. Carolyn and Olli Ollikainen, Dave Audet, and Sue Drafahl Capt. Pete and two neighbors brought home 23 crabs one recent Monday. This time of year, the crabs are starting to get harder shells and have more meat in them. Even after splitting the take, we had enough crab for company visiting from the valley, a crab boil with three neighbors, and some left over to pick and vacuum-pack for the winter. Way to go, Capt. Pete and crew!

Betsy Jeronen contacted me in a follow-up to last week’s mention of the Sacred Harp shape-note singing that recently took place in our Barbara Bennett Community Center. She is the chair of the Cape Meares gathering. She said that the group sings all day on the Saturday after Labor Day each year, and the neighborhood is always invited to come listen and/or sing with them. Thanks for that welcoming note, Betsy.

last week. Attendees included Nancy Whitehead and Joan Wilke. I am embarrassed to admit that I was so busy at work that I didn’t even get an e-mail written to announce my absence. They discussed “Who Cooked the Last Supper” by Rosalind Miles. I purchased a copy of the intriguing book, but have yet to start it. Instead, I read last month’s selection, “Between The World and Me” by Ta-Nehisi Coates. It is beautifully written and I agree with Toni Morrison that it is “required reading.” I loved it.

October Focus: Drugs and Sharps

As the rains arrive, it’s easy to realize how closely we interact with water. This time of year, and for the next several months, it will seem as though we have an abundance of water – as the grass again turns green and we walk through puddles on a daily basis.

As a community that deals with a lot of water each year, we place a special value on the cleanliness of that water. We admire the hues of blue and green as fresh rainwater interacts with saltwater in the bay, each day presenting us with different portraits of coastal living.

It may be for that reason that Tillamook County residents drop off unused prescription and over-the-counter drugs through proper channels, rather than flushing them down the toilet, which they eventually make it into the water where our salmon swim. Fortunately, those “proper channels” are becoming more and more convenient. In addition to secure drop off sites at the Sheriff’s Office and several police stations, you can now find secure drug drop off kiosks at most local pharmacies, where you can drop off unused drugs while waiting for your prescription to be filled. Several city halls and fire stations also have mail-back envelopes available for the public to obtain and use.

On the last Saturday in October we will again be hosting a collection event at the Fairgrounds, where you will be able to drop off unused drugs, as well as sharps (needles, syringes). The sharps must be in a hard, red plastic sharps container, but you can drop off one or more containers with our staff on that day – at no charge.

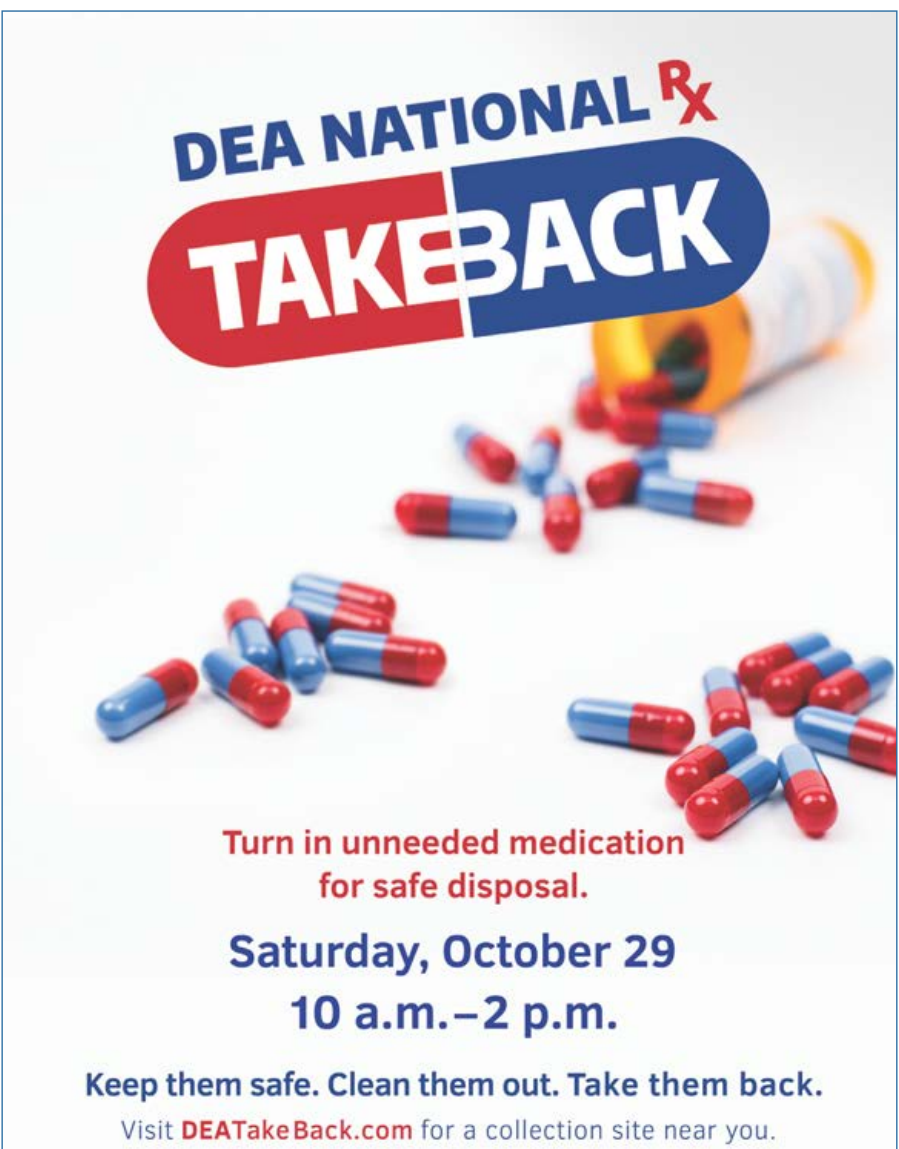

Thank you for doing the right thing, and disposing of your unused drugs and sharps in a safe, secure, proper manner!

OPINION

BUZZ ABOUT BEES - SEPTEMBER IN THE APIARY

Claire Moody
Tillamook Beekeepers Assoc.

Some bugs are just a nuisance. For me right now, it's the yellow jackets and bald face hornets. To be honest, I have a few honey bees that aren't too friendly but then I cause them a lot of trouble.

Early on I didn't know to reduce the hive entrance to about an inch in September. It's robbing season. Foragers are having a tough time meeting their nectar quota and so they start robbing from each other, mostly from weak colonies. What's a weak colony? Ten to fifteen thousand bees. What's a normal colony this time of year? About thirty thousand.

You probably remember that I told you each colony has a unique smell given off by the queen. The guard bees at the door know whether a bee coming in is one of theirs or a robber. It's easier for them to protect the colony if the entrance is small, thus the reason for reducing it now.

I've lost colonies to yellow jackets and others have lost them to bald faced hornets.

Sometimes, albeit rarely, the colony gets so bothered by the invaders that they "abscond". The entire colony takes off. What a surprise for us when one day we have bees and the next day we don't. You've got to be tough to be a beekeeper. For the most part we are not in control of what those girls decide to do. Those that abscond this time of the year don't have a chance of surviving. No home. No winter food stores.

The life cycle of a colony is for the queen to lay about fifteen hundred eggs a day in the late spring when pollen and nectar are prevalent. They need lots and lots and lots of bees, 50 to 70,000 bees, to bring in enough food stores and prepare them for the long winter. By late September the colony pretty much has what it's going to have. The queen is not laying a fraction of what she was laying. It's time for her to make "winter bees".

Winter bees are physiologically a little different than bees during the warm part of the year. They have a special, thick layer of fat which allows them to live six months versus the six weeks or less for summer bees. That fat is part of their food storage but also allows them to generate heat to keep the colony alive in cold weather.

There is no need for mating any more. September is the time for the colony to get rid of all its male bees, the drones. Because drones fly back and forth from the hive to a "drone congregation area" waiting for a virgin queen, they eat four times as much honey as a worker does in a day. The colony can't afford that. So they kick the drones out. The "good old days" are over...

Believe it or not, the bees rearrange the hive for winter. They move honey they stored up above in honey supers

CHAMBER CHATTER

Shop Small Sweepstakes is almost here

Mia Gibson
Communications Manager

Changing leaves and brisk air have greeted us all in the morning these past few days. And as Halloween decorations begin to edge into my mind, I am reminded that the Shop Small Sweepstakes will be starting soon.

Now in its sixth year, the Sweepstakes is one of the Chamber's ways of encouraging everyone to shop locally over the holiday shopping season to help our local economy thrive. With so many amazing retailers right in your backyard, why not buy your Christmas presents at a locally owned business? The Sweepstakes rewards you for doing just that, with weekly gift card giveaways and the chance to win a $1,000 local spree.

It's been a busy year, so whether you forgot, or this is the first time you are hearing, here's a recap of the rules for the Sweepstakes. Whenever you shop at a locally owned business in Tillamook County between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31, keep your receipts to enter weekly drawings for gift cards and a final $1,000 grand prize. You can enter two ways: drop your receipt off at the Chamber HQ at 208 Main Avenue in downtown Tillamook or send a photo of your receipt and name to 503-389-0631. You can enter one receipt per day, each day of the Sweepstakes.

Every week, the Chamber will draw one winner from that week's entries, and the winner will receive a gift card to a local business. All entries from each week will be entered into a pool for the grand prize drawing for $1,000 in Sweepstakes

Bucks. All Sweepstakes winners will appear on our Facebook page, we recommend following the Chamber, so you don't miss any updates! We also encourage shoppers to join the Chamber's Shop Tillamook Facebook group. Many of our local retailers are part of the group, and they often post information about sales or special deals, so you can be the first to know about a good offer! You also can use the group to share photos of the places you're shopping or the items you're buying — at least when they aren't gifts! Don't want to ruin any surprises.

And we'd be remiss not to mention our sponsor, US Bank. They've sponsored the Sweepstakes all six years we've hosted it, and they are absolutely amazing partners! We are lucky to work alongside them to promote local shopping!

The Sweepstakes officially starts on Friday, Oct. 1. If you have any questions about the Sweepstakes, feel free to contact the Chamber at 503-842-7525.

down to the bottom box where the brood used to be raised. They need the honey to be right next to the cluster they will form when the temperatures drop.

I mentioned at the start of the article that we beekeepers cause the bees a lot of trouble, enough to make them quite angry at us. That's because we take some of their honey in September and October. A strong, healthy colony with a great queen can make well over a hundred pounds of honey. It's common for us to take about forty pounds from a single colony. There are a lot of factors that determine how much honey is in a hive. One is the amount of forage available to them. Cape Mears has very little forage. Nehalem has lots, for example.

The other big factor is the health of the colony. Bees are severely hampered by varroa mites and the diseases that result from the presence of varroa mites but that's a discussion left for another time. Weak bees live shorter lives and make little honey.

Remember in addition to taking "an apple a day", take your spoonful of local, raw honey. Check out the store on the website, www.tillamookbeekeepers.org to find sources.

TBCC CONNECTIONS

A very busy year for TBCC!

Ross Tomlin
TBCC President

TBCC has just started the fall term. We had a very successful 2021-22 academic year that saw TBCC reach 505 full-time equivalent students thanks to growing 16% over the previous year, which is the highest enrollment we have experienced over the past decade, bringing us above pre-pandemic levels. This is even more extraordinary considering that almost every other community college in Oregon is down in enrollments compared to 2018-19, some over 20%.

In addition to the regular work of offering classes and educating our students, there are some big projects this coming year that are very exciting. These include implementing our new seven-year strategic plan, starting our two big building projects, and getting many new staff on board and oriented to the college.

Our new strategic plan includes a new mission and vision statement, list of values, and five strategic priorities to focus on over the coming seven years. They are Exceptional Student Experience, Educational Excellence and Workforce Development, Employee Experience and Organizational Health, Community Engagement and Awareness, and Equity and Inclusion. If you are interested in seeing our full strategic plan, please go to <https://tillamookbaycc.edu/about-tbcc/strategic-planning-and-accreditation/strategic-planning/#>. Almost all staff helped to put this plan together with input from many students and community members.

Thanks again to the voters of Tillamook County who approved a $14.4M bond measure this past May to construct a new Healthcare Education Building with a 360 seat Community Event Center. The first step is to hire a project manager and then an architect to start designing the building. This building will contain classroom and lab space for all of our healthcare programs, including the new nursing program that we are developing this year with the intent to start offering classes this coming fall 2023. This will require approval by the Oregon State Board of Nursing.

The other big project is to renovate our new Center for Industrial Technology, which is the blue metal building across the street from the main campus on Third St. It will house our manufacturing and welding technology programs. TBCC has received a $1.1M grant from the federal Economic Development Administration to install an HVAC system, venting, power enhancement, classrooms, and lab space. We are hoping to get these renovations completed in time for classes to be held there next fall 2023.

TBCC is also bringing on new staff to handle the growth and new programs. Our new Vice President of Instruction and Student Services is Dr. Paul Jarrell who came to us from Lane Community College where he held the same position. We also recently were fortunate to hire Dr. Tifanie Hoffmeyer as our new Director of Healthcare and Nursing, who has experience starting and running nursing programs. We have even more great new staff coming on board that will help with our capacity issues.

It is going to be a very busy year at TBCC but we are very excited about all the great things happening at the college. We greatly appreciate all the strong support we receive from people throughout Tillamook County.

GARNENING MATTERS

Seems like only last week that we started the month of September and now we are at the closing days. The Autumnal Equinox was a few days ago and now Autumn is officially here. The gardening season is winding down, which is bittersweet to me. I am ready for a break from gardening but there are some chores left to do before I can really relax.

There are a few plants still blooming. The hardy fuchsia is one and the hummingbirds are glad to have that nectar. On sunny, warm days, the bees are buzzing around the heather that is still blooming. Won't be long before those flowers have faded and I can get the shears out and give it a haircut. Mostly I just take the browned blooms and don't cut into the wood. I don't want to spur on new growth as pruning can often do. But I also don't want to see brown flowers all winter, either. No worries. The heather blooms on next year's growth, so cutting back the flowers will have no effect on blooming next August.

GARDENING MATTERS

I also prune back the roses, but I will wait a couple of weeks to do that, waiting until they go dormant. Again, don't want to spur on new growth in October. However, our climate is so mild that the roses don't go into a true dormancy. They just stop growing and blooming. When I do prune, I will do so in such a way to keep the stems from whipping around in the winter winds. I prune out the weak growth, especially in the center of the bushes, and take the remaining stems to about knee height. Anything smaller than a pencil is removed as close to the trunk as I can. The roses will be pruned again in late February and that is when I do want to encourage new growth.

Climbing roses are a little different and I don't want to take too much of these plants off. For the climbers, I just prune weak stems and tie together any stems that might whip in the wind, tying them to a trellis or support if need be. Think about the stems of roses: they sometimes have some pretty wicked thorns, thus the reason for keeping the stems and their thorns from hurting other stems.

You may think this is not really necessary, but one Fall, when the rains came early, I did not prune the roses. After the harsh winds of winter, the stems on all the plants looked as if they had been through a shredder. So now, rain or not, I protect the roses from themselves.

I have started to cut back the hosta already, doing so before they die back and turn into a slimy mess. I can report that the used and cooled coffee grounds I have been spreading around my best hosta to keep the slugs at bay has worked pretty well. But in mid-September, the slugs were desperate and the coffee smell no longer worked as well.

Slug control should actually begin in the Fall, before the little devils are getting ready to lay eggs. Science says put out baits and traps after the first rain of the Autumn season. This is when the slugs and snails start to move again toward the soil surface from their Summer hiding places. Poisons like Metaldehyde work the best but they are also very toxic to humans, pets, and wildlife. They also need to be replaced after a couple of days. Better to use the iron phosphate pellets that will last a couple of weeks, even during rains. Place the pellets under a board to draw the slugs to a cool dark place. Or you can lure them to their deaths with beer traps. I generally pour a couple of inches of leftover (or cheap) beer in an open plastic container (yogurt, cottage cheese, dog food) and bury it so the rim is at soil level. Slugs will be drawn to the yeast in the beer, climb in and drown when they can't climb back out. But check these traps daily in case some other creature has gone in for the slugs. Place the bait stations in the cool of the evening when the slugs and snails are more likely to be active.

I remember reading quite a few years ago that a British gardening magazine did a survey about what made gardeners most upset in their gardens. Turns out it was slugs and snails. And the magazine even commented they were surprised at how calm and gentle gardeners turn into angry and vindictive people when dealing with these pests.

I can certainly relate.

FENCEPOSTS

This late-September sunshine has been wonderful for walking the neighborhood. I've taken to walking up the hill to Quadrant and then heading west on Nehalem; there's a beautiful view of the ocean from the high point (which my smart phone says is 152 feet above sea level).

But with the glorious weather last week, I've been making a point of heading across 101 and spending at least a little time on the benches at the Wayside. And every time I do this, especially when my wife joins me, we wonder why we don't do it every day.

It was my wife who recently described the Wayside as our community meeting place.

"You're right," I said. "It serves the purpose of the piazza in a little Italian village," I said. "It's the get-together spot, the community center, the open space where people can mingle and stroll and

sfisher71@yahoo.com

enjoy what makes their town special."

For our little village on the Oregon Coast, the Pacific Ocean does a spectacular job of that last point. The sweeping vista from Twin Rocks to the south up to Mt. Neakahnie to the north never gets old.

But of course, the Wayside wasn't always here. From the 1920s till 1976, what we think of as the meeting place was the Rockaway Beach Natatorium. This was a two-story building with a 50-by-80 foot pool filled with heated ocean water.

There were diving boards, a wading pool, and even a fountain that sprayed warm salt water over the bathers. Open till 10 PM every night, the Natatorium eventually added The Panorama Room, a nightclub on the second floor. If you've ever sat at the Wayside and admired the view, you know tThe Panorama Room was aptly named.

In 1976, the Nat (as it was known) was demolished, and the Rockaway Beach Wayside was built above it. Mayor Sue Wilson reminisced about the old days, and how much might remain. "The boilers for heating the sea water are still there," she said, "under the corners of the parking area."

Some here would like to see the Natatorium revived as a focal point of the city's thriving tourist activity. It would be a massive and expensive undertaking, but my thirty years in the high-tech world taught me a most important acronym: SMOM, which stands for Simple Matter Of Money. Smart phones, laptops, the Internet, all of these were expensive undertakings that were solved by application of the SMOM rule. With cash, as some say, all things are possible.

In the meanwhile, I love our little piazza. This summer has seen a revival of some of the festivals and activities we love—and visitors do, as well. With the pyrotechnics set up just across the rip-rap, the Wayside is the ideal spot to crane your neck on the Fourth of July. (Unless of course your front yard faces the beach and you can relax in a lawn chair to the skyrockets and scintillating showers of crackling sparks.)

The Art Festival was a welcome addition to the year's activities, and the return of the Kite Festival thrilled thousands of people. (I think my favorite was the cat playing with a ball, though the dragons and the purple whale shark were amazing. What was your favorite kite?)

But my sentimental favorite activity at the Wayside has to be the Christmas-tree lighting ceremony. Some four years ago, at a Salty Strings rehearsal in November, my predecessor Sugar Brosius and I got to talking about carols, and we excitedly suggested to Steve Tackett that maybe the Strings could sing and play carols while waiting for Santa to arrive on the Oregon Coast Scenic Railroad. While we've never had snow for the lighting, I know my fingers were cold enough to make some of those ukulele chords a bit tricky. But the community decorations, the Lions Club selling hot cocoa, and the applause when the lights all come on make this something I start looking forward to when the weather turns.

Till then, I'll keep enjoying sunny days and lingering sunsets from the benches at the Wayside.

TAPA announces cast for Deathtrap

The Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts (TAPA) is proud to announce the cast for its fall 2022 production of Ira Levin’s DEATHTRAP, directed by James Meritt and sponsored by Umpqua Bank of Tillamook.

Comfortably ensconced in his charming Connecticut home, Sidney Bruhl (portrayed by Chris Chiola), a successful writer of Broadway thrillers, is struggling to overcome a “dry” spell which has resulted in a string of failures and a shortage of funds. A possible break in his fortune occurs when he receives a script, a thriller from Clifford Anderson (portrayed by Matthew Allen Bergkamp), a student in the seminar Sidney has been conducting at a nearby college. Sidney immediately recognizes the script by his student as a potential Broadway hit. Sidney and his wife Myra (portrayed by Berta Limbaugh) devise a plan, which on the surface is to offer Clifford a collaboration with the successful playwright for co-credit; an idea he quickly accepts. Audiences soon find out there is a deeper plot afoot.

The Bruhl’s new neighbor, psychic Helga ten Dorp (portrayed by Kristi Hanson) senses danger and tries to warn everyone, only to be ignored. Sidney’s attorney Porter Milgrim (portrayed by Gerry Cortimilia) visits their cottage to discuss Sidney’s predicament and luckily escapes involvement in the twisted plot; or does he? DEATHTRAP provides twists and turns of devilish cleverness and offers hilariously sudden shocks in such abundance that audiences will be enthralled and spellbound until the final, startling moments of the play.

DEATHTRAP was first performed by TAPA players in 2001 at The Blue Heron under the direction of founding TAPA board member Becki Wilhelm. Gerry Cortimilia was the Stage Manager and is thrilled to be on stage this time around. TAPA is looking forward to presenting this revival of a beloved favorite of the stage.

Performances of Ira Levin’s DEATHTRAP will be held in the Barn Community Playhouse at 12th and Ivy in Tillamook on October 14, 15, 21, 22, 28, & 29 2022 at 7 PM. Sunday matinees will be October 16, 23, & 30 2022 at 2 PM. Doors open 30 minutes prior to curtain. Opening night is Gala Night where each ticket holder receives one free beverage and complimentary Hors D’oeuvres.

Tickets are on sale now at tillamooktheater.com, or call the TAPA box office at (503) 812-0275 to purchase tickets, if you have questions or need assistance.

OBITUARIES

Betty Marie Strong

Betty Marie Strong, was born December 21, 1923, to Ollie and Edna Woods, passing away quietly in her sleep on August 17, 2022, at the age of 98.

Living most of her life on the family’s dairy farm, first as the daughter of a farmer and then later as a farmer’s wife. Betty met Elwin Strong (or Bud as his friends called him) when he moved in across the street with the Julian family. A family he’d met while working in Nebraska for the CCC. Intrigued by the beautiful girl next door, Bud would visit Betty’s father and learn the dairy trade, and soon love was growing. Betty and Bud were married on January 17, 1942. Soon after their wedding Bud’s enlistment into the Army came around and he headed off to Europe.

With her husband overseas, Betty moved in with two of her aunts, Cora and Dell, in Portland Oregon. Working at a sleeping bag factory that made bedding for servicemen, and later packing parachutes. She made the best of her time in the big city, going dancing with her aunts was a favorite past time. Still Tillamook County and the farm in Beaver was always close to her heart, and she was eager to return after the war efforts ended.

When the war was over Betty and Bud came back to the family farm and continued their lives together. Having 3 children, Gary, Cynthia, and Timothy. They settled into their daily lives in Beaver, where they would run the local post office together and help run the family farm.

Betty spent the early years while her children were young as a housewife. She loved going to dances at the grange halls and the fairgrounds; she and Bud were avid dancers. Unfortunately, February 1977 Bud went to be with the Lord, leaving her a widow with too much time on her hands. With her children mostly grown and not needing quite as much attention, she began working at McGregor’s in Tillamook, where she worked for more than 20 years. Finally retiring and able to return her attention to the beloved farm once again.

Betty had two green thumbs and loved to grow flowers, especially roses, as well as vegetables. There was not a bad day for her, as long as she had some flowers to tend. She loved to watch birds from her dining room table and adopted any farm cat that was lucky enough to find her back porch.

Her faith sustained her throughout her life. As a pioneer member of the Beaver Community Church, she attended every Sunday service, throughout her younger and golden years. Betty loved to be with her family. Her children, grandchildren and most recently her great grandkids became the highlight of her days. Making cookie dough, playing blocks, Barbie’s, reading stories and sharing extra snuggles, are just a few of the activities they’ll miss most. A proud Seahawk fan, she had never missed one televised game the entire time they’ve been a team. She still loved to be in her garden, eat ice cream, and once a year would watch the horse races at the Tillamook County Fair.

Betty is preceded in death by her parents, Ollie and Edna, her husband, Bud and little brother, Edwin. She is survived by her children, Gary (Sue), Cynthia (Dennis), Tim (Pattie); her grandchildren, Brandon, Brian (Suzie), Theresa (Yusuf), Ryan (Andrew), Lyndsay (David), Darcie (Erik); and her great-grandchildren Mikayla, Bryan, Justin, Aiden, Macy, Gabrielle, Stella, and Logan.

Betty will be deeply missed by those who were fortunate enough to call her mom, grandma, or great grandma. The family is hosting a potluck celebration of Betty’s life on October 9 at 2 o’clock in the afternoon at Beaver Community Church, located at 24720 U.S. 101 S., Cloverdale, OR 97112.

Phyllis Ann Schollmeyer Stephens

Dec. 17, 1930 ~ 2022

Phyllis Ann Schollmeyer Stephens was born December 17th, 1930 in Tillamook, Oregon.

She was the second daughter born to August and Eva Schollmeyer of Nehalem, Oregon.

August Schollmeyer’s family immigrated from Germany to homestead in the Nehalem Valley in 1860. They eventually developed a dairy farm large enough to supply milk to the local population of Manzanita, Neah-Kah-Nie, and the Nehalem Valley. Her mother arrived from Portland on a ship as there were no accessible coastal roads at that time. Phyllis was brought home from the hospital to this idyllic ancestral home and lived on the farm her entire life.

She always said her sister was the “inside” daughter and she was the “outside” daughter. She loved working side by side with her father on the farm and remembers delivering milk on their milk route from their Green Meadow Dairy Farm, churning butter, helping with the cattle and chickens, and doing other outside field work.

She was an accomplished horseman and even participated in the Junior Sheriff’s Posse which paraded and served in the WW II effort. She graduated Valedictorian from Nehalem Union High school in 1948 and soon thereafter married her beloved husband of 67 years, Francis William (Frank), at the age of 17. Frank passed in 2016.

Frank and Phyllis moved into a small house, on the edge of the farm, the day they came home from their honeymoon, and continued to live there their entire lives. From there, they raised two sons and, under the helpful watchful eyes of their grandparents August and Eva, the boys had the run of the farm to help shape their futures.

Phyllis worked from a young age, first at the theater in downtown Nehalem where she earned $2 a night for selling tickets and keeping the popcorn machine filled. Eventually, she followed her interest in finances by becoming a teller at the North Tillamook County Branch of The Commercial Bank of Tillamook in Wheeler, Oregon. She then moved up to customer service at the newly built US Bank in Rockaway. She was the very first manager of the present-day US Bank in Manzanita and oversaw its opening. This was a remarkable accomplishment in her day and age - women were not given the opportunities they have today in careers – she bucked the trend and proved her worth. During this time, she also continued to support the Manzanita Lumber Company which she and Frank bought from the Stanton family in 1963.

She retired at the age of 55 and became “Farmer Phyl”, putting on the farm, continuing to raise beef stock, and roaming the farm while enjoying the seasons. She also liked traveling – especially to Hawaii – her favorite place to be. She and Frank would go for an extended trip once a year and soak up the sun, Mai Tais, and sunsets.

Many years they would also include a trip (or two) to Reno or Vegas and then joyously send faxes back to the lumberyard whenever they hit a jackpot.

Phyllis was a pioneer in the community, passing at the age of 91 in her home, as was her dying wish.

She is survived by her eldest son David Stephens, owner of Manzanita Lumber, and his wife Gayle Erickson Stephens, granddaughters, Dianna Plotts (husband Nick) and Breanna Stephens, and well-loved great-grandchildren Landon and Emma Plotts.

She is also survived by son Mark Stephens and his wife Sheila Zentz Stephens, granddaughters Kelsie Weir (husband Tim) and Rae Fern, and precious great-grandchild Ellory Weir.

The family wishes to thank all those who helped us honor Phyllis’ wish to be in her home the last years of her life. She was supported and surrounded by family, friends, and loved ones until the end. A special thank you to Tillamook Hospice who was with us every step of the way – their knowledge, compassion, and support was priceless.

We take comfort in our belief that while we are sorrowfully saying good-bye from this side, others from the other side are joyously saying hello to our adored Phyllis.

Mooks thump Tonasket 62-14 on road win

Cheesemakers ready for league action

Joe Warren
jwarren@countrymedia.net

The Tillamook Cheese-maker Football team has had to become road warriors this season with their home turf under construction this season and that didn't seem to hurt the Mooks focus Saturday as they beat Tonasket of Washing State 62-14.

"We pretty much had everything going," said Mook Head Football Coach Kye Johnson. "We definitely weren't perfect but there was obviously a lot of good stuff."

Johnson said they made the trip up to Washington State and because the Mooks came out so hot on both sides of the ball they were able to build on their depth, something that will help them as they go into their league schedule.

"We got a lot of guys into the game," Johnson said. "A handful of guys got their first meaningful varsity action and hopefully that will help us continue to build depth as the season goes on."

Johnson said offensively they are loaded this year, and Tanner Hoskins becoming a threat with his arm and legs and Seth Wehinger stepping it op on offense and defense.

"We got really good quarterback play from our guys," Johnson said "Tanner (Hoskins) did a good job of distributing the ball and Seth (Wehinger) ran it really effectively again. Seth has been doing a good job and really cutting out a role for himself. He played well on defense this weekend too."

Up front, the Mooks looked very good, one of the reasons the offense was able to open up an attach that produced 62 points.

"Our offensive line definitely had its most dominant effort, they moved the line of scrimmage the entire game," Johnson said. "Anytime you run it for as many yards per carry as we had the offensive line is the determining factor in that deal — the reps some of our rotation line guys got was really important for us too."

With the Mooks not able to play any of it's pre-league season games at home in front of the always strong home turnout, Johnson said it's been tough but his squad is ready for any adversity as they begin league play at Seaside Friday at 7 p.m. This trip was further then the Mooks will have to endure during league matchups.

"It was a unique trip, we traveled pretty light in terms of bodies," Johnson said. "We practiced at The Dalles, we stayed overnight at Sherman County School on Friday, we drove three minibuses and basically turned it into a classic high school athletics road trip. And now the coach said, his squad is more than ready for league schedule.

"It was great team bonding and time spent with each other," Johnson said. "That was probably as important as anything, and now we're all-in on the Cowapa League schedule and making a push towards another postseason run."

September is coming to an end, but Suicide Prevention Month's efforts will continue until we stop this national crisis. I encourage every parent to read the September 2022 AARP Bulletin for an incredible article on child and adolescent suicide written by Stephen Perrine, titled "Our Kids in Crisis". More than ever, the nation's children are at risk, with soaring rates of depression and anxiety, and dramatic increases in suicide attempts. Organizations, such as the CDC, American Academy of Pediatrics, and the US Surgeon General's Office are working together to solve this crisis. But we need to do everything we can at the local level. For local crisis emergency services and support for individuals experiencing a mental health crisis, call (503)842-8201 or 1-800-962-2851. The phone number of the national suicide prevention hot line is 988. Both local and national numbers are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Don't suffer in silence any longer. Make the call.

The Bay City Arts Center has had a busy September of classes and entertainment. October looks even busier. On Friday, October 7th, 5:00-7:00 PM, the Arts Center will hold a gallery reception celebrating the work of local artist, Eric Sappington, and Community Connection, Amber Mohr. The monthly event is free and open to the public. For more information on the current and upcoming artists, please visit their website at "Artist of the Month". Just a reminder to get your tickets early for the Amanda Stanaway and Friends concert on Saturday, October 15th at the Bay City Arts Center. It is a great opportunity to hear three extremely talented performers right here in our little town, without the need to fight the traffic to attend a venue in downtown Portland. Amanda's beautiful vocals and masterful guitar playing, Felix Hatfield's story-telling folk songs, and Tevis Hodge Jr.'s talents with a blues guitar and classic blues vocals are sure to please. Tickets are $20 in advance or $25 at the door. They can be purchased at Mana's Kitchen or by emailing baycityartscen-ter@gmail.com.

Years and years ago a dear friend gave me a charming wooden sign that reads "In my Father's house there are many mansions, and I hope yours is next to mine." It hangs by my front door. I love my friends. Some are new; some I met long, long ago; and others I have only met in the obituaries. What draws me to these different friends is that they all share these same qualities: kind hearts; generous; compassionate; gentle; humble. They all have servant hearts for their families, friends, community, nation, and the world beyond. These are some of the same attributes I find in Bill Landau. Bill has used his talent, time, and energy for the betterment of the Tillamook County community. With his stories in "Tales from the Library," Bill made me laugh or cry, or sometimes both; always very entertaining. Bill, you are an amazing storyteller. Your public will miss you. Thank you for the joy you brought to children and adults alike. You are my new best friend, and I hope your mansion is next to mine.

This is Mulberry.

He is about 5 months old and is a dark grey tabby with medium length hair. Mulberry can be shy at first meeting, but quickly warms up. If you like to play with feather toys, He's in. Mulberry gets along well with other cats and should be fine with dogs if introduced slowly. He is fine with children also. He's outgoing and friendly and is always finding ways to get into mischief, because he is a kitten after all.

Here's the application that you'll need to take him home.
