Family-friendly activities for fall

Fall is a welcome season for many people. The cooler temperatures and still-ample sunlight mean there is plenty of time to enjoy the great outdoors even if summer has ended. Fall activities dot the calendar, with several different options for individuals and families to get involved.

According to Acenda Integrated Health, incorporating family time into a schedule is crucial for a child's development. It's also key to have time to get a break from busy schedules. Fall is a great time to do just that with these activities.

Apple-picking

Few things are more refreshing than taking a bite out of an apple fresh off the tree. Orchards are bursting with apples this time of year, and an afternoon spent picking apples is a great way to spend time together.

Leaf treasure hunt

Everyone can head outdoors with a bag or basket to gather leaves. Look for the brightest color or the crunchiest leaf that can be found. The leaves can be pressed between wax paper to save them.

Fall festivals

Outdoor festivals are ideal for families because they tend to feature crafts, food, music, and activities.

Fall baking

Turn those plucked apples into pies or muffins, or use pumpkin and cinnamon to fill a home with delicious seasonal smells. Kids can help stir, pour and sprinkle ingredients.

Corn maze

Corn mazes may be set up adjacent to pumpkin patches, so the family can pick out the perfect pumpkin to carve and then try to navigate the maze.

Spooky walk

Halloween lands right in the heart of fall. Enjoy a walk through the neighborhood checking out peoples' Halloween decorations. A night walk with flashlights to listen to the sounds of animals can be "scary" in its own right. Another idea is to go to a haunted house or walk sponsored by a school or amusement park.

Football

Enjoy a pick-up game of flag or touch football. It's a great way to enjoy time outdoors and expend some physical activity. Fall is a perfect time to enjoy family-friendly activities.

Safety tips for outdoor enthusiasts

The beauty of nature is undeniable. That beauty draws millions of people outside every day. From hiking to kayaking to surfing, there's no shortage of ways to spend a day in the great outdoors.

Though there's plenty of reasons to get outside, it's important that safety is prioritized when spending time in the great outdoors. The following safety tips merit consideration for any nature enthusiast, including novices and seasoned outdoorsmen.

Let others know your plans

Nature is unpredictable, and conditions can change in the blink of an eye. So it's important to share your itinerary with loved ones back home before entering the great outdoors. That's particularly vital for those who intend to visit remote spots to hike, fish or engage in another activity. Provide your precise location, the hours you plan to be outside and your intended return time so people know when to alert authorities if you haven't returned in time.

Get to know your destination

The global environmental nonprofit organization The Nature Conservancy urges outdoor enthusiasts to research their destinations so they can assess the conditions and identify any challenges and amenities prior to their arrival. Such homework can help people sufficiently prepare for their time in nature, providing insight about what to bring, the appropriate attire (including footwear), the precise location of where they will be, and additional details that might be exclusive to a given destination.

Leave wildlife alone

Encounters with wildlife are not uncommon at many outdoor destinations. While wildlife can be awe-inspiring, outdoor enthusiasts should never confront wildlife or infringe upon animal's space. Keep a safe distance between yourself and wildlife. That's vital year-round, but particularly important in spring, when The Nature Conservancy reports many species of wildlife give birth to young, and parents may prove especially protective of their babies during this time of year.

Protect your body

It's important to protect your body when spending time in the great outdoors. Apply sunscreen with a minimum sun protection factor (SPF) of 30 prior to going outdoors, and liberally reapply sunscreen if you're sweating a lot or spending several hours outside. It's important to apply sunscreen even on cloudy days. It's also important to bring along water and healthy snacks. Dehydration can set in quickly and make it hard to keep moving, while snacks can provide energy and help to account for calories expended during physical activity.

Safety strategies can ensure a day spent in the great outdoors is enjoyable and memorable for all the right reasons.

Apple picking pointers

Visiting a local apple orchard and picking one's fill of apples is a quintessential fall activity. Apple picking is an ideal way to spend time outdoors when the weather tends to be cool and pleasant. Gathering fresh-from-the-tree fruit to turn into favorite fall desserts like cobblers and pies is irresistible.

According to the Economic Research Service, Washington state is the leading apple producer in the United States. It is followed very distantly by New York and Michigan. Apples were first cultivated in Canada by early French settlers, with the first trees planted in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley around 1633. Today, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia have become strong players in the apple business. While other areas may not be apple meccas, those looking to pick their own have plenty of options across North America to enjoy this pastime.

Prior to an apple picking adventure, people can do a little preparation to ensure the afternoon is fun and fruitful.

- Do some research. Before individuals head out, they should do research into the available orchards and which apple varieties they specialize in. Ripening seasons vary, so certain varieties may not be available at all times. Call ahead to learn which apples are ripe and when.

- Visit early. The best apples are often available early in the season before the trees have been heavily picked over. It's also a good idea to visit the orchard early in the day, which means cooler temperatures and smaller crowds.

- Dress appropriately. Orchards can be dusty, muddy and buggy. The ground also may be uneven. Individuals can wear comfortable clothes and closed-toed shoes that can get dirty. Also, they should dress in layers, as it can be chilly early in the day and then warmer later on.

- Pick correctly. Instead of yanking on the apples, which can damage the tree and apples, people should gently roll or twist the apple upwards from the branch. If the apple is ripe it will detach easily with stem intact.

- Avoid bruising. It's wise to inspect the apples to make sure they are firm and brightly colored. Those with bruising or insect damage should be left behind.

- Don't overload. Only pick what you need. Apples are delicate, and overloading the apples into bags can crush or bruise the ones on the bottom. Plus, over-picking means that the apples may spoil before they can be eaten.

After a day at the orchard, apples can be stored unwashed in a cool, dark place, which will help them stay fresher, longer.

Facts about the autumnal equinox

Crisp autumn air will soon be rolling in and the leaves on trees will be trading their vivid green hues for shades of orange, red and purple. Fall begins on the autumnal equinox. Although people may see it as the official kickoff to bonfires and flannels, that's not the only interesting part of this remarkable day.

- It's a moment and not a day.

Despite what many people think, the autumnal equinox is not an entire day. In fact, the equinox is a precise astronomical event. It occurs at the exact moment the sun crosses the celestial equator, an imaginary line in the sky directly above the Earth's equator.

- It's not "equal night." Although the word equinox comes from the Latin word "aequus" (equal) and "nox" (night), we do not get exactly 12 hours of daylight and 12 hours of darkness on the equinox. This is because of how the Earth's atmosphere refracts sunlight. The sun appears above the horizon

Although people may see it as the official kickoff to bonfires and flannels, that's not the only interesting part of this remarkable day.

even after it has technically set, according to the National Weather Service.

- Northern lights can be seen. Those hoping to catch a glimpse of the aurora borealis will find the weeks surrounding the autumnal equinox are the prime window to do so, according to NASA. Geomagnetic storms that trigger these stunning light displays occur twice as frequently around the fall and spring equinoxes compared to the summer and winter solstices.

- It's not always on the same day.

The autumnal equinox does not fall on the same day each year. It usually lands on September 22 or 23, but it can occasionally occur on September 21 or 24 (in the northern hemisphere), indicates the U.S. Naval Observatory.

The autumnal equinox is a unique and often enjoyable day on the calendar.

www.madriverglen.com

Mad River Glen is skier-owned and unapologetically itself. The 60 trail mountain has operated as a cooperative since 1995, and that ownership structure shapes everything about the experience: low skier density, natural snow prioritized over snowmaking, and a non-commercial atmosphere that feels genuinely different from most ski areas in New England.

Magic Mountain

495 Magic Mountain
Access Rd, Londonderry
802-824-5645
www.magicmtn.com

Magic Mountain has been drawing skiers and riders to southern Vermont since the 1960s, and the terrain is still the main reason to make the trip. The expert trails and off-piste glades are legitimately challenging, cut in the original style with real steepes, natural obstacles, and no smoothing over of what the mountain actually is. Trails cover all ability levels, but Magic has a particular pull for skiers and riders who want to work for their runs.

Middlebury Snow Bowl

6886 VT Rte. 125, Hancock
802-443-7669
<https://middleburysnowbowl.com>

The Middlebury Snowbowl sits on Route 125 in the Green Mountains, roughly halfway between Routes 7 and 100, and covers enough terrain to keep skiers and riders of all ability levels busy. The mountain offers 25 trails and 10 glades, with off-trail skiing permitted within the ski area's boundaries. Snowmaking covers approximately 45% of the terrain, and four lifts, including a quad chairlift and two triple chairs, keep things moving.

Night skiing is available on select evenings during the season, with lit trails and a beginner area accessible via a free surface lift that requires no lift ticket. Check the Snowbowl's website for current night skiing days and hours.

Mount Snow

39 Mount Snow Rd., West Dover
800-245-SNOW
www.mountsnow.com

Mount Snow has been one of the most accessible major ski resorts in the East since Walter Schoenkecht founded it in 1954, and its location in southern Vermont still makes it the shortest drive from New York, Boston, and most of the Northeast's metro areas to real big-mountain skiing and riding. It's one of three Vermont ski areas on the Epic Pass, alongside Okemo and Stowe.

Lyndon Outing Club

1580 Lily Pond Rd., Lyndonville
802-626-8465
www.skilyndon.com

The Lyndon Outing Club (LOC) has been getting Northeast Kingdom families on snow since 1937, when a group of local skiers founded it with a straightforward goal: quality outdoor recreation, close to home. In its early years, the LOC hosted a competition ski jump and served as training grounds for Olympic-level athletes, along with sled dog races, snow sculpture contests, and slalom events that drew the community together around the hill.

Northeast Slopes

10397 Route 25, East Corinth
802-439-5789
https://northeastslopes.org

Today, Northeast Slopes is one of the oldest continuously operating rope tow ski areas in the country. It runs on volunteer labor, community support, and the straightforward idea that affordable, family-friendly skiing is worth preserving.

Okemo

77 Okemo Ridge Road
Ludlow, VT 05149
802-228-1600
www.okemo.com

Okemo Mountain Resort rises above the village of Ludlow in south-central Vermont, and has built a reputation over decades as one of the most consistently well-run family resorts in the East. The mountain regularly earns recognition for grooming, terrain parks, family programming, and guest service. It's one of three Vermont ski areas on the Epic Pass, alongside Mount Snow and Stowe.

The mountain's Jackson Gore area serves as the hub for year-round activity, with the Spring House offering a fitness center, sauna, hot tub, and family pools.

Pico

73 Alpine Drive., Killington
866-667-PICO
https://picomountain.com

Families and skiing traditionalists now enjoy 58 trails and a terrain park serviced by six lifts, including two high-speed detachable quads. Gentle learning terrain, smooth cruisers, and classically narrow New England steeps can all be found at Pico. With more vertical drop than 80% of New England ski areas, Pico Mountain is your home for family mountain fun with big mountain terrain and small mountain charm. All trails lead to a central base area, making Pico Mountain ideal for the whole family.

Saskadena Six

247 Stage Rd., South Pomfret
802-457-6661
www.saskadenasix.com

Saskadena Six operates as part of the Woodstock Inn & Resort, with 28 trails, 2 lifts, and 60% snowmaking coverage. The mountain invested in a full snowmaking infrastructure upgrade in 2018, adding automated TechnoAlpin snow producers with real-time weather monitoring across multiple elevations, significantly improving snow quality and production efficiency.

Ski Quechee

3268 Quechee Main St., Quechee
802-295-9356
https://quecheeclub.com/skiquechee

Saskadena Six operates as part of the Woodstock Inn & Resort, with 28 trails, 2 lifts, and 60% snowmaking coverage. The mountain invested in a full snowmaking infrastructure upgrade in 2018, adding automated TechnoAlpin snow producers with real-time weather monitoring across multiple elevations, significantly improving snow quality and production efficiency.

Smugglers' Notch

4323 Vermont Route 108
South, Jeffersonville
855-814-7325
www.smuggs.com

The mountain offers 78 trails, 8 lifts, 1,000 acres of terrain, and the highest vertical drop in northern Vermont at 2,610 feet. Natural snowfall averages more than 300 inches annually, and multiple terrain parks give skiers and riders of all ability levels something to work with.

Smugglers' Notch Resort's Nordic Ski and Snowshoe Adventure Center offers 30 kilometers of cross-country ski trails for all ability levels, from beginner-friendly terrain to more challenging expert routes. Dedicated snowshoe trails wind through snow-covered forest, and ice skating rounds out the winter options. Gear rentals and trail advice are available at the center, which also serves as a warm-up spot with hot chocolate and a fire on cold days.

As part of a full-service family resort, Nordic skiers and snowshoers have access to the same lodging, dining, pools, and family programming that make Smugglers' Notch one of the top-rated family destinations in the East.

Stowe

5781 Mountain Rd., Stowe
800-253-4754
www.stowe.com

Stowe Mountain Resort is widely credited as the birthplace of alpine skiing in Vermont, and the mountain has built on that history to become one of the most recognized ski destinations in the East.

The resort spans two mountains: Mount Mansfield, Vermont's highest peak, and Spruce Peak. Mount Mansfield holds the 128-trail terrain Stowe is known for, including some of the most challenging and storied runs in New England. Spruce Peak complements it with beginner and intermediate terrain, slopeside accommodations, retail and dining, and a performing arts center. A six-person Sunrise lift provides access to Mount Mansfield's upper mountain.

Stowe Mountain Resort's Cross

Country Center sits off Route 108, about a mile from the alpine slopes, and operates as its own distinct destination. The trail network covers 45 kilometers of groomed trails and 30 kilometers of backcountry terrain, with the easiest and most scenic routes following the West Branch of the Little River up into the Ranch Camp valley, where some of the earliest backcountry trails in the area were cut by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the 1930s. Several of those original trails, including The Steeple and The Bruce, remain popular with backcountry skiers today.

Stratton

5 Village Lodge Rd., Stratton Mountain 802-297-4000

www.stratton.com

Stratton Mountain sits atop southern Vermont's highest peak at 2,003 feet of vertical, and backs its skiing and riding with a great snow guarantee. The mountain offers 99 trails, 160-plus acres of glades, and more than 670 acres of total terrain, with top-ranked terrain parks and what the resort bills as the fastest lift fleet in the East.

The slopeside village keeps everything close: lodging, dining, shopping, a spa, and a training and fitness center are all on-site. Stratton has earned eight National Ski Areas Association Safety Awards, including recognition for its terrain park Safety Education Session.

The mountain runs year-round, with summer and fall activities including mountain biking, golf, hiking, and a full events calendar that draws visitors well beyond ski season.

Sugarbush

1840 Sugarbush Access Rd., Warren 802-583-6300

www.sugarbush.com

Sugarbush spreads across two mountains in the Mad River Valley, Lincoln Peak and Mt. Ellen, connected by the Slide Brook Express chairlift and a shuttle. Together they offer 111 trails covering all ability levels, with 28 marked tree skiing areas and the 2,000-acre Slide Brook Basin tucked between the two peaks for those looking to venture further.

Lincoln Peak is the main hub, with a village offering lodging, dining, the Ski and Ride School, and rentals and repair. The legendary Castlerock Peak, accessed from Lincoln Peak, delivers the kind of narrow, steep, winding terrain that serious experts seek out. On the other end of the spectrum, Lincoln Peak also has some of the most accessible beginner terrain in the valley.

Mt. Ellen, the third-highest peak in Vermont, brings wide-open cruisers, steep pitches, and solid intermediate terrain. The base area is low-key, anchored by the Green Mountain Lounge, and home to the Riemergasse Terrain Park with rails, tables, and jumps across all ability levels.

Turn your home into a haunted house

People celebrate Halloween with the same zeal as Thanksgiving and Christmas. Decorating for Halloween has evolved over the years, and many homeowners now go to great lengths to turn their humble abodes into horrific haunts. Achieving a haunted house vibe is easier than one might think with some creative ideas.

Dim the lights

Turning down the lights immediately increases the spooky factor for Halloween. The mind may jump to its own conclusions about what is nestled in a shadowy corner or just around the bend. Turning off lights and relying on flickering candles or battery-operated lanterns will also hide any imperfections in your decor.

Direct light upwards

Outdoors, position low-angle spotlights or floodlights pointing up at walls or trees to cast long, harsh shadows that seem scary.

Board up the windows

Tape lightweight painted cardboard strips across windows to mimic the look of an abandoned home. Scary shapes cut from cardboard or black paper can be taped inside of windows and backlit by dim lights to create an eerie atmosphere.

Utilize fog machines

If available, a fog machine near an entrance or in a hallway can provide a dense, disorienting haze. Again, it will reduce visibility, which can make a haunted house seem more frightening.

Tactile scares

Hang loose, dark pieces of string, tattered scrap fabric or faux spider webs from ceilings so that they will lightly brush against passers-by in dark areas. A hidden fan can be positioned to blow a sudden, chilly draft across a doorway to mimic a passing spirit.

Haunted portraits

Inexpensive thrift store frames can dress up eerie vintage photos or lenticular shifting images purchased online. For a real fright, have someone pose behind a frame and actually move or reach out as visitors go by.

Obscured paths

Create blind corners and obscured paths so visitors cannot anticipate what is waiting ahead. Use dark sheets or black painter canvas taped securely to the ceiling. Position actors along the way to achieve jump scares.

Scary sounds

Place Bluetooth speakers throughout the haunted house to play a loop of screams, squeaky hinge noises or footsteps to keep guests off-kilter.

A haunted house is expected for Halloween thrills, and it's easy to create a spooky atmosphere with a little effort.

New rules for deer, moose and turkey hunting

Vermont Fish and Wildlife periodically updates hunting regulations as new issues arise, conditions change, or new opportunities become available. Several changes take effect in 2026. They are intended to provide additional hunting opportunity and allow for more effective management.

Turkey

The fall archery season for turkey has been extended. It now begins on October 1 (same day as deer archery) and runs until the Friday before the regular deer season in November.

Moose

The regular moose season has been extended from 6 days to 9 days and now includes two weekends. The harvest is still controlled by adjusting the number of permits available, but this change provides more flexibility for hunters. Success rates will be more consistent and less affected by poor weather.

Deer

The youth and novice weekend has been moved back to the original youth weekend timing on the weekend before the regular season. The earlier timing since 2020 had resulted in reduced participation due to conflicts with other fall activities.

The antler point restriction has been reinstated in WMU-D1. After removal of the antler restriction in 2020, too many young bucks were being harvested in this WMU, which resulted in a decline in mature bucks. All other WMUs have been able to meet buck age structure objectives under existing regulations.

The archery season is no longer closed during the regular season and now runs continuously from October 1 to December 15. This simplifies regulations and provides additional opportunity for some hunters.

Expanded archery zones have been established in eight areas around the state. These are primarily developed areas around major cities and towns where deer cannot effectively be managed with firearms. Within these areas, the archery season will begin September 15 and will be for antlerless deer only until the regular archery season begins on October 1.

Antlerless permits may now be used during the regular season. Hunters with an antlerless permit may use it during the muzzleloader seasons, as in previous years, or during the regular season. This change was necessary to achieve antlerless harvest objectives in some parts of Vermont. It also provides a new antlerless deer harvest opportunity for a large segment of Vermont's deer hunters.

Hunters may now hold two antlerless permits at one time, provided the permits are for different WMUs. Only one permit may be acquired through the lottery. If unallocated permits are available, a second permit, for a different WMU, may be purchased before filling the first permit.

Hunters may take a second buck if they meet the following conditions.

1. They purchase a second buck tag,
2. Their first buck has 3 or more points on one antler, and
3. They harvest an antlerless deer.

The order of the conditions does not matter, as long as they are all met. Only one buck may be taken per season.

Five days have been added to the December muzzleloader season. It now begins on the Monday immediately after the regular season and extends for 14 days. This provides additional opportunity and flexibility for muzzleloader hunters.

License Information

Licenses are Required

Any person engaged in fishing, hunting, trapping or taking any wild animals must be properly licensed, except as listed below under exceptions. Wild animals are defined by law as ALL animals, including birds, amphibians, and reptiles, other than domestic animals.

Exceptions to License Requirements

A resident owner of land in Vermont, his or her spouse, and minor children may hunt within the boundary of that land and take fish from a private pond within the boundary of that land without a license within season (except if their right to obtain a license is under suspension, or for seasons requiring a special tag such as moose, antlerless muzzleloader, and waterfowl seasons). A nonresident owner of land has equal privilege if his or her land is NOT posted (except if their right to obtain a license is under suspension). "Posted" means any signage that would lead a reasonable person to believe that hunting is prohibited on the land, except for "Safety Zone" signs.

Military Personnel

Any resident of Vermont who is serving on active duty in the armed forces of the United States or is performing, or is under orders to perform, a homeland defense or state-side contingency operation for a period of 120 or more consecutive days may obtain at no cost a hunting or fishing license or combination hunting and fishing license.

A person who obtains a license under this provision may keep the license until it expires, whether or not the person continues to serve in the armed forces.

If requesting a hunting or combination license, you also need to submit a copy of your hunter education certification, a previous hunting license, or complete an affidavit stating you have held a hunting license.

A nonresident member of the armed forces of the United States who is on active duty and stationed at a military, air or naval post, station or base within Vermont may buy a license to hunt or fish at the resident fee.

These licenses are available from Vermont Fish & Wildlife offices, license agents and our website.

Any questions on eligibility for military licenses should be directed to 802-828-1190 or fwlicensing@vermont.gov or sent to:

Historic covered bridges

Vermont's historic covered bridges have unique height and weight restrictions to preserve their structure and ensure safety. Many of these bridges have vertical clearances between 8 and 12 feet and are posted for load capacities ranging from 3,000 to 8,000 lbs. Larger vehicles and motor homes are advised to avoid crossing covered bridges and to use alternate routes.
