KIDTOWN

Did you know that porcupines, muskrats and beavers have orange teeth? The color comes from iron deposits in the outer layer of their incisors, which makes the teeth stronger and harder to wear down. They are not alone in having unusually colored teeth. The red-toothed triggerfish gets its name from its two red fangs ... and sea otters eat so many sea urchins their teeth turn bright purple!

TRUE but STRANGE

WHITE TEETH? THAT'S PRETTY WEIRD!
