

WYFC CALLS ON ATTORNEY GENERAL HILL TO PROTECT WYOMING, SUPPORTS EFFORTS TO ELECT ATTORNEYS GENERAL

January 24, 2023

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

In the world of big business, corporate shareholders often send proxies to cast votes on corporate matters. Proxy holders have legal and contractual duties to act according to the financial interests of their clients.

In recent years radical environmental and social activists, unable to achieve their unpopular policy goals on the ballot, have taken to corporate activism in order to get what they want. Attempting to use big business as an arm of the government, these activists bully America's largest corporations into promulgating unpopular dictates that would otherwise fail in the court of public opinion. They cannot achieve a net-zero emissions policy in the halls of Congress, so they turn to powerful boardrooms. They cannot force racial quotas on private entities from statehouses, so they seek to blackmail big corporations into implementing them nationwide.

In a January 17 letter to the nation's top proxy-voting advisory firms, 21 Republican state attorneys general took a stand for their states. The letter admonished the firms for placing radical social activism ahead of the financial interests of their clients.

Wyoming's Attorney General Bridget Hill was absent from the list of signatories to this important letter.

Perhaps no state is more adversely impacted by the work of these corporate activists than Wyoming. Environmental and social governance (ESG) policies seek to destroy the resources Wyoming produces- the very same resources used to power the boardrooms promulgating them.

The WYFC has recently learned that A.G. Hill was not offered an opportunity to join the January 17 letter. Nevertheless, the Caucus calls on A.G. Hill to take a stand and protect Wyoming's extractive industries and way of life. Our state is under attack and is worthy of a full defense.

Wyoming deserves an Attorney General who is accountable and responsive- this lack of advocacy proves that now is the time for Wyomingites to popularly elect our Attorney General.

HB0107, sponsored by Representative Heiner (HD 18) would empower Wyoming citizens to elect our Attorney General. The WYFC fully supports this effort in the hopes that our state will join the 43 other states who elect their state's top advocate. The WYFC also supports all legislative efforts to stop ESG in Wyoming, including SF0159, sponsored by Senator Biteman (SD 21) and HB210, sponsored by Majority Floor Leader Neiman (HD 01).
