Client Interviews

On 03/11/15 I was able to contact [REDACTED] who had been identified through phone records from both [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. Upon contact I was able to schedule an interview with [REDACTED] for the following day. During the initial phone conversation, [REDACTED] was advised that he was being interviewed as witness to which he asked, "Am I going to lose my job?" [REDACTED] was advised that I did not have control of any type of disciplinary action that might be taken against him. He was advised to speak with a union representative and to have a union representative with him during the interview.

On 03/12/15 at 0800 hours I met with [REDACTED] at 1310 W. Miracle Mile, the Westside Service Center, also present during the interview was Detective Armando Olivas. Prior to the interview, [REDACTED] was again advised that he was being spoken to as a witness to the experiences at the massage businesses. [REDACTED] showed up for the interview and when asked if his union representative was going to attend the interview, he advised that there would not be a representative present.

The following is a summary of the interview. The interview was recorded; see the recording for further details. I explained to [REDACTED] that during the course of the investigation and the location of approximately 5000 phone numbers, his phone number was located and was found to be making appointments. [REDACTED] was advised that he had 1432 contacts to the three numbers listed on advertisements for massages, this number did not surprise [REDACTED].

- He located the advertisements on the website Backpage.com
- The advertisement was contacted via text messages and a request was made for available appointment times, normally scheduled a 30 minute slots/ $40
- Initially stated that he had only obtained a massage from [REDACTED] nor was he offered extras
- Does not know if the girls are licensed and did not know that the females needed to be licensed
- Denied having contact with [REDACTED] in the last two months, last contact with [REDACTED] via phone records show was 01/21/15
- Wife does not know that he obtains the massages and guessed that he had spent a couple thousand on the massages over the past few years
- Last date would correlate with the a day at which he was on duty while obtaining a massage, stated that he was on light duty and obtained a massage to attempt to loosen up his back
