Red Cross Help Pledged As Long As Hunt Lasts

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.

---

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.

---

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.

---

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.

---

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.

---

The American Red Cross will continue to serve the home front in war-torn Europe until the last Americans have been rescued from the hunt for three lost Tuscon Boy Scouts.

A Red Cross official announced last night that should local funds be completely used, national funds would be available.

"We'll stay as long as the boy scout hunt continues," the official said.

Clark yesterday announced that, because of developments, the hunt would be called off tonight.