CURRY NAMED BIG CHIEF OF TAMMANY HALL

Only One Ballot Taken by General Committee of Organization

WILL BOOST WALKER

Absent. Defeated, Moves to Make Election of Foe Unanimous

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—John F. Curry, an old-fashioned district leader, was today elected big chief of Tammany hall to succeed George W. Olvany, who resigned.

Curry won with 12 1-4 votes over Joseph J. Ahearn, leader of the fourth district, who had 10 2-4. Austin H. McCue, leader of the east side district, regarded until today as Curry's strongest opponent, withdrew his name before the voting began and threw his support to Ahearn.

Although the general committee, composed of district leaders and their business co-leaders, was in session nearly two hours, only one vote was taken. On the motion of Ahearn, they made the election of Curry unanimous before they adjourned.

Opposed Olvany

Curry was one of the leading opponents of the selection in 1924 of Judge Olvany to succeed the late Charles F. Murphy. Curry's slogan at that time was: "A leader, not a banker," and he had not been a district leader, Judge Olvany was regarded by the district leaders at the time as an outsider.

During the election more than 400 Tammany braves—district captains, fellow leaders and plain, ordinary workers—waited in the handsomely furnished reception room in the new wigwam, down in the lobby, and not on the sidewalk.

Suddenly the door opened, Charlie J. McManus, who chairmaned the board of aldermen, appeared and shouted one word. "Curry!"

Crowds of cheering braves gathered as Curry and Ahearn came out of the committee room together, and soon, about each others shoulders. They went to the big leader's office, lately occupied by Judge Olvany, on the second floor. There Curry held an impromptu reception.

For Jimmy Walker

Curry immediately declared himself "unconditionally" in favor of the renomination of Mayor Walker for his municipal election in the fall.

Curry is president of the John F. Curry insurance agency, also is a real estate operator, and is regarded as wealthy. To him one daughter and one son, all grown.

MACHINE DEVELOPS 3,000,000 VOLTAGE

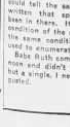
SEATTLE, Wash., April 24. (AP) Films showing the operation of new apparatus, which is said to develop 3,000,000 volts of dynamic electrical energy, were exhibited privately to scientists of the Mar-John Stone company of San Francisco, now today by John T. Hurtin, president of the concern.

The inventor, Martin Reichard, was developed by Herbert M. Hassell, former Seattle radio instructor, who has been working for the same company since last December.

STATE'S BUYERS MEET IN CAPITAL

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 23.—(AP)—Hosting for the eighth consecutive year to discuss their relations and friendly points of interest, more of Arizona, business "at home," approximately 100 purchasing agents, wholesale distributors and manufacturers of Arizona pledged their support for a greater Arizona at the opening session of the annual buyers' and sellers' conference here today.

Will Rogers Says - - - -



BOSTON, Mass., April 23.—Say, that speech of Mr. Hoover's yesterday was just about one of the strongest things a President ever said. When he said life and property is less safe here than any other civilized country in the world, the only difference of opinion we can have about that is, do we come under the heading of civilized? I doubt that, more than I do the statement. One thing he hadn't strikes me, minutes till you could tell the same man hadn't written that speech that had been in theirs. It was about the condition of the country but not the same condition that Calvin used to enumerate to us.

Babe Ruth come up this afternoon and didn't knock anything but a single. I never was so disappointed.

Yours,
WILL.

New Leader of Tammany Known As Murphy Aid

Lead Fight Against Olvany as Precinct Political Boss

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—John F. Curry, Tammany's new leader, has been known as "Charlie Murphy's right bower."

He was a particularly close friend of the late Charles F. Murphy, who for years was head of the old wigwam on 14th street. His associates now say that he, more than any other leader, may be expected to carry on the Murphy traditions of maintaining harmony.

Curry moves up to the top from leadership in a district clubhouse on West 57th street. In the shadow of the building where the Democratic national committee had its headquarters during the last campaign.

He is in the insurance business and wealthy. He started as a telegraph operator in the old west side elevated line along the North river. He was born in Ireland and came here with his parents as a small boy.

Curry is commissioner of records for New York county. As a state assemblyman he introduced the "____" trial bill calling for a five-cent subway fare from Manhattan to Coney Island. It is still in effect.

As one of those closely associated with Murphy, Curry was a candidate opposing George W. Olvany in the prolonged struggle for Tammany leadership that followed Murphy's death and the Democratic national convention in 1924. His slogan was then: "A leader, not a banker."

In appearance Curry does not fit the mental picture that the expression "political boss" calls up. He looks like a big business man—neatly and conservatively dressed, with gray hair and a gray mustache. His is quiet and rather unassuming. His manner is pleasant, but he does not say much to say for publication.

Mr. Curry has several children, most of them grown and out of college.

FOUR MYSTERY DEATHS MARK LINER'S TRIP

Passengers Insist Correct Number Is Ten; Owners Make Denial

CAUSE ALSO ARGUED

"Sunstroke" Say Officials; Widow Unable to Get Details

CHERBOURG, France, April 24.—(Wednesday) — (AP)—The Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Atholl, completing an African voyage on which four passengers died, was due to arrive here at 1 o'clock this afternoon but latest reports from her indicated that she encountered a storm that might delay her.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—The death of four passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific line steamer Duchess of Atholl while the ship was on a cruise in African waters was announced today by officials of the company after reports had been published that 10 had died.

As made public by the Montreal offices of the line, the dead were Dr. Edward Hardenbrook, of Rochester, N. Y.; Henry J. Norcutt, of Rosyln, N. Y., Mrs. A. B. Evans, of Hollywood, Cal., and Lester Fuery, of Kingston, Jamaica.

Reports that 10 had died aboard the ship were confirmed in letters received by relatives in Troy, Ohio, Cuba, from Miss Louise Terry, a passenger on the ship.

The first of the letters, dated April 2 from Accra, Nigeria, and received by the family of N. M. Terry at Old Lyme, said the dead were six passengers and four stewards, but gave no names. A later letter from the girl to rumor and did not mention the number of dead.

Cause Is Mystery

In her second letter Miss Terry said a doctor at another port believed the deaths were due to the bite of a tick and that three affected had been bitten while on excursion ashore.

Officials of the line said that none of the crew had died and that the names of the deaths among the passengers was known. Two of the deaths they said were caused by cachexia and two by malaria complicated by heart disease. The deaths occurred March 20, 28, 29 and April 1.

The Duchess of Atholl left New York January 21 for a four months' cruise to South Africa, stopping at Egypt and Cherbourg and Southampton. It is due at Cherbourg tomorrow.

The widow of Norcutt, a retired New York banker, was one of the two families of those who died on the ship to be reached for comment.

"We were notified that he had died of sunstroke," Mrs. Norcutt said, "but we are not satisfied. Something must have been wrong. There must have been some negligence somewhere.

"We have been trying for a month to get the details, but have not been successful.

"I cannot understand it at all," she said. "Mr. Norcutt was in good health when he left on the trip, and he would not have died from death as to sit out in a tropical sun and then to have gone into the shade. We are still waiting word as to the details."

Mrs. Evans is the widow and her son, Raymond, first secretary at the embassy in the United States, is now at Rome, Italy.

17-YEAR OLD GIRL SEEKS AIR RECORD

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., April 23.—(AP)—Miss Eleanor Smith again is in quest of the solo endurance record for women fliers, a title which was wrested from her a few months ago. The record now held by Miss Louise McPhetridge of California, she reminded aloft for 22 hours and 3 minutes.

The 17-year-old pilot was circling Roosevelt field late today after twenty hours of air travel in a cabin monoplane. The ship carried 165 gallons of gasoline, enough for a flight of 30 hours under normal conditions, and the weather was considered ideal.

It is the first time that a woman has ever made a long hours in an endurance flight. Miss Smith has been in training for the flight for the past few days. She rose early, stocked with a large supply of sandwiches, coffee and water.

Immortals' Academy Honors Butler

WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS — NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER — WILLIAM HOLLMAN HUNT

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, was installed as president of the American academy of arts and letters yesterday. He is the third to hold that position which was created in 1908. His predecessors are shown above, as is Robert Underwood Johnson, secretary since organization.

Society of U. S. Immortals Observing 25th Birthday

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, assumed the directorship of the American academy of arts and letters here today.

This was the occasion of a celebration marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of the academy, which is composed of 50 American immortals, each selected as being the most representative in the fields of arts and letters. The academy is limited, election being held only to replace members removed by death.

Dr. Butler is the third president. William Dean Howells, having served from 1908 to 1920 and Wilbur Cross, governor of Connecticut, from 1920 to 1929.

The academy was formed in 1904 under the sponsorship of the national institute of arts and letters, from which members of the smaller group are selected. For four years it functioned without a president.

Robert Underwood Johnson has served as secretary since the academy was founded.

Present quarters of the academy are in a beautiful building on Riverside drive which was dedicated in 1931 by the late Marshal Foch, himself a member of the French academy.

A letter was read by Dr. Butler over to house the art exhibitions and possible academy rooms.

Representatives of many of the world's most important art organizations attended this spring assembly. Guests of honor will include Sir Edwin Lutyens, president of the Royal Academy, sculptor; Sir Reginald Blomfield, architect, and John Galsworthy, author, all of the London Mercury.

An address by Prof. George Pierce Baker of Yale, and a private exhibition of the personal manuscripts of academy members were on the program, which also included presentation of three gold medals, one each for distinction in arts and letters, for stage direction and for advance in radio.

Early records of the academy reveal that its founders had in mind the traditions of the Institute de France, notably the Academie Francaise. The American academy was designed with the idea of avoiding factionism and to provide a native institution for the encouragement of the creative.

Some of the better known "academicians" are Booth Tarkington, Carl Sandburg, Charles Dana Gibson, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Henry Van Dyke, Owen Wister, Childe Hassam, Lorado Taft and Frederick MacMonnies.

Hardy Takes Stand, Makes Admissions and Denials

SACRAMENTO, April 23. (AP)—Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy, white-haired jurist of Los Angeles, sat upon the witness stand in his impeachment trial for four hours today, denying and admitting his actions in behalf of Aimee Semple McPherson, and her church, Angelus temple.

Briefly, Judge Hardy admitted that:

He accepted a $2,500 check from Mrs. McPherson "as a gift."

He dictated assignment of a check to Rosario Hawkins, building contractor with whom Mrs. McPherson had had an argument over work done on Angelus temple.

He hired detectives to investigate the Long Beach, auto and directed the investigation of the Carmel estate of the McPherson "kidnaping" investigation.

He corresponded with Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Riedell, who was to produce the mysterious "Miss X" advice given her.

He attended several conferences at Angelus temple with Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, detectives and attorneys.

Judge Hardy denied:

That he ever told Mr. Wiseman-Riedell he was "a respected judge on the superior bench of Los Angeles and had considerable influence with Asa Keyes," Los Angeles district attorney.

That he showed the "Miss X" advice with her.

That he ever said to any member of the 1926 grand jury "you fellows have got to let the Aimee case."

That he suggested to Mesdames McPherson or Kennedy or any of their attorneys that evidence be suppressed or witnesses withheld from the district attorney or grand jury.

That he lied or counselled attorneys for Mrs. McPherson.

That he asked or expected compensation from the evangelist for advice given her.

BIBLE QUOTED TO HELP WETS

Illinois House Repeals Law For Enforcement of Prohibition

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 23. (AP) The Illinois house of representatives today passed the Weber-O'Grady bill which provides for repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act, backbone of prohibition enforcement in the state. The vote was 77 to 68.

Carrying the exact number of votes necessary for passage of the bill, the "votes" carried the measure on its path to the senate. It passed the house early in the day on the second reading, and then will be subject to a reflection vote of three-fifths.

Bible in hand, from which he quoted, Rep. Thomas Gerdes, co-author of the bill clashed with "dry" leaders just before the roll call, and precipitated one of the most colorful debates of the session. Gerdes—he sat east of the Rhine—denounced the "drys" for their "unchristian" methods in his country in the last 10 years were laid at the door of prohibition, he O'Grady, who stated that the state prohibition laws violate the constitutional promise that a man's home shall be inviolate.

The enforcement bill—he said "we never punished while the man with a glass of liquor or a quart of wine in his basement to invite himself to eat." He was rebuked by Rep. Charles McFarlin of California, who reminded aloft for 22 hours and 3 minutes.

The 17-year-old pilot was circling Roosevelt field late today after twenty hours of air travel in a cabin monoplane. The ship carried 165 gallons of gasoline, enough for a flight of 30 hours under normal conditions, and the weather was considered ideal.

TONNAGE BASIS OF COMPARING NAVIES OPPOSED

Washington Hopes to Have New System Worked Out at Geneva

NEW PLAN INVOLVED

Would Include Armor, Guns, Speed and Age as Essentials

WASHINGTON, April 23 —(AP)— A new method of measuring the relative fighting strength of warships and a postponing of the war to reduction of existing and authorized sea craft are the main accomplishments which the American government hopes for in the preliminary naval conference at Geneva.

Since the fueling of a basis involves an accord of views upon highly sentimental naval questions, the Washington administration realized that negotiations to this end were slowly. It is for this reason that the United States has ordered that the naval conference be held before that called another conference for reduction of sea power would be entered. Washington officials in their hope that the preliminary conference will bring some tangible results toward ending competitive naval construction.

What the United States is now proposing is evaluation of the fighting elements of ships on the basis of size of guns, thickness of armor plate, speed and age as well as actual tonnage, with each factor to count for as many points in a basis to be agreed upon.

An equation in the general problem is that of determining the value in time of war fast merchant liners equipped to mount 8-inch guns which could be used as commerce raiding cruisers as were the German Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Allied Freidrich in the early days of the World War.

Also Naval Bases

Chairman Britten, of the House Naval committee, said today if Ambassador Gibson was proposing to agree this type of ship he was overlooking an American opportunity and playing into the hands of Great Britain which would have a tremendous disadvantage of its own scattered.

He added that naval bases also should be taken into account in arriving at the relative effectiveness of fighting craft.

The House naval chairman described Ambassador Gibson's declarations as a "complete surrender" of the position maintained by the American delegates at the last Geneva conference which resulted in victory for British diplomacy."

President Hoover was privately informed by Hugh Gibson, Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, and Admiral Jackson, Calling at the White House on another mission, the Ambassador said everyone in his own country seemed very much satisfied and had expressed the Gibson declaration "most heartily."

PLANE DROPS INTO CITY'S TRAFFIC

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—(AP)—Forced down by a dead motor, Lieut. Harold F. Brown, March field army pilot, used power lines to break his fall and landed in North avenue in busy automobile traffic here this afternoon.

Lieut. Brown escaped a serious shudder hour. Lieut. Harry Brown was with him, escaped with a few scratches.

Witnesses said the plane went in-to a tailspin in front of 1,000 feet and Lieut. Brown unsuccessfully attempted to right it. The plane ripped through the power wires, landed on its wheels and bounced into the air. It then crashed an automobile driven by John T. Young. The motorist was not injured.

Mesquite Moves Over to Sasabe Says Merchant

Mexico Paying in Part For Services Given Wounded Men

Mesquite, Sonora, has moved over to Sasabe, Ariz.

So says Eugenio P. Serrano, a merchant of Altar, Sonora, who has been doing considerable relief work on the border since the federal capture of Mesquite last Friday.

Don Eugenio was in Tucson yesterday, as the guest of his cousin, Luis P. Serrano, of 346 South Fourth avenue.

"The entire population of Mesquite has moved over to the American side," Don Eugenio said yesterday. "This has been done in order to avoid bloodshed, in case there should be another battle."

The Altar merchant added that the seven wounded rebel soldiers who he helped move to Hermosillo La Cruz Monday are being lodged at that ranch free of charge by Mrs. Arthur Hardcastle, of Kansas City, the proprietor. The Mexican federal government, however, is furnishing the food and medical supplies for the men, and also paying the doctor's bill for his extra services in preparing meals for the wounded men. The patients are being cared for by Dr. J. M. Hardy, of Sasabe, Ariz.

All that has been done with regard to the case of the wounded of Mesquite, both federals and rebels, has been done at the instance and with the authorization of Juan Escobedo, Mexican consul general at Tucson, Don Eugenio added.

DAWES MISSION DRAFTING WILL

Efforts at Resuscitation Fail; Germany Offers No Alternative

PARIS, April 23 (AP)—After a little more than ten weeks of existence endeavoring to settle the problem of German reparations, the Dawes committee of experts has practically passed away. Efforts to resuscitate it by the Allied experts with a view to bringing demands and offers nearer together, it is generally believed, however, no hope is held that the divergences can be so narrowed as to permit agreement for final liquidation of the reparations problem.

It is now fairly well established that Dr. Schacht, head of the German delegation, brought back no new offer with him from Berlin and has not made one of his own responsibility.

The proceedings today were of the simplest. When Young and Lamont called the full committee to session, they found the German representatives had tried to coordinate the adverse views of the experts was held on the table. The report merely announced that the endorsement had failed to bring about an agreement on reparations figures.

The report was filed and without further discussion it was proposed to appoint a special committee to study the principal points to be treated in the full committee's report.

That proposal was adopted and the chief experts of each delegation were named as members of the special committee. They entered upon their duties immediately.

The first official communique of the second Dawes committee, issued immediately after the day's session, bears the way open for speculation to both optimists and pessimists.

It announces the appointment of the special committee to prepare the report on the points already agreed upon, whom the delegates continue efforts to reach agreement on others so as to facilitate the "final work" of the committee.

The principal point on which agreement was not reached is of course the question of annuities, but there are other details concerned, the organization of a proposed international bank that will require serious work; otherwise, the committee has practically agreed on all essentials, including establishment of the bank, the proportion of payments in kind and the division of annuities into two parts, one conditional and protected by the transfer clauses and the other unconditional.

ORIGINS PROVISION PASSES COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, April 23. (AP)—Foes of the national origins immigration quota basis failed today in their first senate move toward repeal of that controversial clause.

Notwithstanding President Hoover's announced opposition to the national origins provision, the senate immigration committee voted 4 to 2 to lay aside two bills aimed at it. The new quota basis will go into effect July 1 unless legislation to the contrary is enacted before then.

THREE REBELS EXECUTED AS ALLEGED SPIES

Two in Nogales, One Farther South in Sonora

NAMES ARE UNKNOWN

700 Federals Slain in Battle, Claim On Border

NOGALES, Ariz., April 24.—(AP)—The international line here was closed suddenly without explanation by Mexican officials shortly after midnight. No persons were allowed to pass in either direction. The order was made to include United States border officials who sought to enter Sonora to discover the reason for the move.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 23.—(AP)—The vicious crack of firing squad rifles has been heard in re-echo through Sonora, and executioners' blood-stained bullets plow sullenly into adobe walls as rebel forces, oppressed from the east and south by advancing federal troops, seek to thicken their hold on the one remaining insurgent state of Mexico before disciplined victims, supposed federal sympathizers or informers, have crumpled into waiting, rough-hewn caskets, and been deposited into unmarked graves well in the Sonora desert.

Two of these executions took place in Nogales, Sonora, across the border from here. Meagre reports of the third today filtered in from Hermosillo, 150 miles south. Jesus Arbida, a taxi driver, formerly of Mexicali, Baja, California, and known in Nogales, Hermosillo and other Sonora cities was reported shot before an adobe wall in the Sonora state capital after "some papers" had been discovered on his person.

Identity Doubted

The names of the two men, both Mexicans, who faced firing squads in Nogales, Sonora, had not been established definitely tonight. Rumors linking various persons with the executions shuttled back and forth in pulsing the line. Confirmation from the border cities, but in most instances the supposed victims disconcertingly turned up and denied it. One was a "young man in a white shirt" who was shot down yesterday afternoon. Word spread that no was Jose Hermandez, supposedly a Mexican federal officer, who had been some days ago. The identification could not be made between the gilled and bullet-riddled bodies, the rifles of his executioners just before dark last night. It seemed certain, however, that his uniform was an officer calmly had delivered the coup de grace with a revolver. "Pedro Robles" was the name which, in turn, followed him to his grave—but Pedro Robles tonight was in no Nogales, Sonora, started, under military arrest, dining on frijoles. Held presumably as a federal sympathizer, Robles, also from Mexicali, was a possible candidate for the firing squad, but had not as yet been called again to face the rifles.

Battle Is Rumored

Reports came into Nogales, Sonora, today, and were disseminated over rebel military headquarters, of a battle at Hermosillo, Sonora, toward which point rebel and federal troops had been converging for several days. The rebel announcements asserted that the advance guard of General Calles' army had been driven back, but details were lacking.

An order from rebel military headquarters, sent here by General Francisco Borquez, Northern Sonora commander, to have been misinterpreted by customs agents, resulted in the selling by rebel officials today of many American owned automobiles. For three hours during the day, cars owned by United States citizens were crossed the boundary into Mexico, failed to return, causing great confusion in the American town. When the matter was taken up with headquarters Borquez promptly vacated the customs office and ordered an end to all leaving Americans released. He said Mexican owned cars were not being allowed to return to the United States from Sonora, but that his order had not been intended to apply to automobiles owned by United States citizens. When the order became known, viewed in Nogales, Ariz., near the international line became engorged with automobiles bearing Mexican licenses, whose
