McDonald's headquarters reported returns from 899 ballots with 63,629 votes for McDonald and 57,473 for Abel. In Chicago, Abel's backers claimed 74,900 votes for him and 46,100 for McDonald with 109 ballots reported.

Estes was locked up in Texas Jan. 18, a few hours after the Supreme Court rejected an appeal from his federal conviction on charges of conspiracy and mail fraud. His sentence was 15 years imprisonment.

These comments were offered to clarify the U. S. position on the present phase of the war and to convey forcefully to the Hanoi authorities that since the events of last weekend Washington is prepared to use drastic force whenever it is justified in our view.

The discrepancy in count from Abel and McDonald apparently meant that each was getting the fastest returns from locally available to the steelworkers.

Counsel for Estes sought at least temporary freedom for him, after U.S. District Judge R. Erving Thomson, in El Paso, ordered $100,000 bond re-secured. The attorneys, in a petition, asked that the conviction order be set aside, thus permitting Estes to be freed pending Supreme Court action on another petition to be filed later. The second petition will ask reconsideration of the rejection of Estes' appeal.
