

Middle school learning gaps

Tucson Unified School District administrators showed this graphic to the district's governing board Tuesday but did not name the school. The top row shows students' current levels in English language arts at the school. The bottom row shows how much each category improved from the beginning to midpoint of this school year. About 65% of the students are still two or more grade levels behind.

Current placement distribution

