

TPD's immigration checks far below expectations

Tucson Police Department created a form to be filled out during each immigration check to show compliance with the law. Chief Roberto Villaseñor expected 50,000 inquiries in the first year, including the checks that are supposed to be done during every arrest. There were 9,219 inquiries documented the first year.

