

The report that comes from the east that a large sanitarium is to be established in Pima county for the accommodation and treatment of those affected with tuberculosis, and that Andrew Carnegie, Helen Gould and other wealthy philanthropists will probably give their aid to such a sanitarium, is of special interest to the people of Tucson. Pima county is in the climatic belt recommended by the U. S. health commission as being the most favorable in the United States for such a sanitarium.