DIAZ MUST GO OUT BEFORE AN END WILL COME

Insurrecto Junta Issues Statement Demanding Resignation of President and All State Governors.

DE LA BARRA MADE FOREIGN MINISTER

Leaves Washington to Take Post—In Meantime Small Movements of Insurrectos Continue—Colorado River Involved.

EL PASO, Texas, March 25.—Whether the resignation of the Diaz cabinet will have the effect of ending the insurrection depends on the reforms which are expected immediately and the announcement also of the part Diaz himself expects to take in the future of the country. The insurrecto junta made this announcement while couriers were being sent from the border with messages to Madero.

Madero will be fully advised of the Mexico City developments, and his reply is expected to have an important influence on future events. In the meantime the insurrectos have no intention of slackening activities. "The war is waged to oust Diaz, not merely his cabinet. All the governors of states must resign next," said Garza, the insurrecto secretary of state. "Appointees of Diaz are as much a part of his machinery as the cabinet. When the governors resign, and the states are allowed an election to select their own officials, then you may look for a new Mexico."

A shipment of 25 cars of rails was made from Juarez for rebuilding the Mexican Northwestern at Casas Grandes. This was the first train out in two weeks. Scouts reported no insurrectos along the line of the Northwestern.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Ambassador de la Barra has been named minister of foreign affairs in the new Mexican cabinet. He telegraphed his acceptance to Mexico City.

De La Barra, in farewell visits to the president and secretary of state, accepted their congratulations and leaves tomorrow for Mexico. In discussing his appointment as minister of foreign relations the ambassador disclosed the fact that his name was mentioned in that connection by supporters of both the federal government and the revolution.

MODENA, Italy, March 25.—Gen. Bernardo Reyes, asked his opinion of the situation in Mexico, said he is too far away to follow events closely, but he believed the resignation of the cabinet will aid in the pacification of the country. He thought it likely that several of the ministers will resume power and gave it as his opinion that the insurrection will be crushed within two months. He expects to depart shortly for Paris.

MEXICALI, March 25.—Leyva, asked if he expected a fight soon with the approaching federal army, laughed and said that all the country south of Black Butte is flooded by the Colorado, and even if they get out, their assets, the artillery, will be hopelessly bagged.

NOGALES, March 25.—Gen. Torres is moving three detachments of regulars, one of 500 and another of 300, to different points toward Ures, where Juan Cabral, an insurrecto leader is encamped, with the evident purpose of surrounding him. A battle is probable soon.

TWENTY SIX GO DOWN IN SHIPS NEAR VICTORIA

Steamer Capsized in Storm When Passengers Were Shut in Cabin to Escape Hail and Rain—Helpless

VICTORIA, B. C., March 25.—Not one of twenty-two passengers and four crew members lives to tell the tale of the capsizing of the steamer Seichel off Beachey Head, Vancouver Island, during a gale yesterday. Those from the shore who saw the disaster noticed the vessel swing around into a trough of the sea, hang there helplessly for six minutes, when the wind struck her apparently broadside, she keeled over and disappeared almost instantly. There was hail, rain and a heavy mist, so the passengers, shut up in the cabin, must have been carried down with the vessel.

Considerable excitement was caused in San Antonio today when the train from Laredo arrived at half-past one o'clock without the passenger cars from Mexico City or other points south of the border. DIXIE FLYER OF THE COAST R. R. WRECKED

Seven Passengers Killed and Over a Dozen Injured on a Georgia Trestle.

OCILLA, Ga., March 25.—The Dixie Flyer on the Atlantic Coast railroad, bound from Chicago to Jacksonville, went through a trestle over the Apalachee river near here at 5 o'clock this morning, killing seven passengers, while more than a dozen were injured. Five coaches jumped the bridge and are ten feet under water. The fireman is among the known dead. Engineer Green is reported badly hurt.

The first and second class coaches and the first Pullman sleeper went into the river, carrying away 400 feet of the trestle. The accident was caused by the breaking of an axle on the engine while midway on the trestle. As the coaches are under water, the dead may increase when they are raised.

MRS. EDDY'S NEPHEW SUES AS INTERVENOR

CONCORD, N. H., March 24.—Counsel for John H. Baker of this city, who asserts he is a grandnephew of the late Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, filed a petition in the superior court asking leave to intervene in the suit against Henry M. Baker of Bow, executor of the Eddy estate, brought by George W. Clover of Lead, S. D., Mrs. Eddy's son, and Dr. E. J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., her adopted son. They allege the residuary clause of Mrs. Eddy's will is void because it provides for a bequest to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, of an amount far in excess of that permitted by law. Mr. Baker takes the ground that he should be permitted to intervene in this suit because if the court should declare the residuary clause invalid he would be entitled to share in the residue.

LARGE FEDERAL ARMY ADVANCING ON MEXICALI

MEXICALI, March 24.—That the federal army is advancing along the San Felipe wagon road east of the Cocopah mountains, and is not more than three days' march away from here, is the statement of Jose Garcia, a Mexican, brought in by rebel scouts today. Garcia says this is the main federal army, and that it has field guns, which are being transported by forty pack mules. The statement bears out the belief previously expressed that the federals would advance on Mexicali by way of the so-called southern route.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE IN A NEW YORK FIRE

Girl Employes of Shirtwaist Factory Ecitedly Leap from Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Stories to Death.

HUNDRED AND FORTY-EIGHT ARE KNOWN DEAD

Heartrending Scenes Enacted by the Score—Owners of Establishment Escapes Over Roofs—University Students Save 40 Girls.

NEW YORK, March 25.—One hundred and forty-eight persons, nine-tenths of them girls of the East Side, were crushed to death on pavements, smothered or burned to a crisp this afternoon in the worst fire since that of the steamer General Slocum in 1904. Nearly all were employed by the Triangle Shirtwaist Company on the eighth, ninth and tenth floors of No. 23 Washington place. A corner of the eighth floor was the point of the origin of the fire, the cause being unknown. The three upper floors were the only ones swept. There was not an outside fire escape on the building. The partners in the firm, Isaac Harris and Max Blank escaped, carrying over an adjoining roof Blank's two young daughters and their governess. Fifty bodies were found on the ninth floor, sixty-three or more were crushed to death by jumping and over thirty clogged the elevator shafts. The loss of property was under $100,000.

At ten minutes before five waylaid on the street below saw the windows of the upper floors black with girls scolding to the sills. Then began a rain of human bodies, flattening out on the pavements below. The crowd shouted a vain appeal to them not to jump. Four fire alarms were sounded in fifteen minutes. Five girls came down so heavily that they crushed through the very streets to the vaults below. In a half hour after its start the fire had done its work and in an hour it was extinguished.

Although the building stands on a corner the only ways of escape were two freight elevators, two passenger elevators, two stairways, one interior fire escape and a light shaft. All were almost useless. A woman who escaped climbed over roofs or fled before the rush and smoke cut them off. Seven hundred hands, 500 of them women, employed by the shirtwaist company, sat in by rows of whirling machines and tables piled with flimsy cloth. The lint laden air filled with flames in a moment, catching the operators sitting and searing their lungs as they inhaled the flames. Nets stretched by the first fire company to arrive were soon gorged with bodies, weighted to a bursting point and bodies kept tumbling to the pavement through the broken meshes.

Five minutes before quitting time the first breath of flame curled over the edge of a pile of skirting on the eighth floor. From an office building across the street a woman saw a girl throw up a window. Behind her she saw a curtain of yellow flame. She climbed to the sill, stood as a black outline against the light, then went whirling downward through the woven wire and glass of a canopy to the flagging below. Others flashed through the air like rockets. It was 85 feet to the ground from the eighth and 110 from the top floor. The crackle of the flames drowned their cries.

One young girl hung for three minutes by her finger tips and then a tongue of flame licked them. She dropped into the fire net. Two women fell at the same moment, the strand parted and three more were added to the swinging wire, spanning the street and seized it simultaneously. It snapped like a rotten whipcord and they crashed a hundred feet to their death. One girl dropped to a tarpaulin held by three men, tore it from their grasp when she struck and every bone was broken in her body. Such instances were numerous. A man and woman embraced and kissed, he hurled her down, then jumped. Both are dead.

A man armed with a club held back frantic girls at one of the elevators. Thirty were admitted at a time and taken down as fast as possible. The tenth floor of an adjoining building is the law department of New York University. Students found ladders and rescued forty girls off the roof. Hyman Mazcher, a cutter, slid down an elevator cable ten stories and was found alive at the bottom up to his armpits in water. A hundred mounted policemen had to charge the crowd of tens of thousands repeatedly.

Led by Fire Chief Croker, a squad of firemen stormed the stairways and got access to the building at seven o'clock. Fifty charred bodies were on the ninth floor, some buried until recognition was impossible, a half dozen being only flesh shredded bones. Here there were women with limbs burned
