

Killings surge in Tucson during 2021

Already this year, Tucson has had more homicides than in any of the previous three full years. There were 68 in 2020, 49 in 2019 and 60 in 2018. Tucson police report 74 so far this year within city limits, but the count shown below is off by two because it comes from a different source, the Pima County Medical Examiner's Office, using a different categorization.
