IRISH HOME

House of Commons Will Formally Take Up Irish Question at Meet Today

British Government's Project Centers on Establishment of Two Parliaments in Ireland, One For Ulster and One For the South; Bill Based on Lloyd George's Declaration That Separation Is Unacceptable

London, Feb. 25.—The bill for Irish home rule, long promised by the government, was presented in the house of commons today. The first reading was of the title alone and was a mere formality preliminary to taking up the measure at the session tomorrow.

The government's project centers on the setting up of two parliaments in Ireland, one for the south and one for the north. Home rule, as the government hopes to give it to Ireland, is based primarily upon the declaration of the premier in his December speech, that "Great Britain cannot accept separation."

But the largest opportunity will be given to the Irish people to unite on the constitution of a parliament in the course of time which will embrace Ireland as a whole.

One of the fundamental features of the bill always has been a council representing the two parliaments and it is understood that this council will derive its powers from the two bodies which will be responsible for its selection. The proposed legislature will have extensive powers and jurisdiction in the imperial parliament.
