A Rush for the Gold Fields

Guaymas, Mex., May 24.—About fifteen miners from Arizona, en route to the placers, arrived on today's train.

One little floop, which was crowded with only twelve passengers, sailed for the diggings today. All the lodging houses in town are filled with strangers, waiting for a chance to sail. A portion of them will be accommodated on a large schooner which will sail tomorrow at 4 p. m.

The Spanish Students Figaro troupe gave a successful musical entertainment at the Theater Alvarez last evening. The house was literally crowded and all were satisfied with the performance.

Opening the Big Bridge.

New York, May 24.—Today was a gala day in Brooklyn. Throughout the city there appeared to be a general surrender of business to sight-seeing, and celebration is the main business.

The heights and many streets, clear out into the suburbs, are decked most gayly with flags, bunting and flowers for the bridge with the city over the river. Public buildings, private houses, street-cars, wagons and trucks fly colors of all nations in honor of the opening of the big bridge. On every hand preparations are being made for the illumination to-night. Great satisfaction is expressed among the people of Brooklyn at the completion of the bridge. The procession of Brooklyn officials and trustees, escorted by the Third regiment, arrived at the station at 1 o'clock. The regiment passed upon the anchorage, where it took a position. Mr. Roebing, wife of the invalid chief-engineer, and his party arrived afterwards in twenty-five carriages, and at 1:30 Bishop Littlejohn and his assistants, in their robes, took their way to the great structure, where a crowd that already filled every particle of space in the station. Hundreds were turned away without getting seats. Salutes announcing the president's arrival at the New York tower were fired by the war vessels in the harbor and forts. At 2:15 p. m. the yards of the bridge were manned. Fifteen minutes later the cannon firing from Fort Greene and the navy yard announced the arrival of the procession at the Brooklyn tower, where Mayor Lewis received it. On account of the great crowd much difficulty was experienced in the movement of officials in obtaining a passage-way to the platform. At the conclusion of prayer by Bishop Littlejohn, J. S. F. Stanahan, who presided successfully, introduced the acting president of the board of trustees, who formally presented the bridge to the people of New York and Brooklyn through their respective mayors, each made a speech of acceptance. Congressman Hewitt also made an address, and Rev. Dr. Storrs delivered an oration and Levy succeeded in giving one of his cornet "Star Spangle Banner," "Hail Columbia" and "Yankee Doodle."

San Francisco Splinters.

San Francisco, May 24.—Thomas McCloskey has obtained judgment against D. A. Pickinaph, a policeman, for $10,000 damages. The complaint averred that plaintiff was thrown upon the ground by defendant, thereby breaking his right leg.

Marks Sellerbach sues Charles Attenburg, his nephew, for $13,860.27, which plaintiff alleges defendant converted while managing plaintiff's branch bank at Moore's Flat from 1868 to 1880.

District Attorney Hall, of Oakland, is about to file a complaint against the Central Pacific railroad company for $28,828.90, state and county taxes for 1882-83.

The second annual reunion of the Young Men's Christian Association takes place this morning. Addresses will be made by Rev. J. Q. A. Henry, of Sacramento, Rev. F. A. Horton, of Oakland, and L. F. Gay, of Los Angeles. A large delegation is expected to be present. A musical and literary program and athletic exhibition will begin during the evening.

J. J. Daly, the saloon keeper who was stabbed last Saturday by Abbott, died last night at the city prison hospital. Abbott was charged with murder.

Towne Injured.

San Francisco, May 24.—A. N. Towne, general manager of the Central Pacific railroad, met with a painful accident yesterday evening. In an altercation between a kindling wood peddler and a teamster as to right of way, the peddler hurled a stick of redwood at his opponent, but missed him. The stick went crashing through the window of a passing street car in which was Mr. Towne, striking him on the head, knocking him senseless. Examination found his left ear and side of his head severely cut and a piece of glass driven into the wound, but it is thought it will not prove at all serious. The peddler was frightened at the consequences of his deed, and fled to his horse and got away, there not being a policeman near to arrest him.

Confidence in Crook.

Chicago, May 24.—General Schofield stopped in this city yesterday on his way to California, going at once to the residence of his father, Rev. James Schofield. When asked if he thought the expedition across the Mexican border was liable to terminate disastrously for the troops, he replied: "I think Crook understood the situation perfectly before he made the venture, and I do not think he would imperil the lives of his men in what promised to be a hopeless undertaking."

Railway Appliances.

Chicago, May 24.—The national exhibition of railway appliances was thrown open to the public tonight. The opening exercises including prayer by Professor David Swing and address of welcome by Mayor Carter H. Harrison.

Railroad Tariff.

Chicago, May 24.—At the Iowa Trunk Line Association commission there was submitted a dispatch from Frank Annand, of the eastern trunk lines had decided to stop all prorating arrangements of California business, and that hereafter they will charge on such business their regular proportion. Since the extension of the Southern Pacific to New Orleans, the Central Pacific people have been diverting all business they could go by steamer to New Orleans and thence by rail to San Francisco. Besides this, the Central Pacific has for many years past made contracts with California shippers, who pledge themselves to make shipments by the Pacific Mail steamship line, paying the rate about the third of the published tariff rates. After discussing the matter for some time, during which opinions were freely expressed that the action of the trunk lines was just and proper, and calculated to break up the discriminations heretofore practiced by the Central Pacific, the commissioner was instructed to request the various Pacific roads west of the Missouri river to meet the Iowa trunk lines in this city next Tuesday.

A Mining Row.

Tombstone, A. T., May 24.—The case of the Copper Prince vs. the Copper Queen being a suit to make a temporary injunction against the copper Queen perpetrating and involving the title of large ore bodies, went to the jury last night. The case has been on trial seven days. After being out fifteen hours a verdict was rendered in favor of the Copper Prince. At close of the case hard words passed between Chris Batterman, superintendent of the Head-Centre mine, prominent witness for the Copper Prince, and Professor Blake, the expert of the Copper Queen. Blake accused Batterman of making a false statement on the stand in relation to certain maps introduced by him (Blake). Batterman proved by reference to the court reporter's notes and an examination of the maps by mining engineers that he was correct in his testimony, and the maps not correct. Blake persisted in his statement, and was told by Batterman that he was a wilful liar, and nothing but his gray hairs prevented Batterman from throwing him through the window.

A Brakeman Saves a Train.

Tehachapi, May 24.—Emigrant train No. 22, bound north, consisting of thirty-two loaded box cars, five emigrant cars and caboose in charge of Conductor Moore, with two brakemen, was wrecked going down the hill, one mile north of this place. The accident was caused by a broken beam dropping on the track. When the brakes were applied, the train broke into three sections, consisting of the five emigrant cars and the caboose, and the five box cars, four of which left the track and were badly wrecked. The middle section consisted of five box-cars, the front of twenty-two box-cars and the engine. Alexander Cochran, one of the brakemen, was in the rear and seeing the five box-cars following them, signaled the engineer to run out of danger. He then jumped from the train and, at the risk of his life, boarded the five cars and stopped them. The train had one hundred emigrants on board.

Rich Silver Mines.

Prescott, May 24.—The Journal this evening interviewed Secretary Van Arman, who has just returned from Turkey creek, twenty-three miles southwest of Prescott, where a marvelously rich discovery has been made of horn silver. Two prospectors discovered a blind lead five days ago, and since then they have taken out over thirty thousand dollars worth of ore, in sinking three feet. The find has caused the greatest excitement, and people are flocking there by the score, and the surrounding hills are full of prospectors. The ore is seventy five per cent silver, assaying twenty-six thousand dollars per ton and believed to be the richest discovery ever made in the territory.

Robbed of $16,000.

Cleveland, May 24.—The U. S. express company's money carrier Alexander Granger, received Sunday a package of money and other valuables from the east-bound Lake Shore train at the union depot. This morning he put the money and other valuables in a buggy standing outside. Somebody from the ice room called him, and no one being in sight he stepped a little way from the vehicle to ascertain who called; returning he drove to the express company's office and there discovered that two bags similar to the company's pouches, but filled with brown paper, had been stolen, for the one containing money valued at $15,000.

The Russian government has given the press representatives twenty pounds each to pay carriage hire during the festivities.

Woman Who Do Not Marry.

The great question becomes more difficult as civilization advances. Those women who do not marry, what are they to do with their lives? For some fate decides; often severely enough, laying on them the sacred burden of aged parents or helpless brothers and sisters, or orphan nephews and nieces. Others, left without natural duties and ties, have the strength to make both for themselves. I know no position more happy, more useful (and therefore happier), than that of a single woman, who, having inherited or earned sufficient money and position, has courage to assume the status and responsibilities of a married woman. She has, except the husband, all the advantages of the matronly position, and almost none of its drawbacks. So much lies in her power to do, unhindered, especially the power of doing good. She can be a friend to the friendless, and a mother to the orphan; she can fill her house with happy guests after the true Christian type—the guests that cannot repay her for her kindness. Free to dispose of herself in all ways, she can be a good neighbor, a good citizen—whether or not she attains the doubtful privilege of female suffrage. Her worldly goods, her time, and her affections are exclusively her own, to bestow wisely and well. Solitary, to a certain extent, her life must always be; but it need never be a morbid, selfish or gloomy life. I think it might be all the better for our girls of this generation, which understands the duties and destinies of women a little better than the last one, if we were to hold up to them—since they cannot all be wives and mothers—this ideal of a happy single life, which lies before any girl who either inherits an independence, or has the courage and capacity to earn one. But such cases are, and must always be, exceptional. The great bulk of unmarried women are very helpless creatures, either hampered with duties, or seeking feebly for duties that do not come; miserably overworked or disgracefully idle; pitifully dependent on male relations, or else angrily vituperating the opposite sex for their denied rights or peripatous unreserved wrongs. Between these two lies a medium class, silent and suffering, who have just enough money to save them from the necessity of earning it, just enough brains and heart to make them feel the blankness of their life without strength to obviate it—longing for some occupation, and yet unable to strike out a career for themselves, and cheat fate by making neither a sad nor useless life.

A Limekiln Club Sick Excess.

The committee to the Sick reported that China Green, a local member, had applied for relief on the grounds that he had fallen against a hot stove in a grocery and severely burnt his leg, while defending the Limekiln Club from aspersion of a white man. The committee had to consider the application, holding that Brother Green should have taken care of his own leg and gone home, or else moved out on the sidewalk before beginning his argument.

They also reported that Elder Standby Taylor was sick in bed with blood-poisoning, and had filed his claim for $3 per week.

"Does any ob de committee know how he pizened his blood?" asked the President.

None of them did.

"Do Elder an a party fa'r man an a member who allus pays his dues," continued the President, "but he has a little failin'." "He finds a bottle on de street he don't keer what de label reads so he goes an de contents tinks his palate. He opens a bottle one day he's woken an swallowed half its contents befo' he discovered dat he didn't 'sactly relish it. He's old an' tough an' will probably pull frow, but he can't have any money from dis club jist de same. A man o' his age who can't tell boss medicine from Mrs. Winslow's soothin' sirrup mus' suffer de consequences."—Detroit Free Press.

The following is copied from an old issue of the Standard: W. S. Williams, of Illinois, announced that his wife, who had left his bed and board without cause, he will not be responsible for any debts she may contract.

"Ann Eliza, Ann Eliza, Once I loved, but now I despise her, And I no longer prize her, I will go and advertise her, For although I am not a miser I won't pay for what she buys her."
