

Prinsco Celebrates 50 Years of Putting People First

This year, Prinsco celebrates 50 years in the manufacturing business.

This milestone represents decades of hard work and growth. It represents thousands of employees who have made that success possible. It also shows how family ownership, strong values, and putting people first has made Prinsco a great place to work for generations.

From the factory floor to the leadership team, employees describe Prinsco as a place where relationships matter, hard work is respected, and everyone has the opportunity to contribute. The company's story is one of growth and change, but also of stability and consistency in the values that guide its people every day.

Deep Roots and Strong Growth
Through four generations, from the company's beginning in Prinsburg, Minnesota, Prinsco has been family-owned. The company's first plant manufactured cement tile for agricultural drainage systems.

After 10 years, Prinsco shifted to HDPE plastic pipe—a lighter, easier-to-install, and higher-performing product. This evolution made Prinsco a leader in the agricultural water management industry, a role it has held ever since.

In the decades that followed, Prinsco expanded to 21 locations nationwide. As they grew, Prinsco saw opportunities to solve water management challenges in other markets, leading them to expand their product offerings to serve the markets of stormwater, onsite, and residential.

- The company now manufactures:
- Agricultural water management solutions
  - Stormwater solutions for commercial construction
  - Septic products for the onsite wastewater market
  - Retail products for residential construction and DIY homeowners

A lot has changed since 1975. New water quality regulations, improved technology, advances in product materials and design, and environmental changes have impacted the business, employees, and their customers. What's remained the same is Prinsco's commitment to its deeply-held values of hard work, integrity, relationships, and humility.

Values in Action
In an industry that is consistently changing, Prinsco's values provide a solid foundation that employees and customers can depend on. These simple, powerful values influence everything from teamwork on the line to how customer calls are answered. They ...
