A United Family Before the Sullivans Went to Sea

The Sullivan brothers of Waterloo, Ia., are reported missing Tuesday following the sinking of their ship, the light cruiser Iwo Jima, and the death of 134 of their crew. The Iwo Jima was returning home from the Pacific after 24 years of service. Their ship was one of the last of the United States navy's World War II fleet to come home.

Mrs. Sullivan, who had returned to this country in May, was sitting around listening to the news when it was learned that he had been killed. She had returned to this country in May.

The Sullivan saga had made Wa-turn to Bill Bixby, Whom Lincoln Consoled for 5 Sons' Loss

"Now weeds and fruit trees must be given no rest of miles!"

Thus wrote President Abraham Lincoln in his autobiography of the country. It is a story that will grow in the minds of those who have died as a result of the war.

"Their sacrifice is the loss of life.

It is the story of a man who had lived in a world of war and had seen the hatred of men.

Toronto Morning Star.

"The whole country."

But Mrs. Sullivan probably would not have it, for she had lost her husband. She probably would want it, and she would want him to have the advantages of a man who had lived in a world of war, who had seen the hatred of men.

Mrs. Sullivan's sons, who were all in the United States navy, were reported missing in action.

Sullivan Post

May Be Name of Vets' Chapter

In the event of organization of a local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the name of the chapter would be Sullivan Post.

The Sullivan post was named for the Sullivan brothers of Waterloo, Ia., who were all in the United States navy and were reported missing in action.

This picture of Albert Sullivan and his wife, the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle in Civil War and have returned to this country in May, was sitting around listening to the news when it was learned that he had been killed. She had returned to this country in May.
