Williston man dies in COVID-19 vaccination

Funeral Home Facebook

be livestreamed on the Bakken Elementary scheduled for 11 a.m. the mid 2000s.

transitioned to trucking High School, founded the neck.”

Deaconess Hospital March 16, according to Montana.

a fall at Bridger Bowl one dose: 20.1% doses: 21.1%

dose: 35.2%

N. DAKOTA OIL

YOUR WEATHER

Wednesday Thursday

46 51

TO DAY

Williston man dies in skiing accident

A 53-year-old Williston man died last week after a fall at Bridger Bowl ski area in Bozeman, Montana.

Robert “Bill” Erickson fell while skiing Tuesday, March 16, according to a news release from the Gallatin County Sheriff’s Office in Bozeman.

“He was transported to Bozeman Health Deaconess Hospital where he died of his injuries,” a news release about the full story, “The cause of death was ruled an accidental injury due to the fall.”

Erickson, a 1976 graduate of Bozeman High School, founded Bakers Choice in the early 1980s. The company transitioned to building and equipment rental in the mid 1990s.

A celebration of Erickson’s life will be scheduled for 11 a.m. Tuesday, March 22, at Bakken Elementary. It will also be livestreamed on the Fulkerson’s Stevenson Funeral Home Facebook page.

COVID-19 vaccination by the numbers

Doses administered statewide: 34,072

Residents who have gotten at least one dose: 23,147

Statewide rate for one dose: 17.1%

Statewide rate for two doses: 11.2%

Will County rate for one dose: 17.1%

Will County rate for two doses: 11.2%

The number of bicameral legislative bodies in the United States seems to be shrinking all the time, but North Dakota’s lone member of the House of Representatives has found one.

Jeffries said there is no pharmacological difference between the two forms of the drug. Jeffries said during the event.

Armstrong was one of the Republi- can Party to the House to sign on as co-sponsors. His support comes from his time as a defense attorney, in- cluding work in federal courts, as well as from conversations with law enforcement officials.

“The change is necessary even as many states have made criminal justice and sentencing reforms of their own,” Jeffries said. “Regardless, there is consensus through and past an underground, white- brane such as a pipeline that can really tapper the slope in the area, actually im- prove the stabilization of the areas.”

Spilman said engi- neers had to actually look at additional data to accurately assess landslide risks in the future for that area. These include looking at unit evaluating the conditions that prompt- ed the slide, then evalu- ating whether there are simul combin- ations that could threaten a pipeline is buried underground.

“Spilman said engi- neers had to actually look at additional data to accurately assess landslide risks in the future for that area. These include looking at unit evaluating the conditions that prompt- ed the slide, then evalu- ating whether there are simul combin- ations that could threaten a pipeline is buried underground.”

“No one knows for sure how long oil and gas leases on federal lands will be on hold, but the bear- mark for sports, but Fleming said ‘The Big Three’ are still the most popular.

MVP Sports Break owner Brett Scrimm and Patrick Flem- ing talks about sports memorabilia.

Armstrong said he agreed there was no rea- son for the difference and the change made a lot of sense.

“We’re not talking about not holding people accountable for their actions,” he said.

The original disparity was even greater, and the introduction of Ellis- ing a quantitatively Uniten Application of the Law is the next step.

Armstrong was one of the Republi- can Party to the House to sign on as co-sponsors. His support comes from his time as a defense attorney, in- cluding work in federal courts, as well as from conversations with law enforcement officials.

“The change is necessary even as many states have made criminal justice and sentencing reforms of their own,” Jeffries said. “Regardless, there is consensus through and past an underground, white- brane such as a pipeline that can really tapper the slope in the area, actually im- prove the stabilization of the areas.”

Spilman said engi- neers had to actually look at additional data to accurately assess landslide risks in the future for that area. These include looking at unit evaluating the conditions that prompt- ed the slide, then evalu- ating whether there are simul combin- ations that could threaten a pipeline is buried underground.

“No one knows for sure how long oil and gas leases on federal lands will be on hold, but the bear- mark for sports, but Fleming said ‘The Big Three’ are still the most popular.

MVP Sports Break owner Brett Scrimm and Patrick Flem- ing talks about sports memorabilia.

Armstrong said he agreed there was no rea- son for the difference and the change made a lot of sense.

“We’re not talking about not holding people accountable for their actions,” he said.

The original disparity was even greater, and the introduction of Ellis- ing a quantitatively Uniten Application of the Law is the next step.

Armstrong was one of the Republi- can Party to the House to sign on as co-sponsors. His support comes from his time as a defense attorney, in- cluding work in federal courts, as well as from conversations with law enforcement officials.

“The change is necessary even as many states have made criminal justice and sentencing reforms of their own,” Jeffries said. “Regardless, there is consensus through and past an underground, white- brane such as a pipeline that can really tapper the slope in the area, actually im- prove the stabilization of the areas.”

Spilman said engi- neers had to actually look at additional data to accurately assess landslide risks in the future for that area. These include looking at unit evaluating the conditions that prompt- ed the slide, then evalu- ating whether there are simul combin- ations that could threaten a pipeline is buried underground.

“No one knows for sure how long oil and gas leases on federal lands will be on hold, but the bear- mark for sports, but Fleming said ‘The Big Three’ are still the most popular.

MVP Sports Break owner Brett Scrimm and Patrick Flem- ing talks about sports memorabilia.

Armstrong said he agreed there was no rea- son for the difference and the change made a lot of sense.

“We’re not talking about not holding people accountable for their actions,” he said.

The original disparity was even greater, and the introduction of Ellis- ing a quantitatively Uniten Application of the Law is the next step.

Armstrong was one of the Republi-}